Local Homemakers Have Special Week

By MISS EMILY BALLINGER
Home Economics Extension Agent

Warren County Extension Homemakers Association members are joining other Extension Homemakers throughout North Carolina and the nation in observing National Extension Homemakers Week, May 6-12.

The purpose of the Extension Homemakers Association members are joining other Extension Homemakers throughout North Carolina and the nation in observing National Extension Homemakers Week, May 6-12.

The purpose of the Extension Homemakers Association is to provide education through programs to encourage and assist members in promoting higher standards of family living, homemaking and citizenship responsibility. Membership is open to all homemakers.

Extension Homemaker Clubs are educational organizations of the North Carolina Agricultural Extension Service and provide a means for providing up-to-date research based information to people in the county.

Topics of some of the current educational programs offered through the Warren County Extension Homemakers Association are "Food Safety," "Low Cost Decorating," "Stretching Food Dollars," "Selection and Use of Meats," "Picture Hanging," "Lighting," "Microwave Cooking" and "Clothing Tips," just to mention a few.

Extension Homemaker programs and participation are not all "cooking" and "sewing" as the organization is so often mislabeled. Homemaker groups provide a great opportunity for leadership development through serving as officers and program of work leaders on local, county, district, state and national levels.

Extension Homemakers, too, are actively involved in communities throughout the country by seeking to identify the needs of families and encourage the use of available resources, and encourage family and community participation to achieve a richer quality of living.

The eight Warren County Extension Homemaker Clubs have been very active during the past year in special activities through individual and club participation. Twelve homemakers completed a course in CPR, leaders participated in craft classes and in teaching crafts and members went on educational tours. Other projects in which clubs were involved were making cash contributions to rural fire departments, making and giving lap robes and other personal items to senior citizens in nursing homes and centers, one club had three volunteers who helped with Senior Citizens Olympics at one of the nursing homes, having fund raising projects to provide monies for club house repair and maintenance and other community improvement projects.

Several Extension Homemaker Club members serve as 4-H club leaders and Extension Homemakers were very involved in serving as hostesses for District 4-H Activity Day last summer.

As an international project five clubs sent hygiene kits to Kibuye Hospital in Giteza, Burundi, Africa. Last year clubs also collected 37,250 cancelled postage stamps for Stamp For Food project and sent them to the national collection center.

In observance of National Extension Homemakers Week, a committee put a window display in one of the local stores.

The present Extension Homemaker Clubs in the county and their presidents are: Churchill, Mrs. G. C. Robinson; Inez, Mrs. Clarence Davis; Macon, Mrs. James H. Boyd; Mayflower, Mrs. Geanie Perry; Olive Grove, Mrs. Raymond Fitts; Ridgeway, Mrs. Eliza B. Yancey; Triangle, Mrs. Louise Fields; and Zion, Mrs. Eleanor Hayes. If you would like to join one of the existing clubs or organize a new club contact one of the club members or Miss Emily Ballinger, home economics extension agent, or Miss Margaret Woods, Association home economics extension agent.

Cemetery Committee Seeks Contributions

The Warrenton Cemetery Committee is seeking contributions for upkeep from those who have family or friends buried in the cemetery.

According to Mrs. Annie Mae Alston, secretary of the cemetery committee, the cemetery grounds need to be cleaned up, mowed and trimmed.

"Labor is costly, and the cemetery cannot be kept respectful without funds," she said.

Those wishing to make contributions may send checks payable to "Warrenton Cemetery Committee" to Mrs. Alston at 426 W. Franklin Street, Warrenton, N. C. 27589.

The current cemetery committee, in addition to Mrs. Alston, is composed of: Georgia Mae Exum, chairman, Edith Wright, treasurer, Eleanor Ellis, Lucy Wortham, Elizabeth Hudgins, and John Freeman Harris.

"Irene Fitts and Dora Robbins are not with the committee now," Mrs. Alston noted, "but are due credit for service once rendered. Elnora Adams, Willie B. Anderson and Odell Hargrove were on our original cemetery committee and have passed on but are remembered for their valuable service."

Birthday Party Is Given Sunday

The family of J. W. Wilson of Warrenton celebrated his birthday on Sunday at the old Wise School.

Those attending were Mr. and Mrs. Jack Wilkinson, Mrs. Fran Satterwhite, Clyde Wilson, J. W. Wilson, Jr., and Larry Wilson, all of Stovall, Harvey Wilson of Oxford, 13 grandchildren and 10 great-grandchildren.

First Zoning Charleston, S.C., pioneered in historic preservation in the United States, in 1931 passing the first historic-district zoning ordinance.
