

Hogs Won't Have to Reduce

SEARS-ROEBUCK AGRICULTURAL FOUNDATION

HOGS won't have to go on a reducing diet. They will have plenty of corn to eat, in spite of a prospective short crop, which will amount to about 2,698,000,000 bushels this year, according to the Sears-Roebuck Agricultural Foundation. Last year the crop was 2,905,000,000 bushels, considerably larger than the five-year average crop of 2,849,000,000 bushels. This year's crop was grown on 101,074,000 acres and is rated to yield 26.7 bushels per acre. More than 80 per cent of the corn crop is fed to live stock, and hogs consume more than 40 per cent of the crop. This year hogs have been scarce and have not eaten as much from last year's crop as normally. The corn year begins November 1. A year ago the carry-over from 1924 was only 61,000,000 bushels, but because of the shortage of hogs and other live stock the carry-over on November 1 from the 1925 crop will be more than 500,000,000 bushels. This, with the present crop, will be ample to meet all needs, the Foundation estimates, so the hogs and other live stock will not have to go hungry.

Growers in western North Carolina will harvest a fine crop of apples this fall. It's a good time for folks in the piedmont and coastal sections of the State to learn the quality of this home grown product.

A group of farmers in Franklin county will net $10 per thousand feet for pine timber because of working together in selling their product.

BEEF WORK BEGUN IN EASTERN CAROLINA

Raleigh, Oct. 20.—Now that the cattle tick has finally been eradicated from all sections of eastern North Carolina, plans are being made by the North Carolina Experiment Station to begin some work with beef cattle in this territory. The first tests will be made at the Blackland Branch Station at Wenona in Washington County.

"The cattle tick quarantine was finally lifted from the entire State on December 1, 1925, almost exactly 20 years after the first work in eradicating the tick was begun," says Prof. R. S. Curtis of the animal husbandry department at State College. "Anticipating this last step in tick eradication, we worked out definitely the original plan set on foot some years ago. Recently we bought 20 native cows from Holly Ridge which will be wintered on the reed lands and native grasses of the Wenona farm. Eighty acres have been set aside for this purpose. This land has been fenced and water put in. We are now preparing to build a barn to care for the cattle during winter."

Prof. Curtis states that the cows will be bred to a pure bred Hereford bull and a complete record kept of any improvement made through the successive steps of selection and breeding. Photographs will be made of all the original animals and these records will be continued along with an economic study of the cost of producing beef cattle under Eastern Carolina conditions.

Pasture plots are also being seeded at Wenona this fall to determine the best grasses adapted to the blacklands. The native pastures will be supplemented in part with tame grasses after the determinations have been made. Prof. Curtis states that some of the reed lands will be retained to make an economic study of these for cattle growing.

Prof. Curtis believes that Eastern Carolina may in time become a cattle producing section. There is much interest in this work now and when more has been learned about the pasture grasses, the industry will likely develop in a satisfactory way.

COOLIDGE ASKS PEOPLE TO VOTE

President Greeting Oratorical Contest Delegates

Proper Use of Franchise Not So Much Matter of Head as of Heart

Washington, Oct. 15.—An appeal for all citizens to exercise the franchise, was made by President Coolidge tonight in extending greetings to the members of the first international oratorical contest in Washington auditorium.

"Whenever a choice is to be made in electing a public officer," the President asserted, "all those who can qualify are under the most solemn and binding obligation to register their decision at the ballot box. To fail in that is to be disloyal to our whole system of self-government. On our theory, that the people are sovereign to neglect to vote is to abdicate.

"We do not present to rely for correct decisions on the judgment of the selfish and interested few, but rather on the patriotic choice of the great body of candid and independent citizens. We rely on the expression of the impartial voters. A true election represents the untampered expression of their will. It is their voice that speaks with divine authority."

In outlining the attributes of good citizenship, Mr. Coolidge placed with the appreciation of the responsibility of voting, respect for American institutions of government, and obedience to the law. All these attributes, he asserted, would in his opinion, "not be found except among a religious people."

The oratorical contest he commended as a movement which would interest young people "in a study of the science of government, especially as exemplified in the institutions of their own country."

In the United States, he continued, it would, it was hoped, lead to a broader knowledge of fundamental principles of government, "especially as exemplified in the American constitution." Candid study in the constructive and affirmative side, after a period of adverse criticism of political institutions with its effect felt especially by new immigrant elements of the population, he asserted, would reveal that "our government is simply what the people through their duly constituted procedure sanction, ordain and establish."

"While each of our citizens ought to have sufficient faith and knowledge to reinforce their belief in America," he continued, "after all, good citizenship is not so much a matter of information as of disposition, not so much of the head as of the heart, not so much dependent upon knowledge as upon sentiment. Those who want to do right have little difficulty in finding out the right."

"Observance of the law is the very essence of self-government. It is the main source of certainty in all social relationships. Without it all those elements would be lacking on which we are dependent for economic structure. The protection of property, the security of the person, would be gone. The entire basis for credit would be lacking. No standard of value for property could exist. Justice would vanish. The whole foundation of civilization would crumble. The protection of the weak would disappear. The sole reliance would be force. Might alone would rule."

"It is to rescue the people from these conditions that constitutions are adopted and statutes enacted. But all these will be of little avail unless there is fostered and nourished in the minds of our citizens a rugged respect for law and obedience to its decrees."

Saves Money—Beautiful

Bakes Better

Any housewife ought to consider well the cooking and wearing qualities, the fuel economy and the appearance of the range she buys. Surely you know from experience with other things that it's false economy to buy a poor range that wears out quickly and often makes the best cook fail. The only true economy is economy in the long run. Therein lies the economy of the Majestic. It cuts down fuel and repair bills and its long life of never failing efficiency makes it cost less per year of service than any other range in the world.

A Square Deal—Why?

The Majestic Range demonstration is your best guarantee of complete satisfaction. Here you learn everything about the range in advance. You study it with other women who are just as anxious as you are to cook better and "buy right." There is no high pressure salesmanship. No knocking at your back door urging you to buy a bargain range you have never seen before. We are the local Majestic dealers. And we will be right here (long after your range is old) to guarantee its performance.
