Activities At Warren Plaza

By BESSIE FAUCETTE
A picnic at Satterwhite's Point on May 14 was quite an event for a group of residents of Warren Plaza Rest Home. After the picnic, the group enjoyed a bus tour of downtown Henderson.

Chuck Simmons, our activity director, is really keeping something going for our residents since we have the bus. A special thanks goes to Joe and Doris Eakes for making these enjoyable trips possible by purchasing the bus.

Many residents shared a visit with family and loved ones on May 15. Several residents from the Rocky Mount area had visitors.

The "cleaning and fixing up" is still going on at Warren Plaza. Many of our male residents are working outside with the beautification of the grounds. Some of the ladies are helping with the interior.

After a long, hard, cold winter, they want to get out and enjoy the fresh air and beautiful sunshine.

A late garden is being planned. We hope to get the land ready next week.

Our birthday girl of the week is Hattie Kilpatrick. She greatly appreciated the gifts she received.

Friday night at the movies was fun for the residents. Two movies were shown in the dining room and popcorn and Kool-Aid were served.

On May 21, the activity bus took off loaded with residents about 8:30 a. m. headed to Roanoke Rapids to the Pleasant Hill Rest Home to visit friends and go on a picnic at Gaston Lake. The food, scenery and sunshine is always enjoyed.

We have four new residents at Warren Plaza. They are Rona Baggett, Lucius Harrison, Lessie Thomas and Russell Page.

We regret the loss of Willie Swinson who passed away on May 21 about 10:15 a. m. He was a fine person and loved by all. Our loss is heavens gain.

Child Abuse Remains A National Problem

By KATIE FLEMING
Publicity Chairperson
For Warren County

Child abuse and neglect is a growing problem in Warren County, the state and the nation. Since July 1971, over 25,000 children have been reported and confirmed as being abused or neglected in North Carolina with at least 100 of these dying. It is estimated that 2,000 children die each year in the United States from neglect or abuse.

There is no way to tell how many more were abused or neglected that were not reported to the local Social Services Department as required by law.

The law says professionals must report whenever they suspect that a child is being abused or neglected. Other citizens must do so if they know that a child is being treated that way. How can you tell whether a child is abused or neglected?

Some common signs which might indicate that a child under 18 years of age has been or is being abused or neglected are:

1. Often hungry-not fed enough or when he needs food.
2. Usually unclean and unattended.
3. Inadequate or inappropriate clothing for the weather.
4. Sick, but his family has not taken him to a doctor for needed medical care.
5. Beaten, burned or injured in other ways.
6. Cringes every time you raise your hand or go toward him.

7. Seldom plays with other children, shy and withdrawn.

8. Frequently absent or tardy from school.

9. Given dangerous things such as drugs or alcohol or parents appear to use alcohol or drugs excessively which interferes with proper care.

10. Parents use extreme forms of punishment such as excessive shaking, locking him in a room or closet, striking him with objects such as belts, hairbrushes or electric lamp cords.

11. Parents explanation of what happened does not seem appropriate for the type of injuries the child received.

12. Parents seem to lack concern or interest in what the child is doing.

These are only some general indicators that abuse or neglect of a child is going on. Not only is it important to recognize some of these signs but also to realize that the parents are not monsters. Most parents want to be good parents.

Neglected and abused children may be found in families with problems, families under stress, or families in crisis — families unable to deal with life situations.

Abused and neglected children are found in families of every economic and social status, as well as in rural, urban and metropolitan communities.

Parents who abuse and neglect children need help, and early detection prevents serious problems.
