FEASIBILITY OF ACCURATE SHOOTING FROM AEROPLANE DEMONSTRATED BY UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT.

Flying at Mile-a-Minute Clip, Lieut. Fickel Throws Two Successive Shots Straight Into Target.

Bridgeport, Conn., was recently the scene of a most remarkable aeroplane achievement. Not only did it thrill the vast army of spectators because of the reckless daring displayed by the pilot, but it proved beyond all question that, with the right make of rifle, a marksman can shoot while flying at tremendous speed, with the same accuracy as when on the ground.

Army officers have been anything but satisfied with the results obtained with the service rifle, and the flight was planned as a test of a repeating arm of other than government make.

The flight took place at the Lake Aerodrome before 10,000 people who of the grandstand, a far greater number who occupied points of vantage upon neighboring hillsides, house-tops and trees.

When Beachy came upon the field, a violent wind was blowing. Understood, he mounted his seat and was soon soaring high above. More than once it seemed to the spectators that his trail craft must surely turn turtle and come crashing to the earth, but every time the treacherous wind threatened clever manipulation by the aviator held the machine steady, head and tail.

After having been in the air a number of minutes, Beachy pointed his craft in the direction of the grandstand, circled it twice and, as gracefully as a bird alights, brought it safely to the ground.

To every one present it seemed certain, in view of the dangerous antics of the wind, that no more flights would be attempted that afternoon; but to the amazement of all, Beachy, as soon as he landed, hailed Lieut. Fickel, who was standing nearby, armed with a Remington-UMC rifle, and invited him to take a seat alongside.

This Lieut. Fickel did, and aviator and passenger were soon on their way. To make the trip all the more hazardous, the machine had been shorn of all extra supports invariably carried with passengers for balance.

Time and again the big planes could be seen to tremble as if they were about to snap when contrary gusts of wind caught them; and to those below the tilting and the swaying of the monoplane were fore-runners of certain destruction to the aviator and his passenger.

When the machine reached the farther end of the field it suddenly turned, and came flying back at lightning speed. At the other end of the field, in full view of the spectators, a target had been rigged. 350 yds. within firing range, Lieut. Fickel raised his rifle and sent two shots straight to the mark. It was a wonderful performance and a fitting climax to a meet that was replete with sensational features.

In an interview after the demonstration, Lieut. Fickel said that he found the speed and accuracy of the Auto-loader a distinct advantage over the service rifle he had previously used in similar tests, and that he considered it the only practical gun for use under such conditions.

Big Fox Hunt.

Mr. Editor:—We have been having some Fox hunting up here, some of the hunters being Neut Weatherman of Chestnut Ridge, George Carter, Chas. Nicks, Vance Hauser, Shelah Royall, some of the prominent citizens of Yadkinville and Uncle Azz, as they call him, went along to see the fun. We went to Bud Vestal's about 40 in number, made a drive down the creek to the place where they caught the one last winter, but not a scent of a fox could be found. Then we went back to Royall's place about 11 o'clock when old Rube struck a warm track, everybody was in hope. Mr. Sidney Vestal was rushed to the spot at once with his trained dog, but all in vain, for Shelah's dog had only scented up a rabbit. It was talked that the fox went in a crawfish hole, so the hunt was ended for that night. Next day Mr. J. S. Long found a track and sent word to Yadkinville in haste and a hunt for the night was planned, and Mr. Weatherman notified, but Yadkinville did not turn out neither did Uncle Azz, so Mess. Weatherman and Hauser were all the hunters. Well about nine o'clock Rube struck sure enough and for three fourths of an hour they had as fine a quartette as ever was heard in these woods, but a complete loss, no rabbit, no possum; no fox.

Poor old foxes, they seem to suffer two deaths; dogs run them till they can't walk; then gnaw and bite them etc.

If I was that fox and see the dogs as I do I would hit the dirt—yes the high places—and would not stop for hunger nor nigh water until I could sit down on top of the famous Rockies, then say "Rube I'd never hear your dreaded mouth any more."

Joseph Pearson Caldwell Passes to Great Beyond

Joseph Pearson Caldwell, editor of Charlotte Observer for several years, died at Morganton last week at the age of 58 years.

Mr. Caldwell was one of the best known and most loved newspaper men in the South but has not done actual work since 1909. The State has lost a valuable citizen and the south one of its greatest sons.

Mr. Caldwell at one time owned the Statesville Landmark, but has devoted most of his energies to The Observer, both of which will stand as a monument to his memory.

Thanksgiving Tomorrow

Tomorrow is Thanksgiving day in all this land and countryside. Both rich and poor observe it alike. The origin of this day has been told and retold and we will not repeat it here, but the day should remain sacred and everyone should return thanks to Him who is responsible even for our existence.

That everyone of our readers enjoy the day is our most sincere wish.

Never put anything off—do it now.

Beattie Pays The Penalty

Henry Beattie Jr. condemned of wife murder in Richmond, Va., was electrocuted last Friday, Nov. 24. He made a full confession of his crime.

Beattie killed his wife on the lonely Middlethian turnpike near Richmond on July 18th, and was arrested two days later. The trial lasted several days and the best legal talent in Virginia was obtained but the jury did not hesitate to convict him of the awful crime.

The remarkable nerve of the condemned man was wonderful and might be called cynical. He did not flinch when led to the fatal chair, but held his nerve to the last. The Rev. Mr. Dennis his spiritual adviser, four hours later gave out his written confession, in which he said much was told about the case that was untrue, but that the awful crime remained a fact.

Mr. A. A. Styers of Clemmons killed a bird one day last week that measured 16 feet from tip to tip, and 4 1/2 feet from the end of its nose to the tip of its tail. It is not known whether it is a wandering albatross or a swan.
