

Family Is Glad To Be Back Home

dialysis was necessary.

Meanwhile, Anne and the children lived in an apartment near the hospital. Tammy and Richard attended Hutch School, where up to 14 children of leukemia patients receive tutoring. They were taken on field trips and provided recreation opportunities. Anne met other couples from North Carolina at the center and they began a "N. C. family unit."

Now those long days are behind them and they are back in Warren County. "We know how E. T. felt," pointed out Anne. "We wanted to go home and everything we did was to get home."

At home "Boone wants to ride all around Warren County and see if it's still there," Anne said last week. "The kids want to talk to all their friends, go swimming, and see the dog," she added.

But being home will bring new problems. "Boone's immune system will not be normal for a year," Anne noted. He will have to take some precautions such as wearing a mask in a crowd, not being around people who smoke, and avoiding contact with people with colds. To prevent reoccurrence of childhood diseases, he will have to be very careful around school age children, who are natural carriers of such diseases.

"Boone will need to go back for the next three years for a week each for testing," Anne pointed out. He will go to the Veterans' Hospital in Durham for follow-up work.

"People will never know how much we appreciate the cards and gifts and how much we want to see everyone. We would have given up many times without the wonderful support from friends and family back home," Anne said.

Family members and friends provided hugs and shared tears when the family arrived home this week. Brother Sam had the biggest hug. Boone's homecoming was the reward for his weeks away from home and his efforts during the transplant procedure.

Now the family will try to go about life in a normal way again. One of the first things to do will be to take down the yellow ribbons and wipe a tear or two as they do.

Warren County Native Ends Air Force Stint

M/Sgt. Robert J. Young, Jr., a Warren County native, recently retired from the U. S. Air Force after 22 years of service.

During his military career, Young received numerous commendations including the Meritorious Service Medal, National Defense Service Medal, Republic of Vietnam Campaign Medal, and Longevity Service Award.

Since retirement, Young has attended St. Phillips College in San Antonio, Tex. on a full-time basis, majoring in air-conditioning and refrigeration technology. He completed his freshman year with honors.

He is also currently employed with the Engineering Division of the Audie Murphy Veterans Administration Hospital in San Antonio.

Young, a 1961 graduate of Norlina High School, is the son of Robert and Louise Young of Wise. He is married to the former Ruby Lashaway of Texas, and they have four children.

Man Is Awarded Silver Wings

Second Lt. James C. Blasingame, son of James and Dorothy M. Blasingame of 22 Eastern Shores, Littleton, has been awarded silver wings following graduation from U. S. Air Force navigator training at Mather Air Force Base, Calif.

Correction

Warren County High School inadvertently omitted the name of Wallace Allen, 11th grader, from the honor roll published in a recent issue of The Warren Record. Allen earned a place on the list for the final grading period.

Warren Successful In Reaching Goal

Warren County was successful in reaching its goal of $2,000 in the recent Heart Fund campaign, according to Sam Padgett of Warrenton, chairman of the Warren County Chapter of the American Heart Association.

"Although many people in the county contributed to making the campaign a success, there are several who are deserving of recognition for their outstanding service," Padgett said this week.

Five volunteers have been given Founder Awards for "distinguished leadership on behalf of the heart cause in North Carolina." They are: Bonnie Munn, Martha Nickless, Lynn Capps, Elsie Weldon and Melody Parker.

A certificate of merit was presented to Brad Carroll for stimulating public support in the fight against heart disease, and Becky Harris was presented an achievement recognition award for continued dedicated service to the association's programs.

Becky Green, Mae-belle Hueber, Gordon Knight and Padgett were presented certificates of appreciation, and Norlina Junior Woman's Club, Warrenton Rotary Club, and George Koonce, county 4-H agent, and county 4-H clubs were presented Outstanding Organization citations.
