

Agriculturally Speaking

By RUSSELL C. KING
County Extension Chairman

Warren County is full of small woodland owners. One of the biggest problems facing these people is what to do with trees on their property that are killed by insects and diseases, or blown over by storms. Many of these trees are large enough to cut into lumber, but there are not enough to make it practical to carry to a mill.

One solution is to saw the logs into lumber at the site. There are several commercially-made portable sawmills now available. They can be moved from site to site and some can be operated by one person.

Through a joint effort of the N. C. Agricultural Extension Service and the N. C. Forestry Service, a demonstration of this type of portable sawmill will be conducted in Warren County on September 28. If you are interested in more information, please contact me at the Warren County Agricultural Extension Service.

For Better Living

Summer Can Mean Art Fairs For Many

By MISS MARGARET J. WOODS
Associate Home Extension Agent

Summer means art fairs in many North Carolina cities and towns. Before you go, it's a good idea to think through your interests and how much you have to spend.

After all, since quality crafts require an investment of money, they also deserve an investment of time spent in study.

Look for publications featuring examples of good design. Study exhibits at museums and displays. Ask designers why they created particular items. If you're interested in a particular craft, try to learn as much as you can about its history and the processes involved.

Quality crafts are not cheap, but you can find good buys. The amount you spend will depend on the type of craft item in which you're interested.

To insure quality and protection for your investment, buy a signed piece or art work or ask for a card that documents the materials and techniques used.

The card should include the name and address of the craftsman. The producer of quality crafts cares about what happens to an object he or she has created and will appreciate genuine interest on the part of the buyer.

Warren Campers Honored For Work

By GEORGE W. KOONCE

Extension Agent, 4-H Eighteen of the 61 campers in the Warren County group attending Sertoma 4-H Camp near Winston-Salem last week were honored at an awards banquet ending the camp week.

Marc Rose, Natasha Boyd and Deborah Kersey each received Environmental Education Awards for outstanding participation in various Outdoor Living Skills classes; Carrie "Kikki" Hawkins and Anthony Richardson received Outstanding Beginning Swimming Awards; and Toiya Crump, Essie Huey, Erinn Johnson, Vonda Wilson, Mayline Degrafenread, David Hunter, Llywellyn Limer, Sean Carter and Frankie Johnson received Outstanding Participation Certificates in Dramatic Arts classes. Essie Huey received two different awards in Dramatic Arts, awarded by different instructors.

Also receiving awards included little Susan Talley who received "The Spirit of 4-H Award" from Advance Swimming Instructor Robert (Bobby) Hobbs Erwin. Hobbs also conferred the Advance Swimming Award on Mayline Degrafenread for her outstanding participation in class activities. Kennedy Richardson received the Outstanding Camper Award for the week from Warren County. Kennedy was the camper always found assisting others, giving service and exemplifying leadership and attitude as a positive example to others.

There are some who make comparisons by examples of chalk and cheese that seems to be quite different. This may be the prime example to use comparing the camp spirit of all the counties camping with us this year over those of last year. The friendship of Forsythe County and the togetherness of Camden, Currituck, Pasquotank and Perquimans counties was all cheese to us. During our week long stay we heard echoes from many campers that the Warren group is friendly and nice. We must be thankful to "little Susan" for leading the way.

Words and time will not permit us to tell of the fullness of evening singing and games, carnival, dancing, trip to Hanging Rock State Park for hiking, more swimming, and a picnic supper; the live and talented show production on stage with make-up and special lighting and nightly vespers; and the quiet look of that rock chapel on the hill. It was a delightful and fulfilling week.

Of all the adult volunteer counselors in the world, we must have had four of the best. To Mrs. Ann Crawford, Mrs. Portia Barnes, Mrs. Eva S. Holtzman, and Mrs. Johnnie Johnson; you were a rock in a weary land, a present help in time of trouble, victorious leaders of leaders. Many thanks for your volunteer hand in building the future leadership of Warren County, the nation and the world.

A special thanks to the Warren County 4-H Leaders' Association and its camping committee for underwriting camp bus transportation to the tune of $620.00. Also to R. H. Green Funeral Home and Insurance, T. Clayton, attorney and Harris-Turner Funeral Home for their financial support in camp transportation.

The motherly cooks employed by the camp during previous years were missed this year as management gave way to catering service. It didn't take long to tell the difference at meal time. The cold biscuits funny-looking eggs and bacon was enough for anyone to cry, "mama, mama, cook me something to eat."

Truly this year's camping was great for staff and facilities, and with just a little help to the State Extension Staff on food service evaluation and odds and ends here and there, things could be super, super for '63.

Don't Use Too Much

Oven Heat

To operate range or oven economically, use only as much heat as necessary for cooking jobs. Turn range units off three minutes and oven units off 15 to 30 minutes before end of cooking time.

Firemen Report

A Busy Month

Warrenton Volunteer Fire Department Chief Leon Cheek and eight members of the department attended the 92nd Annual N. C. Volunteer Firemen's Association meeting in New Bern recently.

Several tours, banquets, a fashion show and classes on fire-fighting procedures at Craven Community College made up the agenda.

Chief Cheek and four members of the department attended the N. C. State Firemen's Association meeting held in Greensboro recently and it proved to be equally educational and will assist in training fire-fighters in the most modern methods, according to Cheek.

During the New Bern meeting, plans were made for members of all companies in the association to sponsor an outing in their hometowns for surrounding fire companies to promote brotherhood and to exchange ideas.

Warrenton was chosen as the first company to sponsor an outing, which will be held Saturday, August 21 from 1-6 p. m. at the Starlight Palace in Warrenton.

An estimated 100 members will attend.

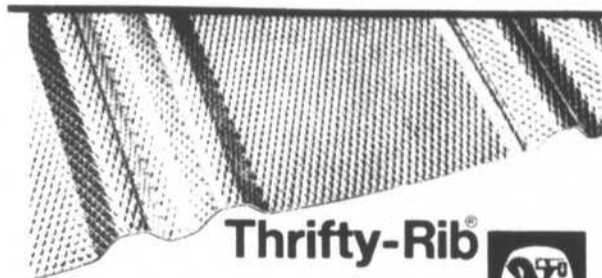

Food For The Multitudes

Marine researchers are raising a fish that—while two won't feed 5,000 people—holds promise as a source of food for multitudes. The fish is called Tilapia and is believed to be the same species spoken of in the New Testament when Christ fed 5,000 followers from five loaves of bread and two fish. Modern scientists are seeking to develop ways Tilapia can be raised and harvested as a crop.
