

Control Blue Mold

There is no definite means for absolute control but the losses may be reduced through the following practices. Place the plant bed in a warm, well-drained area and sow seed at varying intervals so as to have plants developing at different times. Do not transplant infected plants. Leave these in the bed and apply from one to three pounds of nitrate of soda about twice a week to each 100 square yards of bed. Keep the plants well watered and wait until they have developed new leaf foliage and a root system before transplanting.

It may be that the mills of the gods grind slowly because they get paid for overtime.

Colored Column

The third year class of the Zebulon-Wakefield school was disappointed in the closing of school a week earlier than was expected for the Christmas holidays. Several activities had to be postponed or given up entirely.

The class had planned accepting a couple of "opportunities" among colored people of the community. When school reopened the class carried out this particular plan.

The students brought meal, flour, potatoes, meat, soap, canned fruit. Sufficient was brought to divide between two worthy families. The families were surprised, Friday of the past week and were graciously profuse in their thanks to the students.

R. A. Carroll Jr., is class advisor. On Friday afternoon on the school grounds the Zebulon-Wakefield school split two basketball games with the Berry O'Kelly Training School.

The local girls lost to the tune of 8-2 and the boys won 10-8. Dorothy Hopkins scored the only field goal for the local team. Sonnie Weaver chalked up the first tally for the boys. Both games were tense and exciting through out. The visiting boys team dragged at the half 8-2 but came back with a fighting spirit. Local fans sighed with relief when the whistle blew for the end of the game. For indications pointed toward the necessity of playing an extra period.

The local team will invade the lair of the visitors Friday, January 13. The coach, R. A. Carroll has been working with both teams to iron out all kinks. The game of last week was the first of the season.

All future games will be played indoors at the school building. Admission for students will be ten cents and for adults fifteen cents.

The students of the seventh grade were glad to welcome back their teacher Miss Mildred Taylor who during the first week of school after the Xmas vacation was forced to be absent because an attack of influenza.

R. A. Carroll the local principal was kept quite busy during the holidays. Being corresponding secretary of the North Carolina Negro High School Athletic Association and recently appointed chairman of the committee to direct debating among accredited Negro High Schools.

This is the fourth year Mr. Carroll has assisted in the direction of debating in the state. Formerly he was secretary of the committee.

The subject was delessed to school during the latter part of the vacation period. The question this year is; Resolved, That North Carolina Should Adopt Sales Tax as a Feature of its System of Revenue. The question is one that will be discussed much during the coming months.

On Saturday January, 14 the local principal will attend the annual meeting of the Negro Athletic Association to be held at the Johnston County Training School in Smithfield. Mr. Carroll as secretary of the committee on the revision of the consolidation will make the report of the committee.

The accreditation of the Zebulon-Wakefield School this year can be assured only thru the cooperation, sacrifices and assistance of both white and colored friends and patrons of the school. Help in money or books is solicited.

Parents, patrons and friends are gladly welcome at anytime they visit the school.

Many students both in the elementary school and the high school bear to see if their names appear as honor students or as students who have attended school each day.

Honor students must have an average of B. Many have declared they will be on both lists for the fourth school month. Boys are in the majority on the honor roll at present.

On Tuesday January Seventeenth the program committee of the P. T. A. has planned for a community affair at which you will be highly entertained. Admission will be five cents.

Negro history week will be celebrated the second week in February, led by Mr. Hunt who has charge of interesting programs have been planned.

On Tuesday January 24, the Young Brother's workers in the Wake Forest Industrial School will present a concert at the Zebulon-Wakefield school. These musicians who accomplished with the piano, cornet, trombone will offer entertainment which will be quite enjoyable. Seats reserved for white patrons.

All affairs given at the school are efforts to raise money toward the accreditation of the school.
