Softball and baseball fields have been completed at Warren County High School and work is under way on the football field, thanks to the efforts of the Warrenton Unit of the N.C. National Guard. Grading equipment from the unit, shown above, was a familiar sight at the school for two weeks during July and August. "We're pleased that the Guard has seen fit to help us out," Warren County Schools Superintendent Michael F. Williams said this week, "and we appreciate their effort."

Late Summer Is Time To Plant Fescue

By DAVID HARRISON District SCS

Whether you are seeding a pasture or grassed waterway, late August to September is the best time to seed fescue and other cool season grasses. Temperatures are still warm enough to get the seed started and there's plenty of growing time to get a good root system established before hard freezing weather sets in. If you wait until November or December to seed fescue you run a danger of frost heaving the seed out of the soil and also suffering winter kill.

To insure a good stand of fescue you need more than just seed. A newly constructed waterway or highly eroded land is a hostile environment for seed. It's usually highly acid, low in fertility and low in moisture. A soil test will show how much lime and fertilizer should be applied. The surface should be roughly prepared. If it's pulverized to powder, it will wash away with the first rain. Seed can be broadcast over the land. A good, extra step is to come back over the seeded area with a cultipacker to provide good seed-soil contact. Seed can be drilled but you should follow the contour of the land to prevent excessive erosion. A newly seeded waterway should also be mulched with straw or hay to cover about 75 percent of the surface. The mulch cushions rainfall and holds moisture on the surface to benefit the seed. Plastic netting can be used to hold the mulch in place in the center of the waterway and prevent it from blowing or washing away. The cost of netting, properly installed, is cheap when compared to the cost of repairing a grassed waterway.

be difficult but are needed to extend the life of the waterway. The best time to fix a wash is when it happens before it gets bigger. Smooth and fill the eroded area, then seed and mulch. If the wash has grown, you may have to bring in a farm pan to reconstruct part of the waterway. Mulch and netting are useful in helping grass become re-established in repair areas. Don't ever drop rock or junk in a wash. This often accelerates erosion and widens the gully. Rock rip-rap can be used in some places to control high velocity run off but should be carefully designed and installed. Most grassed waterways on farms are better off without rock.

Black Hole

Astronomical observations reported recently reveal an enormous amount of material concentrated near the heart of our Milky Way galaxy providing strong new evidence for the presence of a black hole there. Black holes are believed to be the power behind quasars, massive objectives more luminous than the brightest galaxies in the universe. They have a gravitational pull so great that nothing, not even light, can escape.
