

HIS, THAT AND THE OTHER

(By Mrs. Theo. B. Davis)

The friend of whom I spoke last week, Mrs. Ophelia Lee, is sick at her home out near the Talton store ace. The doctors say she has heart trouble, and I am sure they are right. Her heart is broken. There is no one else like her and no one knowing her would ever forget the experience. In her suffering she has the sympathy and prayers of many.

If you want color, beauty, and fragrance, plant pinks. Some catalogs list them as dianthus. They have blues nor yellows, but every possible shade and combination of white, pink and red. They are easily grown, bloom the first summer, are hardy, needing to make large clumps, have both single and double varieties and are seed are cheap.

Youth Drowns

(Special Correspondent)

Last Sunday morning, Monro King, a youth about sixteen years old, was drowned in Mitchell's Mill pond. He was in swimming with two of his cousins, Wiley and Leonard King. Monro is said to have dived and hit his head on a rock, stunning him. His cousins did all they could for his rescue, but to no avail. He was buried in New Hope cemetery.

He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul King of near Rolesville. The family has the sympathy of the entire community.

Mrs. Baker Passes Away

On last Friday morning Mrs. Ben Baker arose and went about her daily tasks as usual until, between 8:00 and 9:00 o'clock, she died suddenly and peacefully without pain. She was 71 years old, and had been a widow for 13 years. She was before her marriage Emma Jane Joyner. A sister, Mrs. Theresa Chapman, are all who now remain.

Funeral service was held at the Zebulon Baptist Church which Mrs. Baker had for a faithful member. Rev. A. L. Joyner, pastor of some members of the choir sang the songs and friends covered her with flowers. She had hoped to die in June—and it was. Her death was like quiet, peaceful and beautiful rest which made the faith stronger.

She was laid to rest in the cemetery and it was with no tear shed.

She was a guide who came to her lands, unseen by mortal eye.

She touched her gently—do not say she struck her—she had her what the Master bade her say: "My hand in his, all unresistingly followed where he showed the way."

Her long sickness and her children's grieving kept her from her by Death, who was her friend; other friends and loved ones being grateful, mourn that earthly life had such an end?

FLIER SEEMS LOST
Othmar Hausner, the flier who was reported to have made a trans-Atlantic flight, is thought to be lost. He left New York last Friday morning and was heard from along the American coast, prepared to start for Warsaw, but mist made it difficult to track of the plane. The insurance company is said to be ready to pay to the wife of the flier the amount of his policy with $50,000.

Garner Girl Wins

Mildred Price, of Garner, who won first place in Raleigh this week in a triangular contest between Wake, Franklin and Warren county winners of the fifth annual essay contest sponsored by the North Carolina Cotton Growers Cooperative Association, will go to Smithfield June 15 and compete for the right to enter the State finals in Raleigh some time during July.

This was the third win for Miss Price, she previously having won out in Garner High School and Wake county preliminaries.

The subject of the essay contest, which approximately 7,000 students from more than 100 high schools have entered, is Cotton Production in North Carolina—How to Make it Profitable.

Treating her subject in an imaginary conversation between an old man and his grandchild, the time being 1970 or thereabouts, Miss Price stressed the importance of living-at-home, pointed to the great influence of county agents, agricultural teachers and the press and cited the advantages of scientific and business like farming. She also touched upon better seed, "one-variety" communities and cooperative buying and marketing.

Louise Williams, of Bunn, Franklin County, took second and Frank Ridout, of Warrenton, Warren county, third place.

Should Miss Price win out in the Central district contest at Smithfield June 15 she would be eligible to enter the State finals and compete for the grand prize of $50 and a one-year college scholarship.

PRICES MAY BE LOWER

Washington.—Plans are being formulated to reduce the cost of federal-state grading of tobacco at auction markets next fall. The Department of Agriculture tried the proposed new plan at certain markets in Kentucky and Tennessee last December and found them so satisfactory that it is hoped it may be widely used during the coming season.

