BUDDY'S WORKSHOP Insulated Attic Still Needs Ventilation

If an attic is insulated, does it still need to be ventilated? Yes. Attic temperatures may range well above one hundred fifty degrees in summer. The insulation becomes heated to the extent the building does not cool off during the nighttime hours. Ventilation allows some of the heat to escape. Properly located ventilators will reduce the cost of air conditioning. If the building is not air conditioned, ventilators will reduce attic temperature during the day.

What is the significance of amperes where fuses and cartridges are concerned?

Fuses, cartridges and circuit breakers are given ampere ratings to match the wiring they are designed to protect. They shut off power to any circuit that is drawing too much power. The strip of metal that is visible inside fuses of the screw-in type has a low melting point. Too much current causes the strip to melt and the fuse "blows." The rating is important—and the importance is stressed by the warning that you should never replace a blown fuse with one that has a higher amperage. By the same token, you should never try to force a circuit breaker to stay on. The circuit breaker should not be reset until the cause of the problem has been determined and corrected.

Fuses of both screw-in type, which are less than 30 amperes, and cartridge type, 30 amperes and higher, are available in slow-blow designs. These are recommended because they allow temporary overloads.

THOUGHT FOR FOOD

By GOULD CROOK
Creamy Macaroni Salad

- 1 lb. ground beef
- 1 pkg. Hamburger Helper® mix for Cheeseburger Macaroni
- 3 cups hot water
- 1 pkg. (10 oz.) frozen green peas, thawed and drained
- 2 cups sliced celery
- ¼ cup sweet pickle relish
- ½ cup mayonnaise or salad dressing
- 1 tsp. dry mustard
- 2 tsp. lemon juice
- ¼ tsp. cayenne pepper

Cook and stir ground beef in 10-inch skillet until brown; drain. Stir in Macaroni, Sauce Mix and water. Heat to boiling, stirring constantly. Reduce heat; cover and simmer, stirring occasionally, 10 minutes. Mix peas, celery and relish in small bowl. Mix mayonnaise, mustard, lemon juice and cayenne pepper in large bowl. Stir ground beef mixture and vegetables into mayonnaise mixture. Serve immediately or, if desired, cover and refrigerate until chilled, at least 3 hours. 4-5 servings

A Cow As Big As An Elephant

Agricultural scientists, excited about the prospects for genetic technology that could produce entirely new sources of food, say they stand on the same threshold where aerospace researchers stood 30 years ago. The potential for Space Age advances in feeding mankind looms in the genetic secrets now being unraveled in university laboratories.
