J. Roger Peeler, superintendent of schools, said reports from the ten schools in the county show a ratio of 20 per cent white and 80 per cent nonwhite. He said "it is quite obvious that some white students are staying away from school

New Lines Drawn

Peeler said that new district lines had been drawn up in setting up the total integration plan "and it looks as if we are going to have to revise the lines to provide more pupils at under-populated schools.

He said that while there was over-crowding of buses and over - crowding of some schools, 'there were no incidents at any of the schools,"

A group of citizens who had threatened to send their children to the schools to which they had been assigned under legislation in the 1969 General Assembly authorizing special units in Warrenton and Littleton-Lake Gaston apparently changed their minds. Only 15 such pupils reported at Warrenton and none at other schools.

Peeler said he knew that over 200 Warren County pupils enrolled in Vance County schools and a large number enrolled in Halifax schools because of the delayed opening. He also said a number enrolled in private schools.

Punt, Pass Kick

segregated, he said. Under state policy, the amount of state reimbursement a particular school may receive for lunches is determined by the previous year's operation. Supt. J. R. Peeler said the reorganization of his schools meant many high school students who need the help are now attending a school which does not qualify for maximum assistence.

Peeler said that while lunchroom program in Warren County's three high schools is threatened because he feels the school board will balk at setting lunch prices higher in one school than in the other two and may not operate alunch program. The first partial day of school was Tuesday.

Peeler explained the situation this way: The students who attended predominately - Negro Hawkins High School last veat have now been transferred to John Graham High School under (See SCHOOLS, page 2)
