

NEWS ITEMS REPORTED FROM RALEIGH TODAY

(Special to The Sentinel.) RALEIGH, Aug. 31.—This morning the keeper of Puller park near the city found a horse and a buggy in a six-foot ditch between the park and the railroad track. The horse was helpless from injuries received in the fall and the buggy was badly broken. From the tracks it appeared that they had been in the ditch all night. There was a man's woolen hat near the ditch, but nothing to give a clue to the ownership of the turnout. And the strictest investigation today has brought no further information. It is thought that the horse will recover. A large number of students passed through Raleigh this morning on their way to Wake Forest to enter college for the ensuing term. The prospect is that the attendance will tax the capacity of the college.

Mr. Edward L. Conn, who has been connected with the local department of the News and Observer for two years or longer, went to Wake Forest College this afternoon to take a course in law or theology, being undecided as to whether he will enter the Baptist ministry or the profession of law. The Seaboard Air Line Railroad Co. has instituted injunction proceedings against Percy J. Olive and others of Apex to prevent them from interfering with steps of the Seaboard Air Line and the Durham & Southern for the construction of a union depot at Apex. The case will be heard by Judge James L. Webb at Lillington next Monday. A remarkable feature is that some months ago Olive and others petitioned the Corporation Commission to compel the two roads to join in the union station, and now after the roads are proceeding to that end the defendants in the injunction case threaten litigation and other hindrances to the work. The fight is over the right of way occupied by the Seaboard and used with their permission for many years by Olive and those associated with him.

BRYAN ADDRESSES THOUSANDS AT THE MADISON SQUARE GARDEN

NOTED NEBRASKAN DELIVERS SPEECH IN NEW YORK IN WHICH HE DISCUSSES VARIOUS PROBLEMS.

He Declares Socialism Is a Theory Which Does Not Take Human Nature into Account; Says Democratic Party Is Best Defender of Property and Human Rights; Denounces Plutocracy and Says That Drift of Sentiment Is Getting to Be Toward Government Ownership of Railroads -- Bryan Left New York This Morning For New England Trip.

(By Publishers' Press.) NEW YORK, Aug. 31.—With his deflection in his speech last night in favor of government ownership of railroads Bryan threw a bombshell into the camp of the "conservative" wing of the Democratic party. Among those who have been accustomed to consider themselves the elite in shaping the party's policy it is quietly admitted today that they were far from pleased with Bryan's bold utterance on the subject. It is known, too, that every effect of the conservatism was exhausted in the endeavor to persuade Bryan to omit the subject from his speech. The would-be censors, however, failed utterly in the attempt to silence the Nebraskan.

In his speech, while not formally advocating government ownership of railroads as a Democratic policy for the next campaign he stated that the seeming disregard of railroads in many cases for the rights of the people would lead, if not checked, to a demand for government ownership. Among other things Mr. Bryan advocated control of the trusts, tariff for revenue only, income tax and abolition of special privilege.

Before Mr. Bryan began his address Governor Foak of Missouri, and Mayor Tom Johnson, of Cleveland, Ohio, spoke. Bryan, feeling well after the rousing welcome left here at 10 o'clock this morning for his trip through Connecticut. A delegation of prominent Democrats from that state were present to take charge of him. Bryan will start for the West with the Nebraska delegation Sunday evening.

Will Speak in Ohio. NEW HAVEN, Conn., Aug. 31.—Bryan will swing around the circuit in the coming Ohio campaign, and will speak in the principal cities in the Buckeye state. The Nebraskan gave assurance today to former Congressman John Lentz, of Columbus, Ohio, and Samuel A. Hoskins, who is candidate for secretary of state in Ohio, that he would aid in the Buckeye campaign and make several speeches some time after the middle of September.

