

Little League All-Star Team Selected For Regional Playoffs

All-Star players from the this week selected for a team which will enter regional playoffs with Tarboro at Greenville on Friday, July 29 at 3 p. m. All-Star practice will begin Monday.

The Pony League All-Star Team will play at a Virginia site at a place and time yet to be selected. The Pony All-Stars will be selected following the selection of a play-off date.

Howard Oakley, an official of the Little League, said yesterday that there would be no Little League play from July 18 to July 24 due to the Boy Scout Camp.

Members of the Little League All-Stars chosen this week are: Tommy Rooker, Wiley Coleman, Gilbert Floyd, Wilbert Floyd, Bobby Evans, Terry Insoce, Lance Dillard, J. Schnurr, Ben Aycock, Jerry King, Smitty Bug, Coker, Brannock and Bolton.

Louis Rooker, coach of the Indians, has been selected as the All-Stars coach.

Pirates At Top Of Pony League

The Pirates of the Pony League climbed into first place this week by virtue of wins on both Monday and Wednesday nights.

The Pirates defeated the Tigers on Monday night in a nine-inning game and won over the Senators on Wednesday night. The Cardinals bowed to the Senators Monday night and defeated the Tigers on Wednesday night.

In Wednesday night opening game the Pirates defeated the Senators 6 to 4 in a fast game that lasted only about an hour and a half. David Brantley was the winning pitcher and M. J. Stegall was the loser.

The Cardinals defeated the Tigers 15 to 8 in an error filled game, marked by many walks on the part of both pitchers. The game, which lasted for more than two hours, was a close affair except for a disastrous second inning for the Tigers.

The Tigers, which played their best game of the season on Monday night, made a promising start as they took a 1 to 0 lead in the first inning. But the Cardinals struck back in the bottom of the second inning and pushed 11 runs across the plate in a route marked by a large number of walks by the Tiger pitcher and lack of support from his team mates.

Following the poor second, the Tigers settle down and chipped away at the Cardinals, who began to allow walks and make fielding errors. At the bottom of the sixth the Cardinals led 15 to 6, but the Tigers held the Cardinals scoreless in the bottom of the sixth and pushed across two runs in the top of the seventh to cut the lead to 15 to 8.

Benny Hilliard was the winning pitcher and Carroll was the loser.

MONDAY'S GAMES

The Tigers, seeking their first win of the season, on Monday night almost pulled it off as they battled the Senators for nine full innings in the second game before bowing 4 to 2.

The under dog Tigers, which have picked up considerable fan support, played their best ball of the season as they offered the Senators a real challenge. They shut out the Senators for six innings behind the mound work of Phillip Lynch, and in the bottom of the six,

Matthew Crinkley Dies In New Jersey

Matthew Crinkley, 69, of Allendale, N. J., died on July 3, of a heart attack. He was vice president of the Isbrandt Shipping Lines of New York City.

The son of the late Mr. and Mrs. D. F. Crinkley of Raleigh, he was a native of Warren County.

Funeral plans have not been learned here.

Surviving are his wife and three children, Winifred, Doris and Stewart, Jr., all of Allendale, N. J.; a sister, Mrs. Harry Harty of New York, three brothers, Commander Andrew Crinkley of Saigon, Viet Nam, the Rev. John Crinkley of Kingsport, Tenn., and Frank Crinkley of San Francisco, Calif., seven granddaughters and three great-grandchildren.

sent two runs across the plate. The Senators tied it up in the top of the seventh.

In the top of the ninth, the Senators sent two runs across the plate for what proved to be the winning runs, as Kermit Copley shut out the Tigers in the bottom of the ninth.

In the first game Monday night, the Cardinals offered little opposition to the Tribe. Unable to hit Whitmore with any consistency and plagued with both base running and fielding errors, the once top Cardinals blew up on occasions and allowed the Tribe to send 7 runs over the plate. Although the Cardinals managed to have the bases loaded on two or more occasions, they were held to the two runs they picked up early in the game.

Test Program Provides Help To Farmers

It's not that the farmer is particularly hard headed or slow to change, he just likes to be shown why one method of fertilizing tobacco or controlling suckers is better than another.

That's what the on-farm testing program of the North Carolina Agricultural Extension Service is all about. It shows the farmer, either on his own farm or on a neighbor's, that there may be a better way of doing things.

On-farm testing is a teaching method and has been shown to be one of the most effective ways of relaying new information to the farmer, according to Dr. George Hyatt, Jr., state extension director.

"The tests not only benefit the farmer and agriculture in general, but they also provide data to supplement that compiled by our research scientists in their experiments on research farms," Dr. Hyatt pointed out.

The tests are actually scientific demonstrations of research findings. They are designed by extension specialists and research scientists. A county agricultural agent and his county or community agricultural committee select one or more of the tests for their area.

In the case of tobacco, there are 20 tests to select from. These include fertilization, weed and sucker control, variety and replanting tests and others.

Tobacco specialists S. N. Hawks and W. K. Collins work with the agent and the farmer cooperatively in setting up the test plots. The agent then takes over supervision of the plot and assists the farmer in maintaining records.

"The test is there for all the farmers in the community to inspect and watch as the crop grows," Dr. Collins explains. "We have found that when a grower and his neighbors see an improved practice demonstrated in their community in a scientific manner, they are quick to adopt it."

Some 114 replicated on-farm tobacco tests were conducted in 41 counties throughout the flue-cured growing area in 1966. Collins or Hawks visits each of these tests at least four times during the growing season to chart progress and answer any questions the farmer or agent may have.

After the tobacco is harvested and sold, the specialists summarize the data collected from all the farm tests and incorporate this in an annual publication that is made available to growers throughout the state. Collins and Hawks also use this information in their series of annual winter meetings held for farmers in each county. This is where the production practices for the next crop are discussed for the growers' benefit.

Council To Hold Tour

The North Carolina Association of Student Councils will conduct a cultural tour of historic and scenic North Carolina and Colonial Williamsburg, Virginia on August 20-24. Executive Secretary Catherine J. Smith announced yesterday.

The tour is slated to begin at Raleigh on Sunday, Aug. 20. The participants will travel by Greyhound bus to Manteo, Colonial Williamsburg, Va., Boone, and Cherokee. The historical drama in each of the places to be visited will be an important part of the tour activities.

Any Student Council members and advisors who are interested in traveling along the scenic highways of North Carolina from coast to the mountains and seeing history in action may do so by contacting Mrs. Catherine J. Smith, State Student Council Executive Secretary, Box 267, Warrenton, N. C. 27589, immediately.
