

Arts, Crafts Sunday Slated In Warrenton

A Warren County Arts and Crafts Fair will be held at the Warrenton Community Center on Sunday, March 16, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. The fair is a joint effort of the Warren County Arts and Crafts Council and the Warrenton Community Center. It is the largest of its kind in the county and is open to all residents.

The fair will feature a wide variety of arts and crafts, including pottery, quilts, and other handmade items. There will also be a display of local history and a children's area.

Admission is free for all. The fair is a great opportunity for residents to see and buy local arts and crafts. It is also a chance for artists to display their work and receive feedback. The fair is a community event that brings people together and supports local artists.

For more information, contact the Warren County Arts and Crafts Council at 1-800-451-7263. The fair is a community event that brings people together and supports local artists.

Persons wishing to donate items to the fair should bring them to the Warrenton Community Center by Friday, March 14. The fair is a community event that brings people together and supports local artists.

Three Fires Are Fought

Only two fires were reported this week by the Warrenton Rural Volunteer Fire Department, one on Monday and the other on Tuesday.

The local company dispatched a wood truck and pumper to Embro at 8 p.m. Monday to extinguish a wood fire on the King of the River race. The boat was heavily loaded with people and equipment, and it was difficult to maneuver. The fire was quickly extinguished by the fire department. The race was held on a beautiful day with a clear sky and a gentle breeze.

RICHARDSON

Committee for Indian Affairs for one year.

A native of Warren County, Richardson lives on Route 3, Warrenton. He is married to Lucille Richardson and they have a child, two children are in public school. He received GED from Vance County Technical Institute on Aug. 29, 1973.

Richardson is a member of Mount Bethel Baptist Church in Warrenton, where he has served as Sunday School superintendent for five years and as chairman of the stewardship committee for two years.

Rudasill, a black, said he hoped to win by putting together a coalition of blacks, liberals and working people.

Fifty percent of the district's registered voters are black, the most of any of the state's 11 congressional districts. There are large concentrations of workers, many of them unionized, especially in Roanoke Rapids in Halifax County. The district also includes Chapel Hill and its liberal-oriented university community.

Talking to several supporters at the fund-raising dinner, Rudasill indicated his support for the Equal Rights Amendment and described his political philosophy as "somewhere between (former Georgia governor) Jimmy Carter and (former U.S. Sen.) Fred Harris," both Democratic presidential candidates.

Rudasill said he probably will formally announce his campaign in early April, after the state's March 23 presidential primary. His campaign will be directed from an office in Henderson, in Vance County, in the heart of the district.

Rudasill, who is married and has three children, holds a bachelor's degree in political science.
