

Council Discusses Accepting Depot

Norlina commissioners Monday night agreed in principle to a request that it accept the old Seaboard Depot, but took no official action on the request.

The board was told during its brief meeting by Leigh Traylor that Seaboard officials were ready to give away that station to an agency that could then tear the building down.

Traylor, who wants to see the area maintained as a park, told board members that Dr. D. R. Coffman had agreed to remove the station in order to salvage the wood.

The board said that some questions, such as the town's liability and the time it would require to remove the building, needed answering, and that it preferred to have a month's time to study the request.

The board was told that for tax purposes the railroad wanted to give the station to the town rather than to a private individual.

Also delayed Monday night, until it can meet with its attorney, was a board decision on a request that steps be taken to have police remove cars parked on private lots. The request came from Theo

Town Board

(Continued from page 1) on an emergency basis, that the water valve has been at its present location for many years, and that if the valve was moved, the water line from that point to the tank would become the responsibility of the town. The commissioners voted to table the matter.

Mayor White read a letter from Mrs. Mary Hunter, a member of the Warren County schools administrative staff, stating the need for volunteer workers in the schools, and expressing the hope that they could be found.

Mayor White also said that he had been told by Jack Harris, chairman of the board of county commissioners, that at a meeting of his board on last Tuesday night he had been instructed to sign a contract with Carolina Power and Light Company to provide current for the operation of the Warren County Waste Water Treatment at Warrenton and that he had subsequently signed such contract. Bill Neal said that work on the project was started Monday morning.

Mayor White said that a joint meeting of the Warren County Board of Commissioners and the Warrenton Town Board of Commissioners, had been requested by the county board and would be held in the town hall on Wednesday, Sept. 23, at 8 p. m. The purpose of the meeting is to consider a lease from the county to the town for the new Warrenton Waste Water Treatment Plant at Warrenton. Both Mayor White and Town Attorney Charles Johnson stressed the importance of all town commissioners being present at the meeting.

Hecht, who has been bothered in recent months by unauthorized cars parking in front of his place of business after hours.

The board agreed to proceed with plans to purchase a surplus state car for use by the police department.

The town clerk, Mrs. Mae Gums, read a letter to Mayor Bill Perry from Governor Jim Hunt announcing that Norlina had been designated a Community of Excellence for 1982.

Richardson Joins Agency At Norlina

W. Monroe Gardner announced this week the association of Gene A. Richardson with Gardner-Frazier Insurance Agency of Norlina.

Gene, a native of Norlina and a present resident of the Oine community, is a 1971 graduate of N. C. State University from the Agriculture Institute with an Associate of Arts Degree. He had previously served for six years as an agent for the North Carolina Farm Bureau's Warren County office, which he managed for the past five years.

Gene presently serves as president of the Warren County Bassmasters and the Oine Deer Hunting Club.

He is married to the former Debbie Potter of Bennettsville, S. C. They are members of Zion United Methodist Church, where Gene serves as Sunday School superintendent.

RICHARDSON

Mr. Gardner said that Gardner-Frazier Insurance Agency has been serving the area's needs in fire and casualty insurance coverages since 1967. This new association with Mr. Richardson will enable the agency to better offer its clients automobile, home and business protection as well as life, disability, and health insurance.

Wheat Yield Tops 100 Bushels

A yield slightly over 100 bushels per acre took the North Carolina wheat growing championship for the 1980-81 crop year.

Gary Herlocker, Rt. 6, Albemarle, won the title with a measured yield of 100.4 bushels per acre. Another Piedmont entry, that of T. G. and T. M. Angell's Angell Farms, Rt. 1, Mocksville, was runner-up with 94 bushels per acre.

Jill McSwain, Rt. 1, Norwood, made it a clean sweep for the Piedmont with a third place entry of 91.2 bushels per acre.

The winners, who receive cash and other prizes, were announced by Dr. Ronald E. Jarrett, crop science extension specialist at North Carolina State University.

Jarrett said the contest results "further substantiate the increased interest in improved wheat production that North Carolina farmers have shown in recent years."

The contest, Jarrett said, is held to encourage wheat growers to use all of the latest research information including new improved varieties, in order to produce profitable yields. The contest, conducted by the N. C. Agricultural Extension Service and local county extension agents, is sponsored by the N. C. Crop Improvement Association, Cargill, Inc., FCX, Plant Food Association of N. C., and Statesville Flour Mills.

Herlocker, in topping the 100-bushel mark, grew the Roy variety, which was developed at North Carolina State University and recently released by the N. C. Agricultural Research Service.

Herlocker seeded at the rate of 1 1/2 bushels per acre in late October. He used 300 pounds of 10-20-20 fertilizer per acre at planting and added 66 pounds of nitrogen in early February. He used the herbicides, 2, 4-D and Banvel for weed control.

Runnerup Angell Farms planted the Coker 747 variety, and third place winner McSwain planted the Coker 797 variety.

Other district winners in the state wheat growing contest follow: District 1 (Sandhills, northern and southern Coastal Plain), J. E. Martin III, Anson County, 75.1 bushels per acre; District 3 (eastern Coastal Plain and Tidewater), Calvin Swain, 86.3 bushels. All three state winners are from District 1 (Piedmont and Mountains).

Span Peedin, Johnston County, was runnerup in District 2 with a yield of 73.9 bushels, and Jack Williams, Duplin County, was third with a yield of 71.1 bushels.

Murray Berry, with a yield of 85 bushels, and Edward A. Sanders, with a yield of 79.9 bushels, finished second and third respectively in District 3. Like district winner Swain, they are Pasquotank County farmers.

Donations For Emergency Room Are Announced

Two donations to the Warren General Hospital operating room fund were announced this week by Lynn Origen, hospital administrator.

He said a $50 donation was received from Mrs. Joe Heid of Norlina and a $25 donation was made by the V. L. Pendleton Philanthropic Class of the Warrenton Baptist Church.

Mr. Origen also announced that the emergency room entrance at the hospital has been moved to the north end of the facility. He said this entrance is closer to the emergency room than the entrance formerly used.

Descendants Gather

Descendants of the late Andrew J. Moseley, who was born August 11, 1834, held their family reunion at the old Wise School on Sunday.

A family history was read, pointing out that of Mr. Moseley's 14 children, only one—Glenn Moseley of Wise—is still living.

Earl Moseley asked the blessing, and an afternoon of reminiscing and fellowship was enjoyed by approximately 75 family members and guests from throughout North Carolina and Virginia.