Extracts from Bryan's Speech. Following are given the closing paragraphs of Mr. Bryan's speech: Socialism a Theory. Socialism represents a theory, but a theory which in my judgment does not take human nature into account. Its strength is in its attack upon evils the existence of which is confessed. Its weakness is that it would substitute a new disease—if not a worse one—for the disease from which we suffer. The Socialist is honest in the belief that he has found a remedy for human ills, and he must be answered with argument, not with abuse. The best way to oppose Socialism is to name the abuses which have grown up under individualism, but which are not a necessary part of individualism, and the sooner the remedy is applied the better. As I was leaving I would feel forth my reasons for opposing the Socialist doctrine that the Government should own and operate all the means of production and transportation; my observations during the past year have strengthened my convictions on the subject. Because I am anxious to preserve individualism I am earnest in my desire to see the trusts exterminated, root and branch, that the door of opportunity may be open to every American citizen. On another occasion I shall call attention to the rapidly growing expenditures of the federal government. But at this time I desire to center your thoughts upon the overshadowing evil of the day—the trust—with the plutocratic tendencies that result therefrom. It demands a remedy, and the people are prepared to administer better treatment. The Democratic party offers a solution which is both reasonable and adequate, a solution in which time-honored principles are applied to new conditions.

The Democratic party is not the enemy of property or of property rights. It is, on the contrary, the best defender of both because it defends human rights and the human rights are the only foundation upon which property and property rights can rest securely. The Democratic party does not menace a single dollar legitimate accumulation, on the contrary, it insists upon the protection of that poor sinner in the enjoyment of that which they have honestly earned. The Democratic party does not encourage thrift, but, on the contrary, stimulates each individual in the highest endeavor by assuring him that he will not be deprived of the fruits of his toil. If we had repeal the laws which enable men to reap where they have not sown, laws which enable them to garner into their overflowing barns the harvests that belong to others, no one will be able to accumulate enough to make his fortune dangerous to the country. Special privilege and the use of the taxing power for private gain—these are the twin pillars upon which plutocracy rests. To take away these supports, and to deviate the beneficiaries of special legislation to the path of honest effort ought to be the purpose of our party. And who can suffer injury by just taxation, impartial laws and the application of the Jeffersonian doctrine of equal rights to all and special privileges to none? Only those whose accumulations are stained with dishonesty and whose immoral methods have given them a distorted view of business, society and government. Accumulating by conscious fraud more money than they can profitably use upon themselves, wisely distribute or safely leave to their children, these denounce as public enemies all who question their methods or throw a light upon their crimes.

Plutocracy Abhorrent. Plutocracy is abhorrent to a republic. It is more despotic than anarchy, more heartless than aristocracy, more selfish than bureaucracy. It preys upon the nation in time of peace and conspires against it in the hour of its calamity. Conscienceless, compassionless and devoid of wisdom, it enervates its votaries while it impoverishes its victims. It is already sapping the strength of the nation, vulgarizing social life and making a mockery of morals. The time is ripe for its overthrow. Let us attack it boldly, paying our appeal to the awakened conscience of the nation in the name of the counting room which it has defiled, in the name of business honor which it has sullied, in the name of the people whom it has oppressed, in the name of the homes which it has despoiled, and in the name of religion, upon which it has placed the stigma of hypocrisy.

And, if it may be permitted to suggest a battle hymn, I propose a stanza, but slightly changed from one of the strongest of the poems of Scotland's Democratic Bard: "Columbia, my dear, my native soil, For whom my warmest wish to heaven is sent, Look with the hairy sons of rustic toil, Be blest with health and peace, and sweet content, And O, may heaven their simple lives prevent, From luxury's contagion, weak and vile, Though unlearned wealth to wickedness be lent, A virtuous populace may rise and stand, A wall of fire around their much loved land."

UNUSUAL TRIAL IN PROGRESS AT RALEIGH

FACING A FAMINE.

People in Western Part of Ireland Are Becoming Alarmed.

Partial Failure of Crops And the Scarcity of Work for Large Number of Laborers Leads to Belief That There Will Be Much Suffering in the "Emerald Isle."

(By Publishers' Press.) BONEGAL, Ireland, Aug. 31.—A partial famine threatens the western part of Ireland through failure of the crops. Ten per cent of the potato crop is practically worthless and ten per cent more diseased. The percentage of destruction to other crops is slightly lower.

Most of the farmers are unable to raise this season more than enough to keep their own families supplied and there will be no surplus for the markets or next year's seeding, consequently the plight of the poor laborers is much worse. Many of them are unable to find employment and are already verging on starvation.

In a special meeting of Sligo county Council John O. Dowd, member of parliament, offered a resolution calling upon the government to open works, as the situation is becoming the worst since 1875. The council unanimously passed the resolution. Other local bodies are contemplating similar actions.
