THEO ROOSEVELT SHOT IN BREAST

Supposed Insane Man Shoots Colonel as he Enters Automobile—John Schrank Arrested Admits he Fired the Shot

Theodore Roosevelt, seven years President of the United States, and now the nominee of the Progressive party for that office, was shot in Milwaukee, Wis. Monday night, as he was entering an automobile to go to an auditorium to make an address.

It was at first thought he was not shot, but a bullet hole in his overcoat and blood on his garments showed that a ball of large calibre had entered the breast, however Col.

Roosevelt went on and finished his address, only growing weak toward the last.

The man who fired the shot was John Schrank of New York City. Papers in the Colonel's pocket saved his life.

After being arrested Schrank said, "any man looking for a third term ought to be shot." He also said that in a dream Roosevelt was presented as the murderer of McKinley and he was asked to avenge McKinley's death.

Follow Me
The Cigarette Captain says:
"Follow Me, Let Me Lead You!"

"I will take every noble purpose out of your life.
I will rob your boyish cheek of its bloom, your eye of its brightness and your form of its erectness

I will pour the very life blood out of your veins and arteries.

I will hold your brain in an iron grip and prevent your mind from developing.

I will prove to you my power to make invalids, criminals and fools.

I will open the door of the saloon and lead you from there to the work house, the reformatory, the penitentiary and perhaps to the gallows.

I will lead the way to the asylums for the insane and the imbecile.

I will rob your body of its power to withstand disease. I am an active agent of the graveyard. Death and I walk side by side.

I will dig your grave and lead you to it.

I will mark your tombstone:
"Victim of the cigarette. Health Character, Opportunities and Life lost."

"Boys follow me, and I will do exactly as I have promised—I never fail.