The Election

In the Senate race R. R. Reynolds led Cameron Morrison by about 11,000 votes. It is certain that there will be a second primary, and a hard fought battle. The Raleigh Times has already announced its support of Morrison, saying Reynolds is not only a wet but a demagogue as well. Reynolds claims the support of his defeated opponents in the second primary.

Ehringhaus leads for governor with 165,000 votes; with Fountain second, 113,000 and Maxwell third, with 100,000. Fountain will not announce his intentions until after the official vote is published, but he is expected to run in the next primary.

Graham, for Lieutenant-Governor, of Hillsboro is nominated over his two opponents; Stacey Wade was nominated for secretary of State; Baxter Durham appears to be successful in his nomination as State Auditor; Attorney General Brummitt is certain to hold his office another term.

A. L. Fletcher has a slight lead over Clarence Mitchell for Commissioner of Labor and Printing and they will "go to the mat" in a second primary, July 2.

Winborne won over Macon for corporation commissioner; Dan C. Boney doubled the vote of his opponent Morton for Insurance commissioner.

In Wake County politics, Sheriff Turner was nominated over both opponents. Irregularities were claimed in the Zebulon precinct and the Brown forces will probably contest the election. Ellington, Register of Deeds; Holding, Auditor; Mangum, Treasurer; Warring, Coroner, were all re-nominated.

For the Senate, Hinsdale won over Bunn. Aycock, Upchurch and Womble were the three high candidates for the House of Representatives. It is probable that Mrs. Shearon, Dr. Douglass and Oliver, the next three highest, will enter a second primary against them.

W. H. Rhodes was nominated by a good majority, over Bennett of Raleigh as judge of the Little River Recorder's Court.

Danger! Typhoid!!

There has been a remarkable reduction in the typhoid fever rate since 1900. In that year in the registration area of the United States the rate was 35.9 per 100,000. In 1926 the rate had decreased to 6.5 per 100,000. The vaccinations against this disease have been responsible to a large extent for this remarkable reduction, but not altogether. Improved sanitary conditions, improved milk and water supplies have played their part.

Unfortunately the typhoid rate in the United States at the present time seems to be upwards. This is true of the State of North Carolina, and also true of Wake County. Let us hope that this upward trend does not mean that we are going to have an increased number of cases in this state and county this year. But it is obliged to give the state and county officials some concern, especially at this time when depressed economic conditions are abroad in the land, affecting the entire citizenship.

It is apparent that the majority of people, due to economic conditions over which they have no control, are less able to pay for sickness and disability, whether due to preventable causes or not, than ever before. For this reason it behooves every person to use his best judgment in applying preventive measures that will make his home safer from diseases that can be prevented. The typhoid campaign, which will begin on June 6th, and continue for four weeks, offers an opportunity for all people in the county to protect themselves against typhoid fever and diphtheria.

Marriage Of Prominent People

On last Saturday evening at 8:30, in the Zebulon Baptist Church, Dr. Edward Herring, of Raleigh was married to Miss Hazel Chamblee, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. B. Chamblee of Zebulon. The ceremony was performed by Rev. R. H. Herring, pastor of the church, and father of the bridegroom.

The church had been made beautiful for the occasion by friends of the families of the young couple. Messdames G. S. Barbee, G. S. Williams, and W. C. Campen with Prof. P. H. Massey had charge of the decorating, in which they were assisted by others. The background of long-leaf pine with ferns massed at the base emphasized the white lattices and arch that were twined with green vines and pink roses. Tall baskets of yucca, starry white jessamine and fern stood before palms on each side the rostrum. Dozens of white tapers lighted the scene. Not only the work, but the flowers and plants were furnished by interested friends in town and community.

Mrs. Guy Lee (Mozelle Chamblee) at the piano played Venetian Love Song and accompanied Dr. Herring's cousin, Miss Lolita Ellis of Wilmington, who sang just before the wedding march was played.

