Surplus Food Giveaway Planned

The Warren County Department of Social Services will again distribute U.S. Department of Agriculture surplus foods on Wednesday, March 27, at the National Guard Armory in Warrenton.

According to Social Services Director Julian Farrar, rice, enriched flour, cheese, milk and honey will be distributed.

The items are available to low income families with income at or below the following gross income scales: $540 a month for a family of one; $728 a month for a family of two; $917 a month for a family of three; $1,105 for a family of four.

Distribution is expected to begin at 8:30 a.m. and to end around 3 p.m. or when all items have been distributed.

Persons who receive food stamps must show their current Food Stamp identification card before receiving food items. Anyone picking up food for another person must show that person's Food Stamp ID Card. The recipient's name must appear on the current Food Stamp printout.

Persons who do not receive food stamps will have to sign a form at the distribution site declaring their amount of monthly income, which must not be in excess of the amounts already cited.

Anyone picking up food items for an invalid or housebound individual must bring a signed statement from that person giving authorization for the food to be received by the representative.

At Warrenton's High Dollar Warehouse

Eighth Annual Hee Haw Performance Set

The eighth annual Hee Haw has been set for May 11 at High Dollar Warehouse on Franklin Street in Warrenton.

Plans are underway for the largest attendance ever as inquiries and requests from the public have been overwhelming, according to Linda Carter, publicity chairman.

A spinoff from CBS's televised Hee Haw Show, the local rendition originated in 1977, and has expanded each year to become Warren County's largest country music and comedy show.

Efforts are made to select most performers from the local area, with few exceptions made in the search for musical talent. Comedy routines are always local personalities imitating Hee Haw stars.

"Hee Haw — Warren County" has improved with age, Mrs. Carter noted. Many changes have been made through the years to improve the show and the production. Additional and suspended sound systems, rearrangement of performance stage, addition of a second stage for "skits," and improved parking facilities were added last year. Among the changes this year will be bleachers to complement seating capacity. Space will also be allowed for those wishing to bring their own chairs.

Approximately 700 people attended the show last year. Sponsors anticipate a larger turnout this year, and are making this announcement early to avoid conflicts with other community activity schedules.

Mrs. Carter urges everyone to mark the calendar now for an evening of family entertainment. Hotdogs and baked goods will go on sale at 5:30 p. m.; show starts at 7:30 p. m. Admission is $2.00 under twelve, $3.00 twelve and over. All proceeds will benefit the Afton Elberon Volunteer Fire Department.

Many Customers Are Now Paying With Bank Drafts

Approximately 36,000 Carolina Power and Light Company customers pay their electric bills each month without lifting a finger.

They save time and postage or gasoline by participating in CP&L's bank draft program — an optional, free service in which customers' electric bills are paid automatically from their bank accounts.

"Many people like the convenience of not having to drive to the office or mail in the payment," said CP&L Warrenton area manager James E. Parnell. "And they know that if they are away from home, their bill will still be paid on time."

Customers select the date that their electric bill will be deducted from their bank account. It can be as early as five days after the billing date and up to and including the past due date, Parnell explained. Customers on the program still receive a monthly statement from CP&L which shows how much electricity was used and how much it cost.

"If a customer has a question about his or her bill," Parnell said, "we will make sure that the bank doesn't draft the account until the question has been answered. We just ask that the customer talk with us at least four workdays before the draft date."

The utility company's manager said CP&L is offering the bank draft option as a service to customers and as a way to hold down its administrative costs.

The local CP&L office has more information about the draft payment plan.
