TO THE PEOPLE

I doubt that we have talked about anything much during the past week that did not in some way relate to our tremendous achievement in sending three astronauts to the moon and back within a period of eight days. It is almost unbelievable. Isn't it!

And frankly, except for the problems which daily confront us as people and as a nation, I don't know of anything more significant and meaningful for Americans to talk about - for all mankind to talk about. For as astronaut Neil Armstrong so appropriately put it when he first set foot on the moon: "That's one small step for man and one giant leap for mankind."

At the risk of being called selfish, let me add again, this was also a "giant leap" for America. This incredible feat demonstrated that American technology has matured, that it has come of age. It clearly demonstrated that we can do whatever we cooperatively and courageously set out to do. In this case we accomplished the very thing we wanted to do - that is (in the words of Dr. Thomas O. Paine, the present Administrator of NASA): "To be able to leave the earth, to sail out on this new ocean of space for a matter of days, to a destination measured in hundreds of thousands of miles, to be able to descend safely on the far shore, to get out and walk about and perform useful activities and then to return safely to the good earth."

According to Dr. Paine, that's the real meaning of our accomplishment - not just that we beat Russia in a moon race. Of course, I shudder to think what would have happened to the morale and the outlook of our people if we had failed. We will never forget Russia's Sputnik which woke us up.

Wasn't it a thrilling experience to be able to sit by television (another almost miraculous invention of man, and watch countless thousands of people all over the world so enthusiastically interested in this dangerous and historic effort? For a change, we heard expressions of support and interest from all over the world. It is estimated that approximately 500 million people were watching. As a number interviewed over television said: For once in a lifetime, millions of people were doing substantially the same thing together. I think we should emphasize that word "together" - that spirit of togetherness which is so desperately needed everywhere. How desperately the people of America need to get together and think and plan and work and even play together on so many other less significant but nonetheless important occasions.

Notwithstanding all of our material prosperity of recent years and our greatness in so many areas of human interest and activity, as a nation, we had been down in the dumps for quite some time for a number of well-known reasons. We truly needed a lift. Our morale was low. We had become such an excessively tolerant and permissive society - dangerously so. We had seen and heard so much in the form of riots and burning and looting and stealing and college take-overs, demonstrations of all sorts; and, of course, we were concerned (and still are) about the war in Viet Nam. In fact, at times it has seemed as though America might be destroyed from within and, thus, make futile our efforts in Viet Nam or anywhere else.

The blast off from Cape Kennedy somehow seemed to turn on the lights of Heaven and fill the skies of our dreams with new hope and new faith in America's future. Somehow we seem to have arrived. As I said earlier, we appeared to have reached maturity, for this was our finest hour. Note I said "our" because without you and me and thousands of others like us and our tax dollars, the moon project could never have gotten off the ground. Surely, in the words of one of the congratulatory messages to President Nixon, the moon landing should "lift our eyes for a moment from our troubles and cares here on earth and give us a glimpse of what man at his best can do."

Are these not also appropriate times for us to call upon Almighty God for more faith in him, for a better understanding of His magnificent purposes in our lives and for a greater courage to carry out in a spirit of togetherness the many glorious tasks He has committed to our care.

In a future newsletter I hope to tell you something of the part which North Carolina played in this great adventure through the leadership of one who we can proudly claim as a native son. I don't believe many of our people know that Jim Webb, a native of Oxford in our Congressional District, was the Director of our space program from its infancy to its adulthood and until just about a year ago. In fact, in introducing him to a distinguished group of citizens in Kinston, North Carolina, a little over a year ago, I said this in part about Jim Webb: "He believes the United States will eventually win the race to the moon."

Perk up your appetite and your menu with peaches. Peaches, a most popular fruit in North Carolina, are coming to the market now in plentiful supply. If you would like information on using peaches in tasty dishes or how to can, preserve, pickle or freeze them, you will be interested in getting the N. C. Extension publication, "Peaches," from our office. It is free for the asking. Telephone 257-3997 or 257-3640.

The following recipes from this publication are ones you may like to try:

PEACH TORTE
Serves 8
Crust:
1 1/4 cups sifted all-purpose flour
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup butter
2 tablespoons sour cream

Filling:
6 medium-size, peeled, sliced fresh peaches
Topping:
3 egg yolks, beaten
1/3 cup sour cream
1 cup sugar
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/4 cup unsifted all-purpose flour

Meringue:
3 egg whites
6 tablespoons sugar
Preheat oven to 375 degrees. Mix flour and salt. Cut in butter, using 2 knives or pastry blender, until pieces are about the size of peas. Stir in sour cream. Press mixture into 9 inch square and 2 inch deep pan. Bake until light brown; about 20 minutes.

Spread peaches over baked crust.

Mix all ingredients for topping. Pour over peaches. Return to oven. Bake 35 to 40 minutes more, or until custard sets.

Beat egg whites until frothy. Gradually add sugar, a tablespoon at a time. Spread over top of warm torte. Put under broiler as far away from heat as possible. Broil a minute or two, or until golden brown.

PEACH PRESERVES
Peel peaches, cut slices or cubes of desired size. Use 1 pound of fruit to 3/4 pound of sugar. Put enough water with sugar to make a thin syrup. Add fruit and boil rapidly, being sure the fruit does not stick.

When fruit is clear and translucent remove and place in shallow dish while syrup boils thicker (if necessary). Pour this syrup over fruit and let stand until cool.

Return fruit and syrup to pan and allow it to reach boiling point. Do not re-cook. Pack hot fruit immediately in hot sterilized jars; skim foam and pour syrup in little by little as packing progresses until the jar is filled. Remove air bubbles.

Process at simmering point (about 190 degrees F.) 10 minutes.
