Home Economists provide information on new and useful ideas for homemaking and family living. Their educational programs focus on family-related concerns such as: food and nutrition, housing, consumer education on use of money, credit, and other resources, development of healthy human and family relationships, health, safety, and use of community resources, competence in volunteer leadership roles and community development.

Extension Home Economists reach people with information through groups and individually. Volunteer leaders are trained to teach their friends, neighbors, and others.

Many counties have Extension "program aides" who are local women hired to teach low-income families in their neighborhoods how to improve nutrition and make better use of food stamps or donated foods.

Radio and television programs, newspaper articles and bulletins carry information to the public. You can get help with special home or family-related problems by telephoning or writing your Cooperative Extension office.

4-H.... Young people learning and doing in 4-H clubs, special interest groups, workshops, TV lessons and special nutrition programs.

Adults and teens sharing their time and knowledge with younger 4-H'ers.

A fun and exciting way to learn.

Adaptable to where young people live and what they want to do.

A guide to health and fitness. Self expression through creating things.

Discovering the "whys" behind science and technology in everyday life.

Learning about economics — from production to consumption.

Doing something about making the community a better place to live.

Youth from all places, all races, and all incomes—developing as persons, sharing as citizens and practicing leadership.

Extension's education program for youth. Volunteer leaders are trained and supervised by county extension staff.

Shining Star

4-H Club Meets

The Shining Star 4-H Club met at the home of its President, Fannie Williams on Tuesday evening, January 20th.

Business discussed at the meeting included the setting of dues at 10 cents per month, selection of individual projects for 1976, and a discussion of group projects and activities for the year.

Eleven members, two leaders, and two parents attended the meeting. The next meeting is scheduled for February 17 at 7 p. m. The place of meeting will be announced later.

Following the meeting, delicious refreshments were served by the hostess.—Kaye Hampton, Reporter.

A CORRECTION

In last week's issue of The Warren Record it was stated that the former home of the late Grover Brown was completely destroyed by fire early the previous Sunday morning. The statement was based on information supplied this newspaper. Instead of the home of the late Mr. Brown, a tenant house was destroyed. The farm is operated by the Rev. A. A. Brown and the home of one of his tenants was destroyed. The Warren Record regrets the error.

Rotarians Give Magazines To Clubs

The 4-H program in Warren County has been given a significant boost for 1976, thanks to the generosity of the Warrenton Rotary Club. Steven E. Brooks, Assistant Extension Agent, 4-H, said this week.

Rotarians, he said, recently voted to donate a subscription to the "National 4-H News Magazine" to each 4-H Club in the county. Each monthly issue contains project ideas, craft suggestions, tips from experienced 4-H leaders, and advice from professional youth specialists.

"The generosity of the Warrenton Rotary Club," Brooks said, gives our 4-H leaders an opportunity to use this valuable program aid, and is appreciated by the county Extension Service, the volunteer 4-H leaders, and by Warrenton County 4-H'ers."

FBI Headquarters in Washington, D. C., is seeking qualified applicants to fill GS-2 Clerk, GS-3 Clerk-Typist, and GS-4 Clerk-Stenography positions, Mark Howe, FBI agent of Raleigh, said this week.

Howe was in Warrenton seeking to recruit citizens for these positions. He said starting salary for clerks is $6,296 per year; for clerk-typists is $7,102 per year; and for clerk-stenographers is $7,976 per year. He said periodic within grade and grade increases are available for employees who perform at an acceptable level of competence.

Other information given by Howe was as follows: No previous experience is necessary since employees are assigned to existing vacancies when they enter on duty and receive on-the-job training in their assigned duties.

To qualify for FBI employment, one must be a citizen of the United States, a high school graduate, at least 16 years old, and be able to pass a written spelling test and a background investigation.

The regular work week is 40 hours, consisting of 5 eight-hour days. FBI employees receive 13 working days paid vacation annually during the first 3 years of employment; 20 days vacation from 3 to 15 years of service; and 26 days vacation for over 15 years of service. Active military service is included in these vacation computations.

There are also sick leave benefits enabling an employee to be absent from duty on account of illness without loss of pay or vacation time. There are nine Federal holidays per year.

For those employees who desire to continue their education at their own expense, Washington, D. C., has numerous business and professional schools, colleges and universities particularly adapted for Government employees.

The FBI has always urged its employees to take advantage of these educational facilities as a means of self-improvement and equipping them for positions of greater responsibility. Many current FBI Agents started their careers as clerical employees, and after securing the necessary educational requirements, they became qualified to apply for the Special Agent position.

To assist new employees in locating suitable lodging upon their arrival in Washington, D. C., the FBI Personnel Office maintains an up-to-date register of available rooms and furnished and unfurnished apartments. Temporary reservations may be made for a prospective employee in advance of his arrival.

The FBI maintains a well-staffed health service in its buildings in Washington where services are available free of charge to all employees. There are liberal health and insurance programs available where the Government pays part of the premium costs, and there is a generous retirement program under the Civil Service Retirement System.

For an application and additional information concerning a career in the FBI, please write to the Special Agent in charge, Federal Bureau of Investigation, 1120 Jefferson Standard Life Building, Charlotte, North Carolina 28202.

Surveys show that children between 8 and 12 years old spend over $2.5 million a year.

Soybean Confab

Is Scheduled

By L. C. COOPER
Extension Agent

The Annual N. C. Producers Soybean Conference will be held Feb. 6, at Hilton Inn, Raleigh. The meeting will begin at 9:00 a. m. with Dr. J. E. Legates, Dean of the School of Agricultural and Life Sciences, N. C. State University delivering the keynote address.

The Honorable James A. Graham, Commissioner, N. C. Dept. of Agriculture, will be the luncheon speaker. Following the afternoon program, there will be a social hour, banquet, awards, and entertainment. Contact your County Agents Office for more detailed information.

"Futures Market," L. C. Cooper, Agricultural Extension Agent, said yesterday.

The first meeting will be Feb. 5, the second meeting Feb. 12, and the third and final meeting on Feb. 19. All meetings will be held in the Agricultural Building beginning at 7:30 p. m. and ending 9:00 p. m.

Dr. John Ikerd and Dr. Everett Nichols with North Carolina State University will assist with the meetings.

Farmers as well as others who desire information of futures markets and hedging can contact county extension agents and enroll in the Future Market School, Cooper said.
