The Old Time Lady Writes About The Present Conditions

Below we are giving an article with each word and punctuation mark as it was received by us:
 "Now I am surprised to hear some talk as they do, always urging the boys to get 'em wives to marry, marry, telling 'em many wonderful things about faithful companions, soothing cares, and I don't know what all. I say if things were like they use to be they might talk. In my raisin a man could get a wife, but there aint a gal in my whole knowin fit for a wife. How on earth can they be fit to marry when they have never done nothin in creation but be an expense. They never did nor they dont know how to do anything but sleep til breakfast, get up and flirt and flounce and quarrel about the cooking, eat, lie down on the sofa, read novels and receive calls. Receive calls indeed; this is what they call it nowadays when a boy goes to see a gal. In the good old times they called it by its right name "goin a sparkin." But it'll be bound if I was a boy I never would marry one of 'em and if the boys knowed how no count they are they never would either. For only to think, to see a gal with a mop big enough to black shoes cramed in her mouth, making her jaw stick out like she had an egg in it. Just let a boy come! How they will slip and hide their nasty old brushes, run for water, wipe their mouths on their hankerschers, and set up just like butter would not melt in their mouths."
 "And then the novel they have just read is so nice, so divine, such and such a one is

Mr. Daniel Holcomb Dead

News of the death of Mr. Daniel Holcomb, a prominent merchant and farmer, of near Longtown this county, came as a surprise to his many friends here. Mr. Holcomb was 70 years old and is survived by a wife and several children, most of whom are grown.
 Death occured Tuesday of last week and interment was Friday at Swaims Baptist church, of which the deceased had been a member for many years. Among the children surviving are Messrs. D. Holcomb, at home, C. E. James and S. F. Holcomb, they being merchants of Elkin.

Yadkin Worked Her Roads

Because Yadkin county has been a little backward in her road working in the past is no good reason why you should imagine that she did not work them on good roads days. From all reports there was a tremendous amount of work done on the roads all over the county in every way. Reports from almost every section say that the old and young the rich and poor alike went and shoveled old mother earth into a position that will be of a great benefit to those who travel. Almost every person in town that was able to work went out and worked, and result of the work of all can be seen for some time to come.

Little Addis Cranfill Dead

On Wednesday morning at 3 o'clock the death angel visited our home (home of Mr. and Mrs. N. C. Cranfill, at Crurtney) and took from us our dear and precious little brother. He was 4 years, 11 months 20 days old. He was sick only a few days but suffered more than we can tell. He had the awful disease diphtheria. It was so hard to give him up but all medical aid could not save him. He was a dear and bright boy in our home and was our baby. The little darling left us with a smile on his little face.
 A precious one from us is gone
 A voice we loved is still;
 A place made vacant in our home
 Which never can be filled.
