

Junior-Senior Banquet Given

Wakelon High School upper classmen reached the social high light of the school year Friday evening, when the Junior Class was host to the Seniors, the faculty, and members of the school board and their wives.

The banquet was staged in the Home Economics Department. The theme of the affair was a rainbow, with decorations in keeping with this idea.

The three course banquet followed a toast to the seniors by Frankie Hall, toastmistress, which was answered by Ferd Davis, who is the president of the Senior Class. It was served by members of the sophomore Home Economics class.

Throughout the evening the guests were entertained by musical numbers by Miss Hilda Fuller Dorothy Winstead, Mary Frances White, and Elizabeth Buffalo.

A toast to the rainbow was given by Miss Mary Frances White, followed by an amusing rainbow contest won by Ferd Davis.

Other toasts were to the school board by Eunice Outlaw, with response by Mr. C. V. Whitley; to the cooks by Grace Stallings with response by Miss Mary Lacy Palmer; to the faculty by Innis Perry with response by E. H. Moser.

The dinner was concluded with a farewell by Frankie Hall.

"You earn your wages"

THAT handy servant, the telephone, is a go-getter. He chases after groceries, runs to the drugstore, carries messages here, there and everywhere, and only asks a few cents a day as his wages.

It does not matter who you want or why, whether it be day or night, storm or sunshine. Lift the receiver to order a loaf of bread—casually call a friend for a brief chat—or speed a frantic summons to the doctor, it is all in the day's work to the telephone.

If you are trying to get along without a telephone in your home, it will pay you to investigate the small cost, and the different types, of telephone service.

You will then very likely agree with most folks, who believe it costs more to try to do without telephone service than it does to have it.

For information, just ask any of your friends with the telephone company, or call at the telephone Business Office.
