Many Things About 4-H Work Amplified

During National Week

During National 4-H Club Week Observance, October 4-10, 1970, many things are being amplified about 4-H. This is why the stroke of my pen leads me to discuss 4-H projects and record keeping.

A project is a task or problem calling for constructive thought and /or action. It provides the participant with informal, educational and real life-like experiences which help him to become more knowledgeable of the subject as well as "why" certain things happen. The ultimate purpose of the 4-H project is to help in the overall development of the 4-H boy and girl.

A project is completed when the specific requirements in the record book and/or manual have been carried out. Different projects have different requirements and many projects are made up of units designed for specific age levels. The specific requirements are the minimum. A member may advance project work beyond the minimum if he so desires. When the project is completed, the record book should be submitted to the member's leader to be considered for judging and recognition.

The wide range of projects offered in 4-H are constantly changing to meet the needs and interests of boys and girls.

Record Keeping

Learning to keep records is valuable training for the 4-H boy and girl. It is a part of . "education for living." It has merit from the business standpoint; the record is a good yardstick with which to measure self and evaluate accomplishments; the properly completed record can help members develop skills in record keeping techniques; records can help the agent and leaders appraise what members have learned and thereby guide them in their future project and program selections. Records are a means by which 4-H members may compete for county, district, state and national honors.

In 4-H there is the project record and the long-time record. The project record is kept on work done in a specific subject matter area in a period of a year or less. The 4-H long-time record is compiled for a period of more than here.

This is National 4-H Week | one year and is an accumulation of all work and accomnents in 4-H. plish The Yearly Project Record

> Yearly project records is kept and completed by each 4-H'er on the project (s) he is conducting. In addition to being a valuable educational experience, the record is the basis by which county and blue ribbon winners are determined. Consequently, the entries in the record should be factual and relevant to the objectives for completion of the project. The project is complete when the project requirements are met to the satisfaction of the leader and/or agent. When completed, the record is submitted to the leader for judging and selection of club or special interest group winners. Records may be turned in upon completion or on a designated date as agreed on in the county. Generally speaking, early October is a convenient time for project records to be submitted. However, there may be exceptions in the case of crop projects which may not be completed by this time and in the case of others which may be completed earlier.

The community club, special interest and project leaders assist members in understanding the record book and manual and how to complete them. Thus the agent trains leaders to help members with their records; Junior leaders are very helpful to younger club members in completing records.

4-H involvement Key To Staying Young

For more than 66 Warren County residents, the key to staying young is involvement with youth. They are volunteer leaders assisting with the Warren County 4-H program. These volunteer leaders, according to L. B. Hardage, Warren County Extension Chairman, are revealing their faith in today's young people. They share a common interestseeing boys and girls advance through the opportunities available in 4-H.

Hardage says boys and girls between 9 and 19 may be 4-H members. Those young and not so young who are over 19 may join 4-H as volunteer leaders. He points out that more leaders are needed to serve even more Warren County young people through 4-H.

Holtzman Finds Projects Interesting

By RICHARD HOLTZMAN, JR.

I have several interesting 4-H projects - Forestry, Wildlife, Health, Electric and Soil Testing. Wildlife is my favorite.

My 4-H Wildlife project has taught me many useful things. I have learned about fish, animals, snakes and birds. I learned to make casts of animal tracks using plaster of Paris. I also learned to plant seed for the birds to eat in the winter.

ers for my Wildlife project has been fun for me. I made a Bluebird Special that is constructed from a board 5 3/4 inches wide and 55 inches long. This is simple to make and costs about 75 cents. Later, I learned to make a birdhouse for Wrens, Bluebirds and Tree Swallows from a three quart can that I got at a restaurant. I cut a door by putting the can in a vise and cutting 1 1/2 inch hole with a the chisel and hammer. The roof is made with an 8 x 10 inch board and fastened to the can with screw eyes and wire. This house costs very little to make because it is made with scrap material. I also learned that . I can make bird houses and feeders from gourds that I grow in the garden. These are easy to make and the only cost is for paint. This is a very worthy project. My bird friends reward me with pretty songs and bright feathers. They also keep insects in check.

Being a 4-H member has been a wonderful experience for me. I plan to continue my Wildlife project.

Project Work Major Part Of 4-H Story

In the modern 4-H program, L. B. Hardage, County Extension Chairman and 4-H Coordinator, said the major part of the 4-H story is project work. Members choose from some 109 projects dealing with everyday learning experiences that fit them and the places which they live.

Warren County boys and girls were enrolled in a wide variety of educational learn-by-doing farm, home, personal development, and community projects last year, the Extension agent reports.

The Cooperative Extension Service of N. C. State University, Raleigh, N. C. pro-vides each 4-H member with the latest research information and up-to-date methods for carrying on the projects selected. Using this information, the 4-H'er develops his or her project, keep records, prepares educational exhibits, and makes show-and-tell presentations for the benefit of others. However, projects aren't the whole story in 4-H, Hardage said. In 4-H, Warren County boys and girls have fun, go to camp, take special trips, at-tend dinners, banquets, and ral-lies; participate in County and State Fairs, earn awards-ining scholarships, work with nger 4-H members, enroll in endership and citizenship programs, and discover new and interesting ways to enjoy like while living it, Hardage com-

Hardage added that National 4-H Week is afine time for boys and girls to join 4-H and show they care about their future. His office is located in the County Agricultural Building and his telephone number is 57-3640.
