Public Hearings Prove Quiet Affairs For Commissioners

The Warren County Board of County Commissioners, prior to its regular meeting on Monday morning, held public hearings on Zoning, Subdivision Regulations and Building Codes.

The hearing on zoning began at 9 a. m. and lasted for about 20 minutes. The subdivision hearing began at 9:30 and continued until 10 a. m. when the hearing on building codes was heard during a session that lasted for less than 30 minutes.

At the beginning of the zoning hearing Extension Chairman L. B. Hardage told members of the Warren County Planning Board that he had favored county zoning for some time and feels that it is necessary. However, he said that he hopes that a number of farmers and other working people would be appointed to the board. Selby Benton, chairman of the board said that farmers were well represented on the board.

Roy Williford, representing Region K, was the principal speaker. He showed a map of the county upon which farm lands, and developments were shown in various colors, and explained several features of the zoning code, which is largely based upon a state model, with a few local changes.

Others in the audience explained a few items in reply to questions. Among these were Jesse Pegram, contractor, who spoke of the need of a book of requirements of the building codes, such as was in use in Halifax County, and Richard Roddy, a building supplier near Gaston Ferry Bridge, who explained requirements of having a licensed contractor, and told how a man could be his own contractor.

Around 20 persons, seemingly much interested in county planning, attended all three hearings, and no substantial objection was raised to any of the proposals.

Among those present was Floyd B. McKissick, Jr.,

Panic Is Blamed For Wreck In Which Motorist Injured

A young driver panicked while passing another vehicle on the Oine Road about three and three-tenths miles west of Norlina on Saturday night about 10 p. m. Janet Christine Vaughan of Rt. 1, Norlina, who had received her driver's permit only four days before the accident, was operating a car owned by Dennis Wayne Wiggins of Shank Street in Henderson.

Trooper A. M. Bennett said Miss Vaughan hit the left shoulder of the roadway while passing another vehicle, crossed back across the highway and ran into the ditch bank.

The trooper estimated damages to the Wiggins vehicle at $600. Wiggins was transported to Maria Parham Hospital for facial injuries and a possible concussion after his head struck the windshield during the mishap.

Pequita H. Clements of who said that he wanted to be certain that the Planning Board and Soul City were in complete harmony regarding zoning regulations. They appeared to be.

The commissioners took no action toward adoption of the codes, but thanked those present for their attendance and their interest. It is expected that the commissioners will give their approval at a later meeting.

Falkner Street in Henderson passed a vehicle operated by Randolph Jones of Rt. 2, Norlina, on Sunday night about 8:30 p. m. and immediately turned to exit the roadway on a ramp in front of the Jones vehicle. The accident was at I-85 and the Manson road.

Trooper Bennett reported that Jones attempted to swerve to avoid hitting the Clements vehicle but struck the right back portion of the car. Clements 1972 Chevrolet came to rest on the edge of the ramp while the Jones auto crossed the traffic island and stopped on the ramp.

Charges of failure to see safe movement were lodged against Clements and transporting broken sealed liquor against Jones.

Damages to the Clements auto were estimated at $110. No one was injured in the accident.
