HENRY CLAY BEATTIE JR., GUILTY OF FIRST DEGREE MURDER

Henry Clay Beattie, Jr. the youthful wife murderer, and son of a Richmond banker, was found guilty by 12 farmers, of the murder of his wife, Louise Owen Beattie on Midlothian turnpike July 18 last. The prisoner stood unmoved as the 12 men pronounced the verdict guilty which means death in the electric chair.

This is a climax to one of the most sensational trials since the famous McCue case. It began on the night of July 18 when Beattie and his young wife spinning on Midlothian turnpike near Richmond in Beattie's Automobile.

Beattie claimed that a highwayman had held him up and shot his wife blowing away one side of her face.

They Found Each Other.

Miss Margaret Veal of Wichita was shopping in Indianapolis and in a department store came face to face with a girl who looked exactly like her. They got to talking, found they were exactly the same age, born in the same town on the same day. To make a long story short, they are twins. They had been separated in their babyhood and neither knew of the other's existence.

No Place For Her

It was the first vaudeville performance the old colored lady had ever seen, and she was particularly over the marvelous feats of the magician. But when he covered a newspaper with a heavy flannel cloth and read the print through it, she grew a little nervous. He then doubled the cloth again and read the letters accurately.

This was more than she could stand, and rising in her seat, she said: "I'm goin' home. This ain't no place for a lady in a thin calico dress."

Women Are Much Wiser Than They Used to Be.

By Mrs. FRANCES HODGSON BURNETT. Author.

THERE has never been a time when so many women married their ideal mates. There has never been a time when so many unions were so happy. Women today are FREER THAN EVER BEFORE FROM THE AWFUL NECESSITY OF ACQUIRING THE FIRST MAN IN SIGHT.

Women no longer want to marry men just for the sake of having somebody to take care of them or of being able to call themselves married.

Oh, but women are so MUCH WISER THAN THEY USED TO BE! That is one of the most beautiful things that come to me as I look back across fifty years of my life. Even in that little time there has been such a change. And go a bit farther back. You can do it in the novels that reflect so well the domestic life of their time.

First, there was the WOMAN WHO SWOONED. Always when anything happened to her, whether it was her canary, or her sweetheart who died, she swooned. That was considered the only proper expression of the proper desolation of a proper young female.

Then some year farther along, when emotional agitation stirred her placid breast, she INVARIABLY BURST INTO TEARS. She also wept long and bitterly.

WHEN THE MODERN HEROINE IS IN TROUBLE SHE DOESN'T WAITE ANY TIME WAILING. SHE PROMPTLY DOES SOME PRACTICAL COMMON SENSE THING—OR EVEN SOMETHING GRANDLY IMPRACTICAL, BUT EQUALLY ENERGETIC—AND SAVES THE DAY FOR HER LOVER AND HERSELF.

Tom Driver.
This August 18, 1911.

Mr. Lillington writes

Mr. Editor:—

I hear there are complaints in the various townships in this County to the assessment of property my township of course included. These complaints are principally confined, with a few exceptions, to our Democratic friends—I desire to say to these gentlemen that the law was passed by the men they voted for, and was done to replenish an empty treasury brought about by their extravagance and mismanagement of the affairs of the State. Of all men our Democratic friends should be the last to kick, and the only remedy I see for these gentlemen is to stop voting the Democratic ticket. Don't curse and abuse the assessor who was trying as best he could to do his duty under the law. I admit it was a hard task—I would respectfully ask these gentlemen to read the law carefully, and see what was required of the assessor under their oath, and then tell the people whether or not they would save for their lands the amount they were assessed at. I say to our Democratic friends: Stop abusing the assessors who are only trying to carry out the law of their party, at the same time doing all they could under their oath to protect the people in their valuations upon their property—Don't take all your spleen out on the Township assessor; gentlemen, there is the county assessor, also the board of equalization, which is composed of the county assessor and the Board of County Commissioners, and then the corporation commission, who all had to pass upon the work of the township assessor.

Not the men who enforce the law but those who make the law should be held accountable. In some instances where there was reductions made by the Board of Equalization they might have made corresponding reduction for other parties. The people are very sensitive on the subject of taxation, and watch things closely. We know Mr. Taxpayer it is hard, but your only remedy is at the ballot box. See 23 of the Machinery act says "Real property shall be valued by the assessor, either from actual view, or from the best information that he can practically obtain according to its true value in money." That was the crier no doubt with many of us assessor.

How amazing it is, that property at tax listing time, always decreases in value and never worth by half as much as when offered for sale. It is strange what some people will do to avoid the payment of taxes. The law says cash value, I venture to say, there is not a man in Yadkin county today who would take for his lands the amount it was valued at.

I think most of the trouble with the people is, that the equalization board reduced the value of some farms, and ignored the appeals of others for reduction. There is where the trouble comes in. The people are very sensitive, and if they made reduction in some cases they think they should have made in all cases where there was a just complaint, and in this I am with them heart and soul. If the people want to avoid taxes, I would advise them to set their lands in alfalfa.

Respectfully,
J. A. LILLINGTON
