FARM CONDITIONS BETTER

No section of this nation is as completely devoted to agriculture as the region west of the Missouri and north of San Francisco.

Reports from banks that make a specialty of loaning on farming lands show that farming industry is more stabilized and on a better business basis than since the war.

There is more inquiry for land and that is surely a healthful sign, and agriculture is coming back with a mighty swing of the pendulum in favor of the farmer.

Improved conditions are due to improved prices of farm products and that is helping business on all lines, but farmers like other classes, have been living up to it not beyond their incomes in too many cases.

With ready money in their pockets they are one of the shining marks for the "get rich quick" operator. It is important, if they wish to protect their profits this year, that before they invest in questionable undertakings they investigate thoroughly through their bank or other reliable agency.

REST OF STOLEN MONEY IS FOUND

Rocky Mount, Sept. 29.—The $35,000 stolen from the local postoffice on the night of September 15 has all been recovered. The money was contained in three bags, two of which were found Saturday concealed in the basement of the postoffice building the other bag containing $15,000 was found this afternoon by William Duffey, resident postal inspector, hidden near the postoffice building, but just off the government premises. The finding this afternoon by Inspector Duffey of the missing money clears up that part of the robbery in connection with which John Burges, postal clerk was placed under arrest. Burges was the sole clerk on duty at the time of the robbery and is now a patient in a local hospital where he was taken that evening because of a bullet wound in his side, which he maintained was inflicted by white masked men who entered the

THE WELFARE WORKERS MEET

Outline Needs of the County; Discuss Other Matters

Workhouse for depraved women, a detention home or younger girls and boys, and a county hospital where tubercular patients could be cared for were the three most pressing needs of Wake county as outlined by Mrs. T. W. Bickett, county superintendent of Charities and Public Welfare, at a meeting of welfare workers of Wake county Saturday in the county court house. Preventive work in saving the young people, she declared was the most important phase of the work.

Mrs. Kate Burr Johnson, State commissioner of Charities and Public Welfare, and H. D. Farrell, probation officer, outlined briefly the work in their respective fields, and Rev. Charles F. Hudson, pastor of the Southside Baptist church spoke of the need of welfare work in this county. Berry O'Kelly from Berry O'Kelly Training School at Method, gave assurances of the desire of negroes to co-operate in a welfare program.

The meeting was featured by a male negro quartet who rendered several of the old negro spirituals and the singing of "I Want To Be a Christian In My Heart," by the colored half of the congregation. The hymn began with everyone singing, but gradually the white people ceased singing preferring to listen to the exquisite harmony rather than mar it with their own voices.

Mrs. Bickett drew a vivid picture of the nefarious work that older women are doing in Raleigh teaching young girls their trade on the streets. "Those who have gone beyond hope of recovery should be separated from our young girls," she declared, "and placed where they can be made to do work that is of some benefit to humanity."

Mr. Farrell also spoke of the need of a detention home in connection with the juvenile court work. It would provide a place to send youngsters who should not be confined in prison where they will come in contact with full fledged criminals. He also explained the status of the juvenile court. Mr. Farrell is a welfare worker under the Rockefeller Foundation Fund.

Although it is mandatory that only 29 counties in the State have public welfare departments, Mrs. Johnson stated, 56 counties are now maintaining separate public welfare departments. Briefly their work consisted of giving the under privileged a chance, she declared.

"Those who cannot fit themselves into our social scheme create our human problems. Unfortunately there is an idea abroad that anyone can do social service work like anyone can teach the children of the State. Both are erroneous. In dealing with human problems, it requires not only delicacy and training, but experience and most of all a spirit of unselfishness, energy and courage.

Mrs. Johnson described Wake as it would be were all the social evils remedied, and expressed the wish that this time would soon come.

Many tributes were paid to Mrs. Bickett and the work that she is doing in Wake county. The meeting was largely attended by welfare workers, ministers, chiefs of police, and others.

building and rifled the registered mail pouch.

The money found today was that shipped by the First National Bank of this city to the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond. This package, like the other two was unbroken, the bills being intact and bearing the stamps placed upon them at time of dispatch. The packages recovered Saturday were one from the National Bank of Rocky Mount, containing $15,000 and addressed to the State and City Bank and Trust Company at Richmond and another containing $5,000 from the Citizens Bank of Spring Hope to the Merchant's National Bank of Richmond. The finding of the missing $15,000 clears up the money angle of the case. The money was found just off the postoffice grounds, a few feet from the gutter which runs along the edge of the government grounds, it was stated.

While nearly every industry in Germany is feeling the effects of business depression, makers of knit goods and artificial silk are rushed with orders.

MAKE MONEY RAISING HOGS IN SAMPSON

Does it pay to raise hogs in Eastern North Carolina? The farmers of Sampson county say that it does and pays well. To that they believe this they recently shipped three carloads one from Clinton, one from Garland and one from Roseboro. This makes four from Sampson county this year.

They bring on the average from 13 1-4 to 14 1-4 live weight and it only costs the farmers about 8-9 cents to raise them. Does it pay, what can the farmer raise on the farm as easy as he can hogs that will return him 50 per cent profit on his investment? Joe Warren received for his fifteen hogs $475.27 net, and his cost was approximately $225.00, which gave him a net profit of $10.00 per hog.

In the car that was shipped from Clinton, Joe Warren, Henry Bizzel, Dan Currie, H. D. Leonard, Albert Matthews, and William Peterson were the farmers co-operating in the shipment.

These hogs were shipped with the co-operation of the Agricultural teachers of Sampson county. They are planning to ship several carloads next spring. Any one wishing to place some hogs for shipment in the spring should get in touch with one of the Agricultural teachers (J. M. Henley, at Salemburg; C. W. Warwick, Ingold; J. O. Anthony, Shady Grove Dunn No. 6). They will be glad to give any information as to methods of feeding or care that the hogs should have.

Hogs are scarce in the United States and may be higher next Spring than they are now. Hogs are higher as a rule in the Spring months of March and April and the fall months of August and September than at any other time of the year. The Eastern Carolina farmer can take advantage of this and ship at the peak market due to the mildness of the climate.

LOST AND FOUND—The Record will help you solve such questions.

Findings of the National Bureau of Economics Research show that the income of the average person in the United States doubled between 1909 and 1921. Even allowing for the increased price of commodities, the purchasing power of his income has materially grown.
