J. Hamp. Rich Comes to Town

J. Hampton Rich, citizen of the world, globe trotter and performer of miracles, blew into town Saturday and begun activities by hauling negrohead rock and building a pyramid on the court house square to mark the spot, we suppose, where Uncle Daniel Boone and his faithful dog ate dinner when they migrated from the domains of Rowan county when the Democrats began to get plentiful down there, to points west, where civilization was still in the making and where bears and wild cats fought for the territory. A flag was erected on top of the pyramid of rustics and J. Hampton hopped on a stool and made a speech as long as from here to Conestoga which was attended by many and heard by few. And when all was done Rich proceeded to take up subscriptions to pay for same and the money fell generously into his hands, for the negroheads and the flag, and then before leaving politely folded the flag under his arm and bowed right out again.

That's J. Hamp, globe trotter, et cetera, etc. This is not the first time that Rich has been to Yadkinville, and beside, Yadkinville has a perfectly good Boone trail tablet on the court house green, and so far as we have heard this is the third trail Rich has marked with tablets to show the trail Boone took on his famous trip to the wilderness of the wild west. Boone never took but one because he only made one trip and Boone never back-tracked a step. But Boone is dead and so long as tablets and yamds can be sold at twenty to thirty dollars per throw Barnum's word will never be disputed.

Valuable Land for Sale

Pursuant to the power and authority vested in me by a deed of trust executed to me by W. H. Gough and M. A. Gough, recorded in Book 16, page 206, Record of Mortgages for Yadkin county, and default having been made in payment of the note secured by said deed of trust, and at the request of W. A. Hall, cashier of the Bank of Yadkin, I will offer for sale at public auction to the highest bidder for cash at the court house door in Yadkin county on Monday, May 1, 1922, at 1 p. m., the following described tract or parcel of land:

First, Lying on the waters of Deep Creek, beginning at a stone in Thomas Williams' line, runs south, crossing the creek ten chains to a dead chestnut, Williams and Sheriff corner; then east 2½ degrees east with Sherman and Berry Hutchens' line, crossing the creek below where the factory formerly stood, 15 chains and 60 links to the creek; then still 5 chains in the same course to said Hutchens' corner, a plum bush; then north 16 degrees west 4½ chains to a small dogwood; then north 27 degrees west 14½ chains to a pile of stone; then south 66 degrees west 37 4-5 chains to the beginning, containing 64½ acres, more or less, and being the same tract of land conveyed to the said Jones A. Gray by Eugene E. Gray, commissioner, by a deed recorded in office of Register of Deeds in Yadkin county, N. C., in Book J, page 501.

Second, also another parcel of

East Bend Route 3 News

East Bend, Route 3, April 17.—Mrs. W. A. Fletcher and daughter, Jessie May, of Winston-Salem, spent the week-end with Mrs. Fletcher's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Hennings.

Little Miss Lena Hennings gave an egg hunt Sunday afternoon for the children of the community. Those present were Nellie Myers, Ora May Goff, Nell Augusta Hauser, Jessie May Fletcher, Tommie Speer, Wade and Tom Goff, Turner Hauser, Jim and John McKnight, Wesley Wooten, R. B. Smitherman, Jr., and Moses Nichols. The little hostess was assisted in hiding the eggs by Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wooten and Miss Blanche Hennings.

S. L. Doub, of near Baltimore, is seriously ill at this writing.

Mr. and Mrs. Bil Henning motored to Winston-Salem Friday to see Mrs. Robah Henning who is a patient at the Lawrence Hospital.

Mr. Ollie Spillman is very sick with pneumonia, following influenza.

On last Sunday a large crowd assembled at Wilhelm school house for the Easter service. After the morning service an egg hunt was enjoyed by all the little folks, while a real picnic dinner was spread on the beautiful lawn for a present.

County Commencement Held Here Monday

The County Commencement Monday was well attended and the following were present: Rev. W. A. Moore, of Chapel Hill, delivered the address at 11 o'clock. The exercises were held in court house.

