Storage Facility Loans Available

The U. S. Department of Agriculture will resume approval of new applications for Commodity Credit Corporation farm storage facility loans, up to a total of $40 million. Secretary of Agriculture John R. Block said this will allow farmers to begin making their storage plans for 1982 crops. Loan disbursement will begin after Oct. 1, he said.

No storage facility loan applications made since Feb. 8 have been approved "to permit the department to review program regulations in light of changes in the legislation authorizing the program," Block said.

Now that this review has been completed, Block said the following modified requirements will apply:

--storage needs of loan applicants will be based upon the availability of storage for one year's production of wheat, feed grains or rice produced on farms participating in the acreage reduction program for those crops. The production of rye, soybeans, dry edible beans, peanuts, sunflower seeds, high moisture forage and silage will not be considered.

--new CCC storage loans will be limited to $25,000 per farmer. Loans will be considered for one-year's storage needs and will be repayable in five years. Loans will be available for building new storage structures and for remodeling existing structures but not for electrical, handling, or drying equipment. Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation county committees may approve loans for up to seventy percent of the eligible cost items. Ineligible items which are an integral part of the structure must be paid in full before loan disbursement.

--an extended interim rule requesting comments on the new eligibility requirements will be published in the Federal Register. All comments from the public concerning the
