JUDGE RAULSTON
STRONG IN MR.
BRYAN'S FAITH

Jude at Scopes Trial Opposes Evolutionary Theory and Lauds Bryan

Standing firmly on absolute and literal truth of the Bible, Judge J. T. Raulston, of Winchester, Tenn., who presided during the now famous Scopes trial, addressed a chautauqua audience at Jacksonville, Ill., Friday afternoon.

Interest in the coming of Judge Raulston to that city was heightened by the fact that William Jennings Bryan, central figure in the Scopes trial, spent some of the earlier years of his life there as a college student and where he began the practice of law. It was from that city that Mr. Bryan went to Lincoln, Neb., to further carry on the public life which would give him national fame.

The Tennessee jurist said that during the trial at Dayton he had asked one of the eminent men associated with the defense for his definition of evolution and that the answer was not one which satisfied his mind and spirit. He said he would first of all ask all evolutionists if they had any proof of their theory.

Secondly, if their theory does not tend to destroy the Bible and civilization? In the third place he would ask them if their theory is reconcilable with the theory of creation as given in the Bible. Then he told his audience:

"I am here today to oppose this theory which would destroy God's Word." Quoting the words of Mr. Bryan, which have often been heard since the Scopes trial, he said: "It is better to give more attention to the Rock of Ages and less attention to the ages of the rocks."

Judge Raulston told that Mr. Bryan asked that he be merciful when one of the attorneys in the defense was cited for contempt of court and said that this was but one of many indications of the spirit of Bryan, for all through the trial the opposing attorneys jeered and sneered at him and his theories.

THE DEARBORN INDEPENDENT

A change in the policy of Henry Ford's publication, the Dearborn Independent, was announced a few days ago. Advertising will be accepted beginning with the October 3, 1925, issue of the Magazine.

The Dearborn Independent has not carried a line of paid advertising since it has been the property of Mr. Ford and the change in policy reflects a growing feeling on the part of the public to expect as a buying guide a certain amount of advertising in magazines of its choice.

However, advertising in the Dearborn Independent is to be kept within certain definite limits. Under the new policy the magazine is to be increased in size from 32 pages to 48 pages, but the amount of space available in each issue will be only thirty-three and a third per cent of the total space inside, or in the 48-page magazine only 16 pages will carry advertisements exclusive of covers. This rule is said to be unique in the publishing field. Other requirements are made relative to the kind and nature of advertising which will be acceptable.

The Dearborn Independent, then a small country weekly newspaper, was acquired by Mr. Ford in 1918. All paid advertising was dropped and the paper changed to a sixteen-page magazine. In May of this year, with the installation of new presses, the magazine was increased to 32 pages of standard size. The Dearborn Independent, since becoming a Ford property, has become one of the most widely discussed publications in the world. It is distributed to over 600,000 paid subscribers.

NOW YOU TELL ONE

A three-foot king snake recently became entangled with the interior of a high-powered electric transformer on the main line of a power company at El Centro, California.

For more than a minute 18,000 volts of electricity coursed through the reptile's body, without so much as taking the curl out of his tail, according to reports received by the North and South Carolina Public Utility Information Bureau.

Employees, armed with clubs, were called upon to kill the snake.

Wealthy Judge (lecturing a prisoner)—A clear conscience, my man, is more to be desired than riches.

Prisoner—All right, sir, I'll swap with you.—Life.

GOV. McLEAN CALLED ON TO PASS ON SPECIAL COURT TO TRY COLE

The request of Solicitor Don Phillips and Judge P. A. McElroy, now holding the courts of the district for a special term of Richmond County Superior Court to try W. B. Cole, Rockingham millionaire cotton mill manufacturer, charged with the murder of W. W. Ormond, former sweetheart of his daughter, has been passed up to Governor A. W. McLean for a personal decision.

The formal request from judge and solicitor, which as far as a hurried examination of official records could disclose has always been sufficient to secure a special term, was based on the grounds that the docket for the October term is congested and that the Cole case will probably consume a week. Charles H. England, private secretary to the Governor, has been acting on such matters but as defense attorneys have requested that the term be not called, all the facts in the case were laid before Governor McLean, who is on a vacation in the woods of Wisconsin.

Mr. England stated, however, that the matter of a judge to hold the court, on which there has also been much parleying, will not be determined until the Governor's return. Judge Thomas J. Shaw, requested by the prosecution, is the only judge in the entire State who does not have a court on that week and it is stated that this furnished the reason for his designation by the solicitor.

Governor McLean has returned from his vacation and no doubt he will act in this matter at once.

THEY WERE ALL GUILTY

An elderly man of ultra-convivial habits but without learned and bookish, was haled before the bar of justice in a country town. "Ye're charged with bein' drunk and disorderly," snapped the magistrate. "Have ye anything to say why sentence should not be pronounced?"

"Man's inhumanity to man makes countless thousands mourn," began the prisoner in a flight of oratory. "I am not so debased as Poe, so profligate as Byron, so ungrateful as Keats, so intemperate as Burns, so timid as Tennyson, so vulgar as Shakespeare, so—"

"That'll do, that'll do," interrupted the magistrate. "Ninety days. And, officer, take down that list of names he mentioned and round 'em up. I think they're as bad as he is."—Legion Weekly.

The town authorities have put into the hands of an attorney the delinquent taxes of the town. Pay up.

Wake County Jurors For

A Washington lawyer died some time ago in a Paris cafe taking a drink. Vice President Marshall died in Washington reading the Bible. How do you want to die? Maybe you would say you don't, but what we mean is, what would you want to be doing if you knew you were going to die in five minutes?