The brides maids, Misses Doris and Melba Chamblee, Cabell Campen and Ruby Braswell, made a charming picture as they stood on the white covered rostrum in dresses of soft colors, and carrying large bouquets of larkspur, snapdragon and sweet peas, grown in local gardens and tied with big bows of tulle. The ushers in formal black made a striking color contrast.

Miss Aliene Chamblee, made of honor, carried a sheaf of pink flowers to match her dress. Frederick Page, ring bearer, small Mishew Ann Harris and Carolyn Massey, flower girls, added to the picture presented. The bride, in white satin with long train and veil and carrying a bouquet of lily of the valley was like the brides in fairy stories. She was given in marriage by her father, and the solemn ring ceremony was most impressive.

In addition to the numerous relatives and friends from this section, the wedding was attended by many from a distance.

SUICIDE KILLS MOTHER ALSO
In Nebraska a sixteen year old boy took a pistol to the cellar of his home pointed the weapon at himself and pulled the trigger. The bullet passed through his body and through the floor above, and the mother of the suicide was also killed by it.

In Brief

PRISONERS ESCAPE

Smithfield.—Six prisoners escaped from the Smithfield jail early Wednesday morning. One was charged with murder. They sawed through the walls of their cells into the main corridor. No trace of them has been found.

NAILS SAVE LIFE

New Bern.—Nails in the pocket of Otis Boyd, near Vanceboro probably saved his life when he was attacked by a rattlesnake. The snake's fangs struck the nails and were found in the pocket of the man, who killed the snake.

CHILE'S NEW LEADER PROMISES NEW JOBS FOR ALL

Carlos Davila, head of the socialist junta that is now ruling in Chile, has outlined the policies of his party and predicts that in one month there will not be one unemployed man in all Chile.

Americans are said to have more than one thousand million dollars invested in Chile, besides a 350 million nitrate trust.

BONUS MEN MAY FAST

Washington.—More than 7,000 ex-service men are in Washington to plead for immediate payment of a bonus on service certificates, while many others are hastening to join them. Authorities are becoming anxious over the situation. Food for the veterans is almost gone and no one knows just how they will be fed. If food is provided by the government, the men may greatly increase their numbers and stay indefinitely; if no food is provided, the men may become hungry and disorderly.

N. C. THIRD IN FISHERIES

Washington.—The U. S. Bureau of Fisheries reports that North Carolina ranked third in the value of commercial fisheries products in 1930. The total value for the state for the year was $1,836,481. There were 5,205 persons engaged in fisheries occupations.

ANTHRACITE COAL IN CHATHAM COUNTY

A. S. Brower, director of the state division of purchase and contract reports the discovery of anthracite coal in Chatham County, near Gulf. The vein is said to be 40 inches deep, and Mr. Brower says the state will use quantities of it, if tests prove that it measures up to the required analysis.

Prison Camp Steward Killed

Raleigh. June 7.—Three convicts confined at the state prison farm at Cary, four miles from here, this morning shot and fatally wounded D. H. Brantley, camp steward, and made their escape in an automobile they commandeered from a passerby.

Brantley died in a hospital this afternoon several hours after a pistol bullet from weapon in the hands of the three plugged into his side.

The prisoners James Autry, Robert Cook and Bud Travis, all white men, shot Brantley while struggling with him over the possession of a shot gun. They had previously taken him unawares from the back, placed a pistol against his body and ordered him to give them safe passage from the farm camp stockade.

Brantley complied with the order that he conduct the men from the camp and ordered a guard to put down his shot gun. As one of the escaping men believed to have been either Travis or Cook reached for the shot gun, Brantley grappled with him. He discharged both barrels of the gun and was then shot.

The three men continued on their way to freedom holding guards at bay with two pistols and a shot gun and on the country road passing the camp held up John Mooney, Jr., of Raleigh, and took his car.

Investigation revealed that the convicts got their pistol with which they held up Brantley by knocking D. M. Narron, vegetable foreman, in the head with an iron bar.
