LINCOLN ASSASSINATED FORTY-ONE YEARS AGO

By Wire to The Sentinel. WASHINGTON, April 14.—It will be forty-one years tonight that Abraham Lincoln, president of the United States, was shot and fatally wounded by John Wilkes Booth, while witnessing a performance of "Our American Cousin" in Ford's theatre, in this city.

It was on good Friday, the 14th of April, 1865, that the country, rejoicing over the conclusion of the Civil war, which had cost so many precious lives and enormous sacrifices of money, was plunged into darkest gloom by the hands of a fanatical assassin. On the morning of that eventful day President Lincoln had the first opportunity in many months to have a long talk with his eldest son, Captain Robert Lincoln, who had been serving on the staff of Gen. Grant, father and son breakfasted together at the White House and there had a long talk concerning the profession which the young staff officer was to adopt.

Later in the forenoon President Lincoln attended the last meeting of the cabinet. All the members were present, excepting Mr. Seward, the secretary of state, who had broken his jaw in falling from his horse a short time before. Not a single one of the members of President Lincoln's cabinet is now living. Gen. Grant was present by invitation and occupied the vacant seat of Secretary Seward.

The situation after the close of the war was discussed, and President Lincoln spoke with kindness of Gen. Lee and expressed himself strongly against harsh measures in the South. The terms of Lee's surrender were fully approved. During the afternoon the president received many visitors and toward evening he was tired out. He did not wish to go to the theatre, but did not want to disappoint the people who were sure to crowd the house, as it had been announced that President Lincoln and General Grant would attend the performance.

Just before starting for the theatre, President Lincoln paid his customary visit to Secretary Stanton, at the war department. It just happened that the president, while returning to the White House, accompanied by Secretary Stanton, referred to the secretary's often expressed fear that some assassin would seek the life of the president. Mr. Lincoln said he was confident that his guards would not allow an assassin to get at him and, even if some fanatic should succeed, he would be able to escape with his life.

GOVERNOR RETURNS FROM WASHINGTON

Special to The Sentinel. RALEIGH, April 14.—Gov. Glenn returned this morning from Washington, where he says he effected preliminary settlement of differences between the accounts of the United States War Department and North Carolina National Guard that will result in saving several thousand dollars to the North Carolina guard.

While in Washington Governor Glenn attended sessions of congress and heard the discussion of Southern fast mail appropriation. He says he found Democratic forces in splendid trim and the prediction is freely made and not denied by Republicans that there will be big Democratic gains in the next congress.

LEAKAGE OF NAVAL FACTS ANNOYING.

By Wire to The Sentinel. WASHINGTON, April 14.—Members of the Naval General Board and of the Army and Navy Board were much surprised, if not shocked, to discover that one of their confidential communicators has become the subject of a congressional document. Reports were recently made in regard to the projected defenses of the distant Midway Islands. A marine officer was sent to the place to make a survey and to formulate a plan of fortification, the details of which were to be guarded as a secret governmental plan, a condition attaching to other insular defence propositions. It was, therefore, with surprise that the naval general board discovered that this report in complete detail, even down to the identification marks of the typewriter, had been reproduced as a house of representatives document. Foreigners and others, who wish to know what this government intends to do in the way of insular defence, so far as the Midway Islands are concerned, will have no trouble in getting at what they wish to know.

These gentlemen reported that the Hardin bankruptcy case, which has been on trial for more than a week, was continued by Judge Boyd until the June term of the federal court at Greensboro. The jurors were instructed not to discuss the case and allow no one to talk with them about it. The case was continued in order to permit Judge Boyd to hold court at Statesville next week. It has been said that the drum was the first musical instrument in use, but how anyone discovered that it is a musical instrument is still a mystery.

Gorky, it is understood, is much impressed with Mitchell's mastery efforts in behalf of labor and earnestly desired to see the mine leader. MEETING OF GEORGIA DEALERS IN MARBLE

By Wire to The Sentinel. ATLANTA, April 14.—Retail marble dealers from all parts of the state are assembled here in compliance with an invitation sent out to all parts of Georgia, to attend a convention of marble men, which will meet at the Piedmont hotel this afternoon. The purpose of the meeting is the perfecting of an organization to further the interests of the marble men, and many matters of great importance will come up for consideration and discussion. It is expected that the elections of officers and the adoption of a constitution will be the principal routine duties. Great advantage in the securing of reasonable freight rates, the establishing of standard prices, the fixing of certain grades of stone, etc., are expected to result from this convention.

Georgia comes third in rank among the marble producing states of the world. It is mined throughout the world for some of the fine grades of marble quarried there. Examples of these marbles are found in some of the most magnificent structures in Washington and other large cities of the country. While Georgia is third in point of actual output, Vermont leading and New York coming next, it is probable that this state is the richest in the amount of marble deposits which have not yet been developed. A preliminary meeting for registration and other purposes was held this forenoon. The attendance is very large and among those present are some of the most prominent marble men of the various sections of the state.
