Trial Of Iredell Officers For Shooting McBride

The trial of Marshal, Mel and Charlie Gross, Joe and J. D. Joyner and J. C. Renegar for shooting Cleve McBride last January, while trying to arrest him for blockading, was the longest and hardest fought case that has been tried here in several years, only one of them, Marshal Gross, being convicted.
It began immediately on the convening of court Wednesday afternoon and continued until Thursday night, at 10 o'clock. The defendants nearly all live in Iredell county, the readers of the Ripple will remember, that while trying to arrest McBride, he was shot during a chase with the officers.
As court convened an array of counsils, numbering five, were lined up for the defence, and the solicitor was assisted by two other able counsils. It was some time before the jury box was filled, then began a legal battle which ended as told above.
The first witness put up by the State was Miss Lela Hayes at whose home the shooting occurred. She told how she was standing on the porch on Jan. 29th, when suddenly a pistol shot rang out and McBride made a dash for the woods, but ere he reached them he was being pursued by half dozen men who say McBride pulled a gun and they begun to fire on him with the result that he was shot in the leg, neck and side. After going one half a mile he either fell or else was caught, and word sent to the Hayes home for aid, where he was taken and nursed for four weeks, and was guarded by an officer. Dr. Bryant testified that he dressed the wounded man, and that the wound in the side was caused by a 22 calibre ball, but on being cross examined he admitted he did not know the difference in the size of a 22 calibre ball and a number 4 shot.
The next witness was Miss Della Hayes, and she was followed by Miss Beatrice Reavis and several others, all of whom told about the same story with small variations as to distances.
Mr. J. D. Joyner, a Deputy Sheriff of Iredell county was the first witness for the defence. He contradicted the evidence of the state as to the distance from the house to where the man was shot, saying it was 160 yards, where the others said it was only 40 yards. He further told of the attempt to catch McBride, etc.
The closing argument for the defence was made by Atty Caldwell, while Mr. Baily closed for the State and the case given to the jury which was composed of farmers.
On the first ballot of the jury after retiring the vote stood as follows: Three for acquittal of all the defendants; four stood for convicting three and five wanted to convict one. Thus they labored over the evidence until 3 o'clock in the morning when they retired to rest. Next morning they were next long in deciding and a verdict of guilty was returned as to Marshal Gross, and not guilty as to the other five.

The Judge required the convicted man to pay one sixth of the cost, this being paid by Sheriff Deaton of Iredell Co., who said that the people of Yadkin county had treated his officers and him mighty nice, showing that they were with them in trying to ferret out lawlessness.

Grand Jury Report.

After the usual preliminaries the report reads:
We have passed upon all bills the solicitor presented us except a few bills that was continued for want of witnesses. We visited the county home by a committee of 6 who report 20 white inmates and 1 colored. The home is well kept and the inmates seem to be properly cared for, and have plenty to eat and wear. We recommend that new roofs be put on some of the buildings.

We also visited the county jail and found but one prisoner. The jail seems to be well kept. We visited the county offices and found them well kept.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

W. P. WILLIAMS,
Foreman.

Not on Time

The citizens were surprised one day last week in the little village, to see No. 17 pull in at the depot, apparently on time. Ben Banks the station agent hollered at Rod Squibs the engineer and said:
Hello there Rod: You're on time for once ain't ye?
Rod stuck his head out of the window and said:
"On time nothing. Were 24 hours late. This is yesterday's train."—Ex.
