FIFTEEN PERISH; 37 ARE RESCUED

Steamer St. Cuthbert Is Burned In Mid Ocean.

Steamer Cymric Succeeds in Rescuing the Larger Part of the Crew of the Burning Ship—Horrible Accident in Mid-Ocean.

HALIFAX, Feb. 4.—The Cymric has rescued thirty-seven of the crew of the steamer St. Cuthbert, which has been burned in mid-sea. The remaining fifteen all perished. Most of them, it is learned today, were drowned while attempting to man life-boats beside the blazing ship. The rescue of the thirty-seven was made in the heavy sea during a snowstorm after the Cymric had circled around the doomed vessel for hours.

Another Report. CHICAGO, Feb. 4.—David R. McGowan, of the Chicago Tribune staff, has sent his paper by wireless via Halifax a graphic description of the rescue of thirty-seven members of the crew of British steamer St. Cuthbert, as she burned in mid-sea. McGowan was a passenger on the Cymric and stood through a blinding snowstorm, watching the battle of life-boats with the sea.

The Cymric first sighted the St. Cuthbert flying signals of distress and laboring through thick smoke which was issuing from her bows.

It is stated a gale prevented immediate rescue but when the storm abated a boat was lowered, and after maneuvering she finally reached the St. Cuthbert.

Nearly everybody on the St. Cuthbert had the soles of their feet burned besides bruises. The officers and crew had a terrible story to relate of the fire. Poisonous fumes of burning oil drove the helmsman from the wheel and the cosmopolitan crew, maddened with fear, tugged at the life-boats. One was finally lowered but smashed and all but one or two drowned. Nine stowaways were aboard and several were cut off from the stern and burned to death.

Today her husband, who had not been home since a dispute with his wife a week ago, came home to effect a reconciliation. Finding his way in he found the dead bodies of his wife and two daughters. Gas was pouring from an open fixture, showing how they died.

JOHN MITCHELL. TOM L. LEWIS.

RETIRING HEAD OF MINE WORKERS AND HIS SUCCESSOR.

John Mitchell, who retires as president of the United Mine Workers of America, has made a splendid record since he has been at the head of the organization and has gained the confidence of mine owners throughout the country. His retirement because of ill health is one of the most regrettable occurrences in the history of organized labor in recent years. Tom L. Lewis, his successor, is one of the best known men in the labor movement of the country. Mr. Lewis has served as vice president of the organization since 1883, when Mitchell became president. While he is more radical in his politics than Mitchell, Mr. Lewis has been successful in conducting negotiations with employers. He is a powerful speaker and is thoroughly versed in the affairs of the organization. Mr. Lewis lives in Bridgeport, O., and is fifty-five years of age.

Fire Supposed to Have Originated From Defective Flue—Rev. P. E. Parker Was Principal of Academy—Had Large Enrollment of Pupils—No Insurance On Property.

A telephone message to The Sentinel reports that the Arcadia Academy, located on the Salisbury road, twelve miles southwest of Winston-Salem in Davidson county, was destroyed by fire last night.

The exact hour of the fire was not learned.

The Academy was a large two-story frame building. Rev. P. E. Parker was principal of the educational institution which had a large enrollment of students.

While the origin of the fire is not known definitely, it is supposed to have originated from a defective flue.

It is learned that the owners had no insurance on either the building or furniture.

The Arcadia Academy was a Methodist institution and was conducted under the auspices of the Winston district.

Interesting Disclosures in Connection With the Knickerbocker Trust Company.

The addresses placed by some of these depositors, said attorney Satterlee today, "we find no not addresses at all but vacant lots, stonewalls and the like. We can say now what will become of the money."

Negro Haz Narrow Escape.

A Greensboro negro, who left here last night with two jugs of whiskey, came near losing his life. The telegram says that the negro got off the train before it stopped and was whizzed in the direction of the wheels, but succeeded in saving himself, however, but the two jugs of whiskey which he was bringing in a bag were broken to pieces and the contents scattered over the track. As he held up the bag with the liquid refreshments intruding from it, there was a great lamentation on the part of the unlucky negro and several companions who hurried to his aid.

THAW INSISTS ON ACTION AT ONCE

Demands That Attorneys Secure Immediate Release

Insists On Either Absolute Release or Transfer to Private Institution—Says That, if He Remains at Matteawan a Month, He Will Indeed Be Insane.