Favors Consolidation

Contributed

In looking over the census of 1920, we see that a large majority of our children have not had a high school education. It is not that the boys and girls of our state are lacking in ambition or are not as intelligent as those of other states, but it does mean that they have not had the equal opportunities of other children.

Are you willing for your boy or girl to be classed among the unfortunate children? If you are not, then it is your duty and privilege to help better the educational situation. Several counties surrounding us have taken action in regard to school conditions, and why should we continue to remain on the lower rung of the educational ladder?

Consolidation is the best and only adequate means of affording these equal educational opportunities and high school privileges. Instead of so many one-room teacher schools, the school of five or six districts could be combined. The children will be transported in motor trucks to and from school, and they will not have to miss a single day on account of bad weather and muddy roads. The buildings will be equipped with proper heating, lighting, sewerage, and all modern conveniences. A good library will be furnished in which the students may have the privilege of studying and reading. There can, also, be a well equipped playground with sufficient apparatus for the boys and girls.

Consolidation has many advantages over other schools because it allows more time for the teacher to spend with the pupils and gives each pupil more time to study under supervision. The teacher will not have twenty to twenty-five classes in one day's program. She will be able to give each class the proper time required for reciting the lesson. Also, the teachers in the consolidated school are better prepared for their work. The poorly prepared teacher is not capable of teaching in this up-to-date school.

Another advantage is that the pupils can attend school a longer term and the attendance is more regular and larger. This is due partly to the well equipped buildings and social conditions of the school. There are chances of rivalry in their work and athletics for the children come together from several districts. They associate with more children and on account of the long term, strong and lasting friendships are cultivated. When the children are once afforded a chance of going to a consolidated school they get more interested in their work because of the pride they have in belonging to a big modern concern.

This consolidated school not only serves as a school building but as a community center. Farmer's clubs and Women's meetings can be held here. Social gatherings could be held here where all the people are privileged to come to come together. There are many other advantages of a consolidated school, but it is not necessary to name them all for if consolidation is once placed on a firm foundation the advantages will follow.

Danger Of Tobacco Overproduction

We know that the farmers in the cotton belt are being advised as to how they can most effectively meet the boll weevil attack. But, the farmers in the tobacco belt even in a more serious condition than the cotton farmers. The farmers that have joined the cooperative association are thinking that they will receive a good price, therefore will increase their acreage; the growers who have not joined the association are thinking that the association will hold the bulk of the tobacco for better prices and that will enable them to get better prices on the floors of the warehouses, so they are going to increase their acreage. The result of this condition will be an acreage so large that no association or agency can prevent disaster coming to the grower following such an overproduction.

Therefore, in view of this fact let every farmer resolve now, as he makes his plans for this year, that he will produce enough corn, oats, hay and other feed stuffs to provide ample support for all the stock on his farm—horses, cows, pigs and poultry.

That he will provide for and secure enough hogs to furnish all the meat that will be needed by his family and all other employed by him and dependent upon his farm for a living.

That he will arrange to have at least one good orchard on every eight or ten acres of land ready to provide and thoroughly prepare from the best land available a farm garden large enough to furnish an abundant supply and a good variety of vegetables for his family and others dependent upon him, and will adopt a system of gardening that will provide these vegetables as can be grown economically in his section.

That he will have on his place a reasonable amount of good poultry—at least enough to supply liberally the needs of his family, and preferably enough to produce some surplus.

After all of the above needs of the farm family and livestock of the farm have been provided for in such a way as to make the practically self-supporting, then a certain portion of the acreage of each farm, which can be determined by each individual farmer, may be devoted to tobacco, to be grown on good land, fertilized well, and be grown in such a way as to secure the largest possible production and quality of tobacco per acre.

My Little Ford

The "Ford is my auto" I shall not want another. It makes me to lie down in muddy places. It restoreth not my gold but lendeth me to the paths of debt for its namesake.

Yea, though I know my "Ford" perfectly me. I bear much evil for thy rods and thy shafts they "confound me." Thou preparest a "blowout" in the presence of my enemies and though I smother thy tires with patches. Thy radiator boiled over. Surely this "Ford" will not follow me all the days of my life, or I shall dwell in the "bug house" forever.
