LIFE STORY OF THE TWO McNAMARA BROTHERS

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Oct. 8.—Sitting in a corridor just outside his cell in the county jail, John J. McNamara, secretary-treasurer of the International Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers, briefly sketched what he termed the uneventful lives of himself and his brother, James B. McNamara.

"I was born in Cincinnati December 23, 1876," he said, "and I am the oldest of six children living, although there were ten children originally. I attended the common schools in Cincinnati until I was twelve years old and then took a three-year course in a business college.

"Nothing of any importance happened to me until the panic began in 1892, when I turned my hand to anything and everything to keep the pot boiling, as they say.

"I did my first bridgework at Cincinnati in 1898, joining the union the next year. Between 1898 and 1904 I visited various sections of the Middle West, following my trade and working on steel bridges, viaducts and similar structures.

"I have held all of the offices in local unions, particularly in those of Cleveland, and have attended all the conventions of the international association since 1902. I was elected second vice-president at the convention at Kansas City in 1903 and was chosen secretary-treasurer at Toronto in 1904. I have held that office ever since.

"The last building I worked on was the Rockefeller structure in Cleveland. I left that job to go to Toronto, and it was held open for me if I wanted to go back, but I didn't, as I had been made secretary-treasurer and had my time fully taken up with the duties of that office.

"The offices of the international association were in New York when I was first elected. Later, for sentimental reasons, I was instrumental in having them moved to Cleveland. Two years after the offices were removed there another change was made to Indianapolis, for the reason that so many labor organizations had their international headquarters there.

"I never planned my life far ahead. The work of an ironworker probably precludes such planning, for such a man does not know when he leaves home in the morning that he will return at night. It probably tends towards fatalism.

"I wanted to learn of the organization in which I held office, particularly the legal end of it, and so I attended the Indianapolis College of Law and was admitted to practice in 1909.

"There is little else about my life except my arrest. I am an inveterate reader, and always have been, of books treating with economics and industrial matters.

James B. McNamara, who sat quietly by while his brother talked, also was born in Cincinnati. His birthday was June 2, 1882. He attended the common schools and then learned the printer's trade, which he has followed almost continuously ever since, working in job-offices in Chicago, Cleveland, Cincinnati and other cities.

"Unlike me," said John J. McNamara, "my brother has never been especially active in trades union affairs." The McNamara brothers are charged with complicity in the dynamiting of the Los Angeles Times building and their trial begins this week.

First Verdict. LOS ANGELES, Oct. 9.—One hundred and twenty-five citizens from whom twelve may pass on the guilt or innocence of John J. and James B. McNamara, in the Los Angeles Times case, gathered in Judge Hordwell's court room. They constituted the first venire summoned as jurors in the McNamara trial, set to begin Wednesday.
