License A Must For Day Caring

Warren County residents providing day care for children in their homes are reminded by the Warren County Department of Social Services that they may be in violation of North Carolina law if they are operating' without a license.

According to Leslie Womack with the local department, anyone keeping more than one pre-school age child to whom she is not related, is required to register with the state.

Day care is defined by law as any child-care arrangement under which a child less than 13 years of age receives care away from his own home by persons other than his parents, grandparents, aunts, uncles, brothers and sisters who are not minors, and guardians or full-time custodians.

According to Ms. Womack, there is no charge for registration.

For more information. contact Ms. Womack at the Department of Social Services on Ridgeway Street in Warrenton or at 257-3242 or the N.C. Office of Child Day Care Licensing, 1919 Blue Ridge Rd., Raleigh, N.C. 27607 or at (919) 733-4801.

Melissa E. Exum is shown in her office at the University of Maryland-Baltimore County, where she has been admitted to Graduate School to pursue her doctorate degree, majoring in Policy Sciences. She is the youngest person ever admitted to the program.

Native Of Warren Youngest In Program

Melissa E. Exum, a 1978 graduate of John Graham High School, has been admitted to the University of Maryland-Baltimore County Graduate School to pursue her doctorate. Her major area of study will be Policy Sciences, with a concentration in Evaluative and Administrative Policy. Miss Exum is the youngest person ever admitted to this program.

Policy Sciences is a new and fast-growing field of study which combines interdisciplinary education in the social sciences with training in policy-making. The objective is to provide students with a broad understanding of the complex of social, economic, and political forces within which the policy-making process occurs, as well as basic analytical and administrative skills that can be applied to policy

The Ph.D. program serves a small group of students who are carefully selected for their ability to pursue advanced studies in furtherance of careers in research or teaching, or in preparation for especially demanding positions in policy analysis, planning, and evaluation. According to a University of Maryland-Baltimore County spokesman, Miss Exum "brings to the program a strong background in research and evaluation and will be a definite asset to the program. She is well-known for her precision in applying basic research and methodology tools to practical problems in an effort to offer viable solutions to resolving them. She has done a significant amount of innovative research on a wide range of topics from Affirmative Action Programs in Higher Education to the Economic Consequences of Governmental Deregulation."

Miss Exum did her undergraduate studies at Wake Forest University in Winston-Salem, graduating in 1982 with a major in Sociology. She continued her education at the University of Maryland-Baltimore County, located in Catonsville, Md., where she was awarded a Masters Degree in Medical Sociology, graduating Summa Cum Laude. While in this twoyear program she was a graduate teaching assistant, teaching one section of the basic introductory sociology course the first year. In her second year she became the youngest person to teach Research Methodology and Statistics at the graduate level.

Currently, Miss Exum is the resident director of a residential facility on campus. Her responsibilities include the direct supervision and management of a staff of 30 persons and a dormitory which houses 400 students.

The university spokesman noted that Miss Exum "is well-known not only for her academic excellence but also for her willingness to help others. She is considered as a positive role model for the students, and held in high esteem throughout the university community."

Miss Exum is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Exum of Warrenton, and the granddaughter of Mrs. Bessie Jones and the late Hinton Jones.

Evaluation Nearing

By GAREY BALLANCE

The week of Jan. 21 will mark the halfway point of the second trimester at Warren County High School. It will also mark the halfway point of the 1984-85 school year. With the end of the first half of this trimester, students will receive midterm evaluations. Parents will be notified as to when we will be having parent/teacher conferences.

The Eagle basketball teams, coming off a busy schedule last week, had only one game this week. That was on Tuesday when they traveled to Northampton West to meet the Hurricanes. Tuesday, Jan. 22, the Eagles will be at home to Southeast Halifax and Friday, Jan. 25, we will play Northampton East.

We wish the Eagles good luck in their upcoming contests. We would also like to reognize the varsity boys' team which is 13-2, 4-0 in the conference and rated one of the best in the state.

At Norling School

Reports To Go Out

Progress reports will be given to students to take home on Jan. 24. During this week, Norlina teachers will be contacting the parents of those students who are failing or who are not working up to their

As this progress report will mark the halfway point of the year, it is an important time for assessing student performance and parent conferences will be scheduled in January.

The game which was scheduled for Jan. 10 will be rescheduled. It was called off because of snow. Upcoming games include: Jan. 16 (today) at Weldon; Jan. 21 against Chaloner (home), and Jan. 23 against Gaston (away).

We are happy to announce that the Blue Waves boys' team has won both of its games this season. The score of the Conway game was 32 to 30. The score of the John Graham game was 38 to 30. These games were played on Jan. 7 and 14 respectively. We are proud of the work our athletes and coaches have done and wish to congratulate them on a job well done.

Two From Here Named On Lists

Two students from Warren County have been named to honor lists for academic achievement at Nash Technical College during the fall quarter.

Burnedette Lee of Warrenton, a general education major, was one of 49 students making the Dean's List.

Named to the Honor Roll was Marsha West of Warrenton, a general education student.

Correction

The Warren Record incorrectly reported last week that the Warren County Board of Education had voted to send two of its members to California for a convention of school board members.

The board actually voted to send no delegates to the convention.

The Warren Record regrets the error.
