David Dodd talks about Can Do Banking:

"Can Do" is our slogan because it briefly states the main idea behind our bank. That idea is really very simple: It is to offer you—the customer—what you want in your bank, rather than what we—the bankers—find easy to provide. We know you want full service banking which is prompt, complete, and always pleasant. We know you want fast decisions and immediate action. We know you want your bank to meet all your financial needs, even when you have major and intricate financial requirements. So we provide this kind of service. In every facet of banking. For individuals, professional people and businesses.

In order to offer you what you want in your bank, we'll create new services when the traditional way is not sufficient. A recent example is our PayAnyDay® simple interest loans. We introduced this new idea in lending because we think it only fair that you be able to pay off the entire amount of your loan at any time with no penalty. We know you want to pay interest only on the money you actually borrow and only for the time you actually have the money. You see this same idea of fairness and simplicity in our Checkline Reserve™ automatic loan checking plan, which is another example of creating new services to meet contemporary needs.

The record shows that "Can Do" is more than a slogan at First-Citizens. It is our way of life. That's why people started calling us the "Can Do" Bank. And that's why we adopted "Can Do" as our slogan.
