ACCUSED OF ROBBING A CIRCUS MAN IN OHIO

A special from Cincinnati, Ohio, to the Charlotte Observer, says: Andrew Bodenhamer, aged 19, claiming as his home Kernersville, N. C., was arrested in company with John O'Meara, also 19, on suspicion of having sand-bagged and robbed William Dutton, a veteran bare-back rider and circus man, Thursday night.

Two blood-spattered coats, identified as the property of the young men, is the evidence with which the police hope to fix the crime upon them. Dutton made the rounds of the saloons with Bodenhamer and O'Meara who, owing to the fact that he always had money and was never known to work, was under police surveillance. On a quiet street, it is believed, they beat him into unconsciousness. He will die. Both youths protest innocence, but cannot explain the condition of the coats.

A citizen of Kernersville, who was here today, stated that he did not know Andrew Bodenhamer and that if such a party ever resided in or near that town he was not aware of it.

A STRONG SERMON BY MR. COMANN

A deep and profound revival of the Kingdom of God is manifestly in progress at Centenary church. A number of the ministers of other churches and members of other churches are contributing their presence and interest in the services.

Last night an unusually large congregation, notwithstanding other attractions in the city and the progress of other revivals in the city at the Protestant and Moravian churches, attended the service.

The theme was present salvation from sin. "His name shall be called Jesus, for He shall save His people from their sins." This great work of the Son of God is undertaken by taking upon himself the sin of the world and suffering for those sins vicariously as though He were guilty of every crime committed by man. The accumulated sins of the world crushed the life out of Him on the cross. Thus He removes in Himself the sin of the world and believing in Him the sinner is absolved from the guilt of sin, largely from the disabilities resulting from sin; from the condemnation of sin; from the love of sin and from the bondage of sin. These features were discussed, and in course, under the direction of the Holy Spirit. Deep and profound was the conviction of these mighty truths.

Some publicly confessed their desire to flee from the wrath to come and to be saved now from their sins. There will be no services today. It will be a pity for the services to conclude tomorrow. The momentum gained should carry the services on indefinitely. It would be a great thing if some plan could be devised for their continuance.

The revival which has been in progress at Centenary M. E. church for two weeks will close tomorrow night. Rev. J. H. Comann, of Boston, who has been assuming the pastorship, will conduct a morning service at 10:30 at Wakefield next week.

An appeal was taken to the supreme court. The plaintiffs were represented by W. F. Carter, of Mt. Airy, while W. L. Reece, of Dobson, appeared for the commissioners.

GRAVES MAKES STRONG SPEECH

Solicitor Addresses Audience Of Goodly Proportions at The Court House.

Discusses National And State Issues In a Thoroughly Convincing Manner—Exposes Fallacy of "Republican Prosperity" Argument—Shows That Republican Government in This State Has Never Been for Best Interests of Its People—Shows That Republican Party Has Not Been the Friend of the Confederate Soldier.

Hon. S. Porter Graves, Democratic candidate for reelection to the solicitorship of eleventh district, made a strong speech to several hundred voters at the courthouse last night. He was introduced by Mr. W. T. Carter, candidate for the legislature. Mr. Graves devoted much of his speech to a discussion of national issues, the tariff being the main topic. He also discussed State issues, concluding his admirable speech with an earnest appeal to the Democrats to go to work and roll up a big majority in Forsyth county.

Tariff Is Discussed. After thanking the voters for their confidence in him and pledging them his best efforts in the discharge of the duties of solicitor, Mr. Graves launched into a discussion of national issues. He declared that the Democratic party has always been the party of the masses; that the Democratic party believes in every man having a voice in the government. He declared the present high tariff was robbing the masses of the people today and enriching the few. Mr. Graves said in the early days of our country it was necessary to have a protective tariff, as our manufacturers were few and had very little capital, but that now these interests had grown to a point where they did not require this protection, and instead of it working to the interests of the country it was doing it harm. He showed that under the present tariff our manufacturers were selling goods cheaper abroad than in this country. He read from a speech delivered in the last Congress by Representative Landis, Republican of Indiana, to show these articles sold in foreign markets cheaper than in this country were not the rubbish or old-stock of our protected interests. He took the reaper as an example. The machine sells for $125 to the American farmer, while the same machine is sold to the foreign farmer for $96. He contended this was not right and said if it could be sold for $96 on the foreign market it could be sold even cheaper in this country. The reason that it is not done is because the high tariff prevents the foreign manufacturer from placing his machine on the American market. Mr. Graves said the American manufacturer has no right to sell these articles cheaper abroad than at home; that the Republican cry that these articles were the over plus of the mills of this country would not do, that if the American manufacturer would sell his machine for $96 instead of $125 more machines could and would be sold in this country.

Taking up the Republican argument that the tariff is responsible for the prosperous condition of the country, Mr. Graves ridiculed it. He said that the Republican party had not given the Almighty credit for anything in ten years; that this country's prosperity was largely due to discovery of silver and gold at Cripple Creek and in Klondike, the output from these regions increasing the money in circulation in this country from $12 in 1896 to $31 in 1906 per capita of our population. Again the great wars of recent years had opened up markets for us in all parts of the world, as the armies had to be fed and clothed; ships made a big demand for the output of iron and steel, stock was purchased

A FEW CHANGES IN THE SENTINEL FORCE

The Sentinel announces with genuine regret that it is to lose a valuable and popular member of its force. Mr. J. S. Maynor, who has had charge of the Linotype machine since it was installed in August, 1904, has resigned to accept a position on the road—to become a "knight of the grip." No paper ever had more faithful employees than the men who have made The Sentinel for the past two years and the breaking of family ties is regretted by one and all.

Mr. Maynor will be succeeded by Mr. John G. Sterling, who has been a most valuable member of The Sentinel family for ten years.

Mr. Herbert P. Thompson, who was with The Sentinel for several years, will return to his first love. Mr. Thompson, who has been in Wilmington for some time, will enter upon his duties Monday.

The Big Shoot Monday. The Winchester team of expert shooters will arrive tonight. The big shoot at the grounds of the Winston-Salem gun club, just north of the home of Hon. A. E. Holton, on South Side, will start promptly at 10 a. m. Monday. Everybody is invited to come out whether they shoot or not and no doubt a very large crowd will attend the big event.
