Age referred to the taxable property in Winston-Salem last year than in any other city of the state that more new houses were built in the Twin-City during the year.

Just issued by the census of the United States government to which was made reference in the letter to the Observer yesterday, shows that Winston leads every city in the state in the value of manufactures.

In the item of wages paid the seven cities in the list stand as follows, Winston leading in this respect also: Winston, $985,596; Asheville, $228,794; Charlotte, $693,482; Greensboro, $338,671; New Berne, $276,070; Raleigh, $225,787; Wilmington, $632,966.

Winston shows a substantial gain since 1900 in every item, while Asheville and Charlotte show decreases in the number of wage-earners and New Berne a decrease in several items.

Several industries that were not reported for Winston in 1900 appear in the census of 1905, this showing that Winston is going ahead rapidly in the line of diversified industries.

The girls are Paula Desmond, a friend of White, and Hattie Forsythe, who is said to have some knowledge of the Nesbit affidavit. "Billy" Sturgis, an intimate friend of Thaw, is another the prosecution would like to interview. The district attorney has heard that Thaw frequently threatened White in Sturgis' presence. It has been further learned that they will try to prove, through a large number of witnesses, that their client was not merely the victim of short intervals of emotional insanity but had suffered for years a peculiar form of dementia known only to a few intimate friends.

WHO WANTS FIRST PANAMA CANAL BONDS?

By Wire to The Sentinel. WASHINGTON, July 9.—Who wants the first United States bond to be issued to provide money for construction of the Panama Canal. Fancy bidding on this particular bond is expected because of historical interest it will have in the future. Bids on bonds are coming in rapidly but at present they are from small prospective investors. Big banks have not yet come forward. They are waiting to figure their bids down to the last decimal. Every confidence is manifested at the treasury department that the issue will command a premium but there are as many opinions almost as there are officials as to what will be the amount of that premium. The best opinion is that they will sell between 103 and 104.

GOV. R. B. GLENN ON TEMPERANCE.

Addressed An Audience That Filled Elks' Auditorium Last Night.

The Governor Declared That He Is In Favor of State Prohibition And Gave Reasons For His Position On This Question.—Mr. Glenn Spoke With His Accustomed Force And Earnestness And Held Close Attention of Audience.

A large audience gathered at the Elks' Auditorium last night to hear Governor R. B. Glenn's address on "Temperance, Law and Order." This was the first opportunity his home people had had of hearing the governor since his election and the occasion was an especially interesting one because of this fact.

The exercises were opened with an earnest prayer by Dr. H. A. Brown. After the singing of a hymn Mr. Henry E. Fries arose and in appropriate language introduced the speaker of the evening, referring in a fitting manner to Governor Glenn's public services.

The governor began his address by referring in a feeling manner to his love for Winston-Salem and her people. He stated that the idea of state prohibition was not a new one with him as some seemed to think and reviewed his course with reference to the whiskey question since 1881. He contended that local option did not furnish a full solution of the whiskey problem and gave his reasons for this statement.

The speaker then considered the various objections to prohibition. With reference to the argument that visitors cannot be induced to go into a dry town he said that a man who went into a town merely because he could get whiskey there was not a desirable visitor, to say the least, and that such people should not be welcomed.

"It is argued by some that prohibition hurts business," said Governor Glenn. He replied to this by saying that, if whiskey helped business, railroads and other corporations would encourage the whiskey habit instead of doing the reverse. He referred to the action of the members of the Liquor Dealers' Association in a recent meeting in Washington in pledging themselves not to employ men who drink whiskey.

In referring to the argument that prohibition does not prohibit the speaker said no law prohibits altogether. He contended that, if the officers would do their duty, there would be much less talk about prohibition not prohibiting. He referred to Kansas and Maine, saying that state prohibition was successful there and that those states had been benefited by it.

Governor Glenn contended that the argument that high license made taxes lower was not entitled to consideration because it was putting on a monetary basis a question that was not a question of money.

In conclusion Governor Glenn gave figures showing the large amount of money spent in this country, State and city for whiskey last year. The speaker expressed the belief that in ten years North Carolina would be a prohibition state. In conclusion he urged his hearers to stand by him in his efforts for prohibition and other things, to help rather than to criticize.

The governor spoke last evening in his customary earnest and forcible manner and his address was attentively listened to with much interest by the large audience.

After the address a collection was taken up, a hymn sung and the benediction pronounced.

Special to The Sentinel. RALEIGH, N. C., July 9.—Secretary Taft will arrive at Greensboro this evening where he will deliver an address to delegates of the Republican State convention and others. His appearance is regarded by many as the initial step in the opening of his campaign for the presidential nomination. The secretary will not remain long enough to witness the efforts to be made tomorrow for control of party organization by two warring elements.

The "organization" or administration crowd led by federal office holders principally is in control at present but the "insurgent" crowd led by Congressman Blackburn is strong and will make a desperate effort to wrest control and make Blackburn state chairman. Blackburn and his followers are said to favor Fairbanks for president. It is reported that if resolution is offered favoring Taft, there will be a contest over its adoption.
