

DISCUSS PHASES
RED CROSS WORK

Regional Conference
Welcomed by Gov.
McLean

Paying a glowing tribute to the American Red Cross as the greatest national organization for the relief of human suffering, Governor Angus W. McLean welcomed representatives from some 25 chapters to the Red Cross Regional Conference which met in an all-day session in Raleigh last week. A number of the officials of the national organization met with local representatives to discuss every phase of the home work. The morning session was held at the Sir Walter Hotel, and was presided over by Mrs. Josephus Daniels, who introduced Governor McLean.

The Red Cross aim or ideal of service expressed in the motto of the Junior Red Cross as "I Serve," and the Red Cross motto of "Service to Others," was brought to the attention of the body by J. Auther Jeffers, of Washington, assistant to the Vice-Chairman, and in charge of the Red Cross work in this State among eight other Southern States.

The conference was brought to a close with a demonstration by the Raleigh Life Saving Corps in the swimming pool at the Blind Institute.

"The American Red Cross was the one bright spot in the last war," Governor McLean declared in his address, "and if for no other reason it would be remembered for the service rendered on the battlefield by its nurses." He pointed out the case of Edith Cavell, and maintained that there were many Edith Cavells in the rank and file of the nurses, although all were not called on to suffer the indignities and death which met her.

While not disparaging the service rendered by the men of this country during the war, he was of the opinion that the women had rendered even greater service. This war, as all others in history, he declared, had been won by the mothers of men.

Similarly the Red Cross had reflected its glory on the country it served, he said. And there were many dark places where the name of America would not be known if it were not for the service of this body. Governor McLean also paid tribute to Judge John Partin Payne, who is at the head of the national organization.

"I know of no other organization for service," he said in closing, "that deserves to be sustained to such an extent as the American Red Cross."

Floyd Sanders, chairman of the Cumberland County Chapter, made the response to the address of welcome, and told of the work of this county in running a preventorium where under-nourished children who had come in contact with tuberculosis are treated. G. H. Lawrence, Chairman of the Home Service Work in Chapel Hill, told of the opportunities for service in the home field, and incidentally of the intricacies of filling out the proper forms and applications.

Speaking of the membership campaign which the Red Cross puts on each fall, J. Auther Jeffers urged that interest be first created and that membership would follow. Service, he held up as the chief ideal of the organization, pointing out that it was not financed by a budget as other charitable organizations, but depended solely on memberships for its funds.

"Membership is enlisting people of your city for some type of service," he declared. "And the success of the chapter depends on the willingness of the membership to serve. Each chapter should resemble a fire department in training, and in readiness to meet an emergency when one arose.

"If you first arouse interest, finances, membership and other incidental things will follow. And it is up to the individual chapters to do the work. The national organization has no power in itself. You are the American Red Cross, and without you the national organization ceases to exist."

Nutrition service was the theme of Miss Clyde Schuman, director of nutrition of the American National Red Cross. She spoke of the necessity of feeding children with as much care and intelligence as is used in feeding animals, and cited instances where neglect was almost criminal.

The luncheon at the Woman's Club was in charge of the Wake County Chapter, with Mrs. J. J. Bernard, chairman, presiding. Mr. Jeffers spoke on disaster relief work, and the necessity for well-organized, trained workers. The American Red Cross is the only national and international organization offering relief in disaster cases, and an average of more than one application a week is received from foreign countries desiring aid.

Mr. Jeffers spoke of the two periods of work, the emergency period and period of rehabilitation, and the fact that need rather than loss was the basis of operation. "Ninety per cent of the disasters occur between Friday evening and Monday morning," he stated, and there have been more disasters in the last 15 months than ever before in a similar length of time.

Joseph G. Brown presided at the afternoon session, which was also held at the Woman's Club, and was featured by an address by Miss Nell Whaley, of the national organization on "The Junior Red Cross," and a talk by Miss Malinda Harvey, Assistant and Director of Public Health Nursing, on "Home Hygiene and care of the Sick."

David J. Yates, Assistant Director First Aid and Life Saving, gave a lecture on the work of the Red Cross in this branch, and the various methods employed to resuscitate drowning persons, etc. This lecture was illustrated by the Raleigh Life Saving Corps at the Blind Institute Swimming Pool. This corps is the best inland corps in the country, Mr. Yates said.

ANNOUNCEMENT

We Wish to Announce to The Public, That on November 1st, 1925, We Will Consolidate Our Practice, And Our Terms Thereafter Will Be Strictly Cash or Satisfactory Terms.

We feel by doing a consolidated practice we will be able to serve the public better in several ways.

First, by our present plans we expect one to be available at all times to handle any emergency.

Secondly, we feel that we have been here long enough, should you have any preference you can see that aside, because at all times both of us will have your health and welfare at heart.

Thirdly, in doing a consolidated practice we hope to build up a good office practice by equipping our offices better and better from time to time and trying to keep one man in the office all the while.

The business world does business in a business-like manner and we are forced from past experience to put our work on business bases, by so doing we will be able to meet our expenses and obligations by demanding cash or suitable terms.

Having served the public in our profession for a number of years and having been paid poorly for our services, due to the fact that we have not limited credit to any one, we are forced to adhere to cash or satisfactory arrangements.

It is necessary that we receive pay for our services in order for us to meet our financial obligations and avoid embarrassment, for we cannot pay our creditors with our work on our books unpaid.

It seems to be the belief of most of the people of this community, that a doctor has plenty of money and therefore will not make any sacrifice to pay the doctor who has been called at all hours of the night, rain or shine, and who responded promptly in time of trouble. If this community will stop and meditate, they will see that we have been forced to the above terms, due to the fact that we are the first thought of in sickness and last thought of in health, and only paid after all other wants and pleasures are gratified.

We have no intention of placing a hardship on any one for health is the most essential thing in this life and we do know that provision can be made for medical attention just as you provide for your living supplies and in so doing it will be just as easy to pay the doctor as it is to pay any one else.

We do sincerely hope, by this consolidation, that we will be of greater service to our community.
