From time to time individuals have an abundance of certain vegetables and fruits that they would like ideas on different ways to use them in food preparation.

The following recipes are ones that you may like to try.

Squash Pickle
4 qt. squash (yellow or zucchini)
2 qt. onions
½ cup salt
5 cups sugar
5 cups vinegar
1½ t. turmeric
1 t. celery seed
2 qt. cracked or crushed ice
2 t. mustard seed

Wash squash and slice in ¼-inch slices. Peel and slice onions. Mix squash, onions and salt thoroughly. Cover with ice; let stand 3 hours. Drain thoroughly. Combine sugar, spices and vinegar; heat just to boiling. Add drained squash and onion slices and heat 5 minutes. Pack hot squash and onions loosely into clean hot pint jars and cover with hot liquids ½-inch from top. Adjust lids. Process in boiling water for 5 minutes. Remove jars and complete seals if necessary. Set jars upright on a wire rack or folded towel to cool. Place them several inches apart.

note; Sugar may be reduced to 3 cups for less sweet pickle.

Spiced Cantaloupe
4 cantaloupes (about 9-10 pounds)
4 cups granulated sugar
2 cups distilled white vinegar
1 cup water
4 (3-inch) cinnamon sticks
1 T. whole cloves
1 T. whole allspice
Quarter melons; remove seeds and rind. Cut crosswise into ¼-inch thick slices. In saucepot, combine sugar, vinegar, water and spices tied in cheesecloth bag; simmer 5 minutes. Add melon and simmer 20 minutes, stirring occasionally. Remove spice bag. Continue simmering while quickly packing one clean, hot jar at a time. Fill to within ½ inch of top making sure vinegar solution covers melon. Cap each jar at once. Process 5 minutes in boiling-water bath. Make 5-6 pints.

Quasars' Power
Astronomers have observed certain objects beyond our galaxy which are so powerful that not even the combined fusion energy from billions of stars can account for their prodigious output of light and other types of radiation. Working with both observations and theories, astronomers have attempted to develop a model of the "engine" that powers these quasars and active galaxies. The model, which is most widely accepted, holds that a black hole lies at the center of the quasar or galaxy and is surrounded by a whirlpool of gas and dust, a so-called accretion disk.

To burn off the calories from one piece of apple pie, you need to walk for about an hour and 15 minutes.

New Visiting Artist Kim Irwin

Chapel Hill Resident Gets College Post

Kim Irwin of Chapel Hill, a mixed media visual artist, has been selected as the visiting artist at Vance-Granville Community College for the 1984-85 academic year, beginning in September. In that capacity she succeeds Ned Gardner, trumpeter / cornetist, who concluded his work at the college in June.

The visiting artist program is a cooperative venture between the Department of Community Colleges and the N. C. Arts Council and is jointly funded through an Arts Council grant. Its purpose is to stimulate an interest in and an appreciation of the arts in communities served by the Community College System.

Mrs. Irwin's work is abstract, and she has progressed from painting to fiber work to three-dimensional constructions, in which she includes readily available materials found in the city or rural environment. Included in her works is a collection of batik-dyed abstract quilts.

A graduate of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill with a bachelor's degree in fine arts, Mrs. Irwin served as an instructor in color and design and art appreciation at East Carolina University while completing her master's degree in fine arts. She has been an instructor in beginning painting and painting on fabric at the Art School, Carrboro, and in fiber crafts at N. C. Central University, Durham.

In 1980, the artist was awarded a full scholarship to participate in the six-weeks Fibre Interchange Program at the School of Fine Arts, The Banff Centre, in Banff, Alberta, Canada. Later, in the spring of 1982, she completed an outdoor sculpture commission for Artsplasure in Raleigh.

Mrs. Irwin was one of four recipients of the 1982 Artist Fellowship Awards made by the N. C. Arts Council. The award is an unrestricted grant of $5,000 to each artist. This grant provided the funds for a residency from January to May of this year at the Michael Karolyi Memorial Foundation in Vence, France, where Ms. Irwin created and exhibited her work.

Ms. Irwin's work is in the permanent collections of the Mint Museum of Art, Charlotte, and the IBM Headquarters in Charlotte. Her work has been included in exhibitions at the Renwick Gallery, Smithsonian Institution, Washington, D. C., the Mint Museum of Art, Charlotte (1978), at SECCA, Winston-Salem and the Walter Phillips Gallery in Banff (1980).

The visiting artist will be available throughout the year to present her work and to discuss her art form free of charge to schools, churches, civic clubs and other community-oriented organizations. Coordinators of all such organizations may call Ms. Irwin at Vance-Granville Community College to schedule presentations.
