Black Genealogy Workshop Planned

Applications are still being accepted for the second annual "Black Genealogy Workshop for Beginners," scheduled for Feb. 13 at the Archives and History/State Library Building in downtown Raleigh.

The day-long workshop, sponsored by the N. C. Archives, and agency of the Department of Cultural Resources, is designed to examine the types of records and the methods involved in searching for black roots.

Among topics to be considered during the day are "Introduction to the Archives," "Our Afro-American Past," "How to Trace Your Family" and "Oral History."

Also "Land Grants and Deeds," "Wills, Estates and Bonds," "Court Minutes, Census Records and Tax Lists," "Church and Cemetery Records," "Vital Statistics and Marriages" and "How to Compile Your Genealogy."

Staff for the workshop will be members of the professional staff of the Division of Archives and History.

Admission is open to the general public without prerequisite. Tuition is $5 per student.

Details and registration are available from Minnie P. Bridges, Archives and Records Section, 109 E. Jones St., Raleigh, 27611; or telephone (919) 733-3952.

Gainful Employment Seen

Grant Could Open Door

By TALMADGE H. EDWARDS, JR.

More handicapped adults in Franklin, Vance, Warren and Granville counties may get gainful employment as a result of a grant from the North Carolina Private Industry Council.

The Council has approved $12,965 in Title VII CETA funding to purchase equipment for the INCO Sheltered Workshop in Henderson, according to Douglas Dixon, area mental retardation services director. INCO is the combined operations of the old Lakeland Industries and Gaston Enterprises of Vance and Warren counties, respectively.

Dixon said the grant will go to purchase equipment for woodworking, industrial sewing, laundering services, automobile maintenance, buildings and grounds maintenance and other industrial type operations.

With appropriate, modern equipment and adequate training, more contracts with private businesses and industry are possible, Dixon stressed. He said he had positive responses from Old South Accessories, Laurens Glass, Burlington Industries, Wallace Cawthorne, Novo Biochemicals, and Vance-Granville Community College about work which could be contracted out to INCO.

The area mental health board authorized Dixon to use the $12,965 for equipment purchases in the seven categories of workshop activities at their Jan. 25 meeting.

The board also authorized Dixon to formally apply for available vocational rehabilitation funds to purchase an IBM electric typewriter, a copier and equipment to evaluate the potential and skill levels of handicapped clients at INCO.

Upon a motion by Bennie Ray Gupton, seconded by Dr. Charles Rollins, the board postponed action on proposed longevity pay, additional petty leave, and changes in overtime pay and sick leave provisions. Thomas McBride, area mental health director, said a staff committee suggested the changes.

Rollins, who is health director for Vance and Granville counties, noted mental health pay and fringe benefits are more like those of state agencies than local government agencies such as social services and health. He said he "got flack" when employees of his department learn their counterparts in other local agencies are receiving more pay and benefits.

"Are you going by everything the state has, or what local agencies have?" Rollins inquired.

McBride said he would like to keep salaries and benefits competitive with private and state agencies. He said multi-county area mental health programs are considered state subdivisions, and are neither county nor state.

According to the N. C. Local Government Commission, area mental health programs, like counties and cities, are subject to provisions of the Local Government Budget and Fiscal Control Act.

By law, the pay plan of an area mental health program cannot exceed that of the highest county plan in their service area.

McBride said longevity pay is not considered a part of any regular pay plan.

Bill Armstrong, alcoholism services director, discussed a drug use survey conducted among students in grades 7-12 of Vance County schools. He requested specific results be withheld until the Vance County School Board reviews survey findings.

The board also approved a number of purchase orders and budget revisions presented by Finance Officer David Harrison. An addition of $21,500 from 1981 legislative appropriations was made to the mental retardation services budget.

Victim Of Wreck Facing Charges

Andy Collins of Norlina was injured in an accident early on the morning of January 30 when a motorized bicycle he had allegedly stolen crashed into a laundromat door and he struck his head on a metal bar, according to Norlina Police Chief Romey Williams.

Williams said Collins will be charged with theft and property damage.

Reports indicate that the moped, owned by David Aycock of Norlina, was stolen from the parking lot of the old Norlina Bus Station, which is now a bar. According to reports, it was driven about two blocks to the laundromat by the suspect, who apparently attempted to drive the bike through the building's glass front.

Collins was knocked off the moped, and the crash caused about $200 in damage, Williams said.

According to reports, Collins left the scene. Norlina Police Sgt. James Champion later questioned Collins at his home and said Collins suffered cuts and bruises on his face as a result of the escapade.

Collins was questioned after a witness to the theft identified him.

The bike received $150 to $200 in damages, according to reports.

In a related incident, bartender Carolyn Handow was charged with selling alcoholic beverages after the legal closing hour of 1 a. m. at the Norlina bar from which the moped was stolen. Law enforcement officers raided the bar the same morning that the accident and theft occurred.

Church Appointed To Study Groups

RALEIGH — State Representative John T. Church of Vance County has been appointed to two study committees of the General Assembly's Legislative Research Commission.

Church has been named to help conduct the campaign financing and health occupational licensing studies being undertaken by the Legislative Research Commission.

The commission, a joint House-Senate body, is a key element in the legislative structure of North Carolina.

The campaign financing committee was established by a resolution of the 1981 General Assembly. It is examining the political campaign financing and reporting laws of North Carolina and will recommend any changes deemed necessary. A final report is to be made to the 1983 General Assembly.

The health occupational licensing group is making a special study of the need for additional licensing boards for health occupations in North Carolina. The study grew out of a proposal during the 1981 General Assembly to establish a state licensing board for medical radiation technologists.

In announcing the appointment of Representative Church to the Legislative Research Commission, House Speaker Liston B. Ramsey said: "John Church is an experienced and capable legislator. I am confident he will make a valuable contribution to the work of the Legislative Research Commission."

Church also currently serves as co-chairman of the Legislative Committee on Agency Review, a special group evaluating the performance of state government departments to make sure they are being operated efficiently and economically. The committee replaces the Governmental Evaluation Commission, sometimes known as the "Sunset Commission."

In addition, Representative Church is serving by appointment of Speaker Ramsey on the Urban Development Committee of the National Conference of State Legislatures.

Church, board chairman of Roses Stores, Inc. of Henderson, represents Caswell, Granville, Person, Vance and Warren Counties in the 13th House District. He is chairman of the House Committee on State Government and a member of the Committee on House Redistricting.
