Families Receiving AFDC Funds May Be Affected By Changes

RALEIGH—North Carolina families receiving AFDC (Aid to Families with Dependent Children) could be affected by changes in the federal assistance program. The changes, which are now in effect, are the result of Congressional action taken on October 22, 1986.

"Under the changes, an 18 year old parent may apply for AFDC in her own name," said Mary Deyampert, director of the state division of social services. "The income of her parent or legal guardian is not counted when she applies for AFDC. This is true even if her parent or legal guardian lives in the same home or they also get AFDC."

"The other changes in the law affect the way the income of a stepparent or a parent or legal guardian is counted," according to Deyampert. "The first $75 of earnings will not be counted, regardless of whether the stepparent, parent or legal guardian is employed full or part-time."

State Social Service officials say clients whose AFDC payments were denied or cut off because of the old law may be eligible for payments back to October 22, 1986. Some individuals who are not eligible for back payments may now be eligible for AFDC under the new law.

Individuals who have not received notice of the changes, and believe they are affected by the new law, should immediately contact their county department of social services. In order to determine an individual's eligibility for back payments, they must contact the county department of social services by December 1, 1987. For additional information, they may also contact the N.C. Department of Human Resources' CARE-LINE at 1-800-662-7030 or their local legal services office.

Former John Graham Principal Leaving Post In Person County

Thomas J. Brown of Roxboro, who served as principal of Warrenton's John Graham High School in the early 1960's, has resigned as principal of Person Senior High School, closing the book on a public education career of more than 30 years.

Ronnie G. Bugnar, Person County superintendent of schools, said that Brown tendered his resignation to be effective June 30. Brown has been employed with Person County schools for 24 years, coming to Roxboro from Warren County in August 1963, as principal of Roxboro High School. He continued as principal at the high school when it became Person Senior High School in 1969.

Bugnar praised Brown's service to the Person County schools, saying, "Anyone who has stayed in one place that long and served as well as he had, deserves a tribute."

Brown said the reason for his stepping down "is that there comes a time in every man's life when he has to make a move. And I thought that it was the best time at this time for me to make a move. I've reached the age where I think I would like to do something else with my life."

Brown, a native of Charlotte, earned a master's degree in school administration from the University of Illinois.

He was principal in the Warren County school system for two years before moving to Person County. Earlier, he had served as principal of West Davidson High School, from 1958-61, in Davidson County, and as principal of Chester Junior High School in Chester, S.C. from 1952 to 1958.

Brown's wife, Ginny, teaches health and physical education at Southern Junior High School. The Browns have two adult children, Mike, who lives in Raleigh, and Jayne, a nurse, who lives in Greenville.
