New Forestry Equipment Goes Into Service In Warren County

The N. C. Forestry Service in Warren County recently received new fire-fighting equipment that was much needed.

The service now owns a Case Model 1150 diesel tractor furnished with a fire plow, along with an International truck-tractor and a "low-boy" style trailer for hauling the equipment.

According to Allen Norwood, forest ranger at the local service, the new equipment will help the Forestry Service reduce the time it takes for them to respond to a fire. Until now, the service had to wait for a plow to come from Louisburg.

The machinery will be housed behind the local station near the fire tower in Liberia off N. C. 58. It can be used to clear a fire line to halt an advancing forest or brush fire. It can also be used for controlled burning applications. Norwood said that the equipment has already been put to use by the service to install fire lanes.

The funds for the equipment were appropriated by the 1987 General Assembly. The total cost for all the machinery was estimated at $142,000.

Indian Affairs Posts Given Warren Residents

Two area residents have been tapped by the N.C. Commission of Indian Affairs for positions of responsibility, James S. Lofton, secretary to the commission, announced recently.

Roland H. Hedgepeth of Warrenton, chairman of the Haliwa-Saponi Tribal Council and member of the board of directors of the Bethlehem Recreation Commission, has been appointed to the N.C. Commission of Indian Affairs.

The commission provides services for the state's 65,000 American Indian citizens and is an advocate for their rights.

Ralph Evans, of Hollister, is one of 11 Indian parents to be recommended to serve as a member of the newly-created State Advisory Council on Indian Education.

Established by the General Assembly in July, the council will advise the State Board of Education on ways to effectively meet the educational needs of Indian students in the state and advocate meaningful programs to reduce, and eventually eliminate, low achievement and high dropout rates among the state's Indian students.

North Carolina's six tribes—Cherokee, Coharie, Haliwa-Saponi, Lumbee, Meherrin and Waccamaw-Siouan—and three major urban concentrations in Charlotte, Greensboro and Fayetteville, comprise the largest Indian population of any state east of the Mississippi.

The Commission of Indian Affairs is housed in the N.C. Department of Administration.