MATTEWAN, Feb. 4.—Harry K. Thaw has made another imperative demand upon his attorneys to secure his immediate release from the asylum here. As a consequence a writ may be sought within the next few days, seeking to have Justice Dowling's commitment amended to remove Thaw to a private institution.

Thaw's demand for release or transfer to a private institution is based upon the belief that if he remains here even a month he will become insane in fact if not already so. The names of the fifty-eight other varieties of mad men associated in the same ward with him have not on Thaw's nerves, claiming to be in full possession of his mental faculties. Thaw told his lawyers he would be a fit subject to remain in the asylum if subjected to the ravages of other inmates for even a few weeks.

Asylum Ward in Uproar.

Harry Thaw's old time ungovernable temper got the best of him yesterday this morning at Matteawan asylum. He leaped from the bed in his private room and, striking into the open, demanded quiet of the "hellish" criminal insane patients who were ranting in their sleep or making other noises. This they resented. All awoke and bounded from their cots and a great uproar ensued, which brought a detachment of attendants to the scene of the disorder. Thaw was easily quieted but said to the attendants, "I'll be made sure enough if I am bound to stay in this place a week with such companions."

Allen Ferris, head of the state lunacy commission, returned today after visiting Harry Thaw at Matteawan. He said he found the prisoner very nervous and excitable but that it was impossible to come to any conclusion regarding his condition upon such a short examination. It is expected it will take some time for the state experts to determine Thaw's mental condition.

ATTORNEY HOLTON NOT READY TO GO

Revenue Agent Scriven Proposes to District Attorney That They Visit Smithtown

Suggested That They Go Up and "Make a Survey of the Land"—Postmaster Reynolds Writing to Perform Such a Task—John H. Hill, Smithtown "Moonshiner," Will Likely Be Released on Bond in a Few Days—Jim Smith at Home.

District Attorney A. K. Holton has under consideration a proposition by Chief Revenue Agent E. W. Scriven, of Greensboro. It is to the effect that the two representatives of the United States government visit the "moonshine" section of Stokes county known as Smithtown, and take a survey of the land.

The district attorney has earned a splendid reputation as a prosecutor of blockaders and other violators of Uncle Sam's laws, but the suggestion of making a personal visit to the notorious Smithtown, is in the opinion of Mr. Holton, entitled to careful consideration. It is argued that should one of the "moonshiners" even get a peep at the district attorney he would at once accept him as a splendid target to fire upon, and take delight in "putting him out of the way" as a prosecutor.

It is safe to say that Mr. Holton will not accept Agent Scriven's invitation. The district attorney has a good excuse for turning down the proposition. He has never had any experience as a land surveyor.

Discussing the matter today, Postmaster Reynolds remarked that he would not mind going to Smithtown and making a survey of that territory. It is in his line of work, but before accepting such a task he would prefer to have the "powers that be" send him credentials and instructions so that he would be in position to produce the evidence if he should be called upon to explain his presence in that part of Stokes county's moral vineyard.

Jim Smith at Home. The impression now appears to be general that Jim Smith is at home. A government officer stated today that Smith has a three-story residence and that he is prepared to warn off all comers. It is said that Smith has the third story of his residence set up like "stalls" and that he has little windows through which he can get a good view for a mile or more and see all approaches to his home.

The officers are hoping that Jim Smith will surrender as the opinion is being freely and publicly expressed that the alleged blockader will kill the man that undertakes to arrest him.

Hill May Give Bond.

District Attorney Holton was in Greensboro yesterday to pass upon an application made by John H. Hill, another alleged Smithtown blockader, to give bail. Hill offers to put up his own real estate and some of his friends have agreed to do the same thing for him. The bond offered was not accepted, but it is thought that the prisoner's friends will succeed in securing his release this week. Hill is indicted for illicit distilling. He is also accused of being implicated in the murder of Revenue Officer Hendricks. A reward of $500 was offered for his arrest.

District Attorney Holton says the docket for the April term of the federal court at Greensboro will be large, but he does not know how many of the cases will be ready for trial. The parties indicted for illicit distilling in Smithtown will likely be given a hearing at this term, but their trial on the charge of killing Revenue Officer Hendricks may be continued.

To Build New Church.

At a meeting of the members of Spring Garden Street Methodist church, in Greensboro, held after the morning service Sunday morning, it was decided that the church at once erect a modern house of worship, the value to cost in the neighborhood of $12,000 or $15,000. Subscriptions were called for and between $5,000 and $6,000 were subscribed without scarcely an effort being made.

Mr. Rawlings being promoted to chief clerk.
