Rare Art Purchased

RALEIGH—The N. C. Museum of Art has acquired, through gift or purchase, more than 100 works of art including a bronze sculpture by Alexander Archipenko and a collection of rare African objects from the Congo River Basin.

The works, whose acquisition during the last part of 1976 was approved at a December meeting of the N. C. Art Commission, will be displayed in various museum exhibitions during 1977.

The Archipenko sculpture, "Blue Dancer," is a dancing female figure poised gracefully on one toe on a pedestal that can be turned. Cast from bronze in 1913, the statue was then treated with a chemical process that gave it a blue patina.

Ukraine, lived most of his life in the United States. His statue is a major addition to the state's collection of modern American art.

A major gift of African art was donated to the museum by the Bronson family of California. Lee Bronson, his wife Dona and his brother Robert gave the museum 38 pieces from Nigeria and the Congo River Basin.

The objects include masks, fetishes, instruments and symbols of tribal royalty made of wood, fiber, hide, feathers and ivory. A significant addition to the museum's growing collection of the ethnographic art of various continents, the objects represent the Bakuba, Hamba, Basonge, Dengese, Bajokwe, Bayaka, Basuke, Bapende, Mende, Balege, Dan and Yoruba tribes.

Lee Bronson, chairman of the board of the sportswear firm Bronson of California, was recently named to the N. C. Art Commission.

With a grant from the National Endowment for the Arts Living American Artists fund, matched by a grant from the N. C. Art Society, the museum purchased Ernest Trova's sculpture "Study for Falling Man: 48-Inch Landscape."

Trova, born in 1927 in St. Louis, has become famous for his creation of a featureless, armless, pot-bellied figure which he has said describes his view of modern man — "a flawed, fallen, imperfect and unfit creature who constantly needs technological boosts to maintain his equilibrium on the Wheel of Fortune, where he is alternately rising and falling."

Trova completed "study for Falling Man" in 1966. A tabletop-type sculpture of stainless steel and nickel-plated bronze, it includes four of the famous Trova-figures surrounded by cogs, arrows and other symbols of modern technology.

An untitled work by North Carolina artist Frank Faulkner was also purchased by the museum. It is a large, abstract collage on nylon completed in 1976. Faulkner, who has taught at the Governor's School and designed an outdoor wall mural for Winston-Salem, received both his bachelor's and master's degrees for the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

The museum acquired its third painting from the contemporary Washington (D. C.) Color School with the purchase of "Koald 56: Reflection of Jewels and a Grass-Mowing Sword" by Dan Brush. This acrylic painting on canvas was recently exhibited at the Coreoran Gallery of Art as part of an exhibition of the work of five Washington artists.

The museum's Judaic Art Collection was increased with the purchase of a silver Seder set, circumcision set, and pitcher, as well as a brass Seder lamp and Chanukah lamp.

The N. C. Art Society gave four works from the 39th Annual North Carolina Artists Exhibition (NCAE) to the museum. Among these was the NCAE gold medal winner, Gina Gilmore's oil painting "Love Letter to Levi-Strauss."
