—Bob Spillman who lives in the "Little Nation" settlement, was arrested Saturday night by Deputy Sheriff Shugart, for cruelty to his wife and children. It seems that he has been drinking rather heavily of late and was in a wild state of excitement when arrested. He was placed in jail pending an investigation.
—The house of Rev. W. H. Adams, near Union Cross, was struck by lightning during the storm Monday afternoon. The bolt struck the top of the house went down a porch post and in the window, through the house and out of the opposite window. No one was at home but the children, and they were not badly shocked.
Estimate Of The Vote On The Senatorship

Total of Kitchen majorities, 18,500; total of Simmons majorities 8,200.—Winston Sentinel.
School Opening
The Hamptonville School will open Monday September the second with Miss Della Arnold in charge. Everything possible is being done to make this year's school a great success. Tuition rates are cheap and board may be secured at low prices in good families.
Miss Mattie Sherrill of Troutman, N. C. will have charge of the music. She is a teacher of three years experience in her work and came highly recommended.
Any other information may be secured from Miss Arnold.
Congratulations to Friends
The Journal extends heartfelt congratulations to the Friends for having secured a house of worship in Winston-Salem. The Friends here are weak numerically, but what they lack in numbers they make up in the strength of their efforts for the upbuilding of the kingdom of Christ.
Noted for their quiet and unassuming yet persistent work for the Lord, the Friends have the respect of all people in every community in which they live.—Winston Journal.
Barrooms In Wilkes
A Wilkes man was in Statesville recently and said that at least three barrooms are running openly in Wilkes county. The operators have paid the government tax, which secures immunity from the federal officials, and the local officers pay no attention to them. It is said that in these places liquor is sold openly, to anybody, in any quantity desired.—Statesville Landmark.

PICNIC AT CENTER

About 5,000 People at First Farmers Love-feast
About the greatest occurrence of its kind ever witnessed in Yadkin county was the picnic and Farmers love feast held by the Farmers Union at Center last Saturday when 5,000 people gathered from every section of the county to begin what will probably be an annual affair from now on.
To say it was a success in every respect is putting it but lightly. From tree to tree was a table 624 feet long, which was covered from end to end with delicious goodies prepared for the occasion by the farmer's wives and daughters of this county who are reported to be the finest to be found when it comes to Domestic Science.
A speakers platform was erected in the heart of the grove from which two able addresses were delivered during the day, besides some beautiful music. One of these was delivered in the morning by Mr. W. T. Swanson of Greensboro, his subject being "The Plans and Purposes of the Farmers Union."
Immediately after the dinner hour the immense throng again assembled at the speakers stand where they heard an excellent address by Mr. Sanford Martin, formerly of this county, but now city editor of the Winston Journal. Mr. Martin chose for his subject the advantage of the farmer, and the speaker dealt in an able manner on the vice and corruption of city life as compared with the beautiful and quiet life on the farm.
The farmers of Yadkin are united for progress and are making every effort toward building up and improving farm methods in this section.

Hookworm Dispensaries For Yadkin County

Yadkin County Commissioners co-operating with the State Board of health will establish and conduct temporary dispensaries in Yadkin for a period of six weeks for the treatment of Hookworm Disease.
Dr. Jno. A. Ferrel, chief director of the bureau of Hookworm investigation and treatment, was here the first of the week making arrangements for his assistants to come from Surry county over here next week. The appointments of C. L. Pridden, who will do the work in Yadkin are given on the back page of the Ripple.
Lone Hickory Items
Crops are cut short by one half, in this section on account of dry weather.
Rev. T. C. Myers passed through here Sunday, on his way to Rock Springs church Iredell county, where he goes to hold a protracted meeting this week.
Several of our people attended preaching at Rock Springs Sunday and heard Mr. Myers preach two able and instructive sermons.
Mrs. Stella Wilburn of Elkton, N. C., is visiting her grandmother at this place.
Mr. Sid Vestal was here fox hunting last week but without success.
Mr. Clifton Miller visited Mr. James Revis Sunday.
The Gold Springs choir sang for the people of New Hope Sunday, and they did some good singing. With Esq. Sant Reavis to sing tenor they have the best choir in this part of the county.
Success to our county paper.
