Patrol Has Work For Women

RALEIGH—Thirty-six women are needed to work with the Highway Patrol!

The North Carolina Highway Patrol needs stenographers to work in each of the thirty-six district offices throughout the state. These women, who can be from 18 to 45 years of age, will be expected to handle 85% of the routine office work at the district offices, according to Major Edward W. Jones. The patrolmen will then be free for more Administrative, Supervisory, and investigative work, he added.

To qualify, stenos must be able to take dictation (80 words per minute), type letters and reports (45 words per minute), handle phone and mail inquiries, keep files in order, and process the many records required by the Department of Motor Vehicles.

Applicants are being interviewed now, by the District Sergeants at each of the District Offices of the Patrol. The district office for Warrenton County is at Henderson.

The positions become effective on January 1, 1968. Applicants accepted must be willing to attend a five-day training school at the Institute of Government, beginning on that date. At this school, the new stenos will be given detailed information on all phases of Highway Patrol organization and procedures, as well as the overall operations of the Department of Motor Vehicles. They will be taught the "one way" to do the job, so that all offices can be uniformly operated.

Applicants chosen will be classified "Stenographer 1, and will be entitled to all benefits of State Employees, including three weeks vacation, ten days sick leave and nine holidays annually, plus a retirement program and a group hospitalization plan.

The salary ranges from $289 to $365 per month. costs; Carl Homer Edwards, costs; Katherine E. Gifts Go Festive With Thread

By imaginatively using spools of mercerized cotton thread, you can add a special touch to your Christmas gifts.

Holiday trees, jolly Santas, flowers, and even "gooks" can be created with thread pompoms and fringe com- bined with scraps of felt and ribbon.

Once your imagination gets started, you may find your- self decorating packages long after Santa has gone.

Attach the designs to pack- ages with double-faced tape, and they can be saved for another holiday season.

Thread pompoms are used for the flower, topiary tree, and "gook" designs. To make pompoms, take a spool of thread and slash across it with a single-edged razor. Remove the thread from the spool in one bundle and tie it in the center with match- ing thread. Then fluff.

A single pompom will make a thread flower. Loop a pipe cleaner under the center tie of the pompom, and wind florist tape around the pipe cleaner. Start at the top and catch in the thread tie. Continue twisting tape around the pipe cleaner, and catch in velvet leaves on either side.

For a topiary tree, you'll need three small spools of red cotton mercerized thread. Two pompoms can be made from each spool by tying the thread bundle on each side of the center and cutting be- tween the ties.

Sew the six-inch red felt circle, interspersing with Make one large pompom and press on either side of the center to flatten. Cut eyes and boots from black felt. Sew white buttons to eyes and tack onto gook.

Snip a single ball from a piece of red ball fringe and sew on for a nose. Attach holly berries. Use green vel- vet ribbon for a stem, and cut a flower pot shape from red felt.

The "gook" — a mischiev- ous-looking character which will delight children — is created from a large spool of white cotton thread

PACKAGE APPEAL — Festive, not threadbare, is the way your Christmas gift packages can look this year. The secret's in the trim—unusual decorations created with cotton mercerized thread and a few scraps of felt and ribbon. These perky gift trims, ranging from a jolly Santa to a mischievous-looking "gook," were created by Talon's Department of Design.

To make fringe for the Santa Claus and Christmas tree designs, slash thread across the spool with a razor and let it drop flat onto tissue paper.

Spread out evenly to about six inches. Then use your sewing machine to stitch across one long end through both thread and tissue. Stitch again to reinforce. You'll have a row of fringe six inches wide and two and one-half inches deep.

For narrower fringe, make four rows of stitching about one-sixteenth of an inch apart through the center of thread. Then cut apart.

Use one spool of white thread to make a fringe beard for the tall Santa gift wrap. Three small spools of green thread will make narrow rows of fringe to trim the Christmas tree. It's tacked to a green felt tree shape, and decorated with miniature red Christmas balls.

Forest Products Provide Huge Tar Heel Industry

Whether viewed by the farmer, the furniture shopper, the tourist or the hunter, North Carolina's great forests have generated a huge Tar Heel industry.

Since the first school of forestry in the United States was established at Biltmore in 1898, the Tar Heel forest industry has grown into a giant. North Carolina ranks first in the nation in hardwood ply- wood production and first in the South in production of rough lumber and sawn ties, according to extension forestry specialists at North Carolina State university.

The Tar Heel state also produces plywood valued at about $52.5 million each year.

The specialists say North Carolina leads the nation in production of both upholstered and non-upholstered wooden furniture valued at more than a half billion dollars each year.

The state's furniture indus- try produces about 30 per cent of the nation's wooden bedroom furniture, about 36 percent of all dining room and kitchen furniture, and about 22 per cent of all upholster- ed wooden furniture produced in the United States.

The state has more than 2,800 industrial plants that manufacture lumber and other forest products. Some 97,000 people earn income directly from forest-based activities.

primary purposes of promot- ing, sponsoring and engaging in regattas and like activities.

The land area between the leased premises and the water's edge will continue to be open for the general public's use at all times. The Engineers will give consider- ation to authorizing stairways, walkways, roads, launching ramps, and other necessary related facilities for club operations within the club site area, subject to payment of additional rental.

Bid forms and additional in- formation may be obtained from John H. Kerr Reservoir Manager near the damsite, or by writing to the Area Real Estate Officer, P. O. Box 99, Cary, N. C. 27511.

Gratitude

...one of the most ennobling emotions of mankind comes into sharp focus at

Thanksgivingtime

Instinctively we express gratitude to our Maker for the bounties of our land and the goodwill of our friends. Permit us, therefore, to offer our gratitude to you whose kindness and courtesy has meant so much to us throughout the years of our contact.

It's not easy to face up to this very unpleasant subject.

The possibility of your own death is simply a fact of life. You probably have great plans for your family's future. And we'd like to show you some of ours.
