Symphony Slated For Performance

The North Carolina Symphony will perform in Rocky Mount this year on Monday, Dec. 12, in the Rocky Mount Senior High School Gymnasium at 8:15 p. m. The concert will feature violinist Ruggiero Ricci.

John Gosling will conduct the orchestra for the evening concert.

Ricci's repertoire is said to be the largest of any violinist now before the public and includes some 60 concerti. He has performed more than 4000 recitals and concerts and has probably played more often for more people than any other living violinist.

American by both birth and training, Gosling is currently serving his sixth year as artistic director and conductor of the North Carolina Symphony. He has previously served in this capacity with several orchestras including the Erie Philharmonic and the Monterey Symphony Orchestra.

A popular guest conductor, he has appeared with a number of orchestras both in the U. S. and world-wide. Gosling is also the founder of "Music from Bear Valley," a festival held each year in California's High Sierra mountains.

Following its critically-acclaimed New York debut at Carnegie Hall in March, the orchestra begins this year its 46th season of concerts. The symphony, which presents performances to adults and educational matinees to North Carolina school children, is one of only three major orchestras in the entire Southeast. Last year it and its ensembles traveled more than 20,000 miles and gave more than 260 concerts.

For information on the concert or on tickets, contact Martha Farmer at 133 S. Harris Street, Rocky Mount or call her at 442-6215.
