NEXT SUNDAY'S LESSON

In the lesson for next Sunday note carefully that rewards are based on faithful service, not on the number of talents given. Note, too, that the master took from the unfaithful steward, not for himself, but to give to the faithful.

We should also bear in mind the fact that faithfulness makes possible three givings—the master's to the servant; that servant's to the master; the second gift from the master.

And let us never forget that Christ is not only Lord of His stewards, but is an example for them, having been obedient to the end of His earthly life.

Can a man be a Christian and refuse to acknowledge the responsibility of stewardship?

VIRGINIA AND VIRGINIANS

Many in other states are fond of poking fun at Virginia and of asserting that her great men are underground; but once more the Mother of Presidents is proving the breeding of her sons. When a negro man this week murdered two little girls near Clifton Forge and threw their mutilated bodies into a ditch he was arrested and taken for safe keeping to another county and then to Richmond to await trial by law. Officers were determined that no crime of lynching should be perpetrated by those too much aroused for self-control. Of course there is no doubt as to the verdict following the trial; nor can there be doubt that these officers in our sister state hold sacred their oaths to support the law.

WHY AND HOW?

We confess our inability to understand how it can be that so many thousands are being given and have been given employment through relief funds while at the same time the statement is made that aid for the unemployed will probably reach new high levels this winter. Seems as though these two facts should somehow cancel each other.

NEW FEATURES

We are glad to be able to offer you this week two special features, which we hope you may enjoy regularly for weeks. One is our long-promised serial, selected by the editor and not by an assistant. The other is the Wakelon School News, which is, or should be, of prime importance to all of us regardless of whether we have children there. We have wanted ever since taking over the Record to have school news sent in regularly, but it has not before seemed possible to arrange for it.

With Miss Preslar of the English department of the high school in charge and with the cooperation of teachers in the grades we feel safe in saying that the school columns will carry each week items of much interest to our readers. If you like it, let us know.
