The study class held at the Methodist Church on Thursday of last week was both pleasant and informative. Different chapters were taught by ladies of both the Methodist and Baptist churches.

In addition to the Baptist women attending from Zebulon there were a number from Wendell, who came with members of the Methodist church at that place.

A delicious and abundant lunch was served at the noon hour, all visitors being guests of the local Methodist Society.

SCHOOL OPENINGS MAY BE POSTPONED

There is more than a chance that parents will not be forced to keep children out of school to pick cotton this fall; because it now seems probable that the schools will not open until most of the cotton has been picked. The infantile paralysis situation may make it appear best to health authorities to delay class work until some time in October. Some schools in sections of the state that have two part-time terms in a year have not been permitted to operate during the summer, so their schedules are already awry.

Judge Harwood Loses Again

The state board of law examiners last week denied the application of former Judge John H. Harwood to take the bar examination. Judge Harwood served a prison term for mutilating state records to save his only daughter from jail. At the time he was sentenced he was disbarred. After leaving prison he had his citizenship restored, but failed to get his law license back. This was his second attempt to take the examination.

CHILDREN HAVE TO WAIT

The management of Pullen Park has learned with surprise that children are having to wait in the park until their elders have had first turn at the amusement devices. Hobby-horses, see-saws and swings are being so monopolized by parents that it has been thought wise to put in checker boards and horse shoe pits to entertain them that the little ones may have a fair show with the devices known as chess.

Henry Page Dead

Henry A. Page 73, member of the prominent Moore county family of bankers and railroad men, died suddenly at his Aberdeen home on Sunday. During the war he was state food administrator. He had served in the state senate and was widely known over the state.

Individualistic in thought and manner and with a keen mind and a caustic tongue, he impressed every circle in which he moved.

Three of his brothers have also influenced the thought and activities of the state. The oldest, Walter Hines Page, was U. S. ambassador to Great Britain during the world war. Robert N. Page was for many years in congress, later devoting his time to the families banking interests. Frank Page was the engineer-chairman of the state highway commission during its heavy construction period. The only surviving brother, J. R. (called Chris, because born on Christmas day) is more interested in home life and farming and is not so well known as his brothers were.

"Cyclone" Mack Reaches Calm

Rev. Baxter F. McLendon, widely known as "Cyclone Mack," an evangelist of national reputation died at his home in Bennettsville, S. C., last week. He had just returned from a three week's tent meeting in Oklahoma City. He was 59 years old. Several years ago he conducted a meeting in the old auditorium at Raleigh.

German Flag Torn From Ship at N. Y.

A group of Jewish sympathizers in New York last week stormed on the decks of the steamer Bremen docked in the harbor there and tore down the German flag as a protest against Hitler's treatment of Jews in Germany.

Several of the raiders were arrested. German newspapers are demanding that the U. S. government apologize to the German government. However, it is not expected that there will be any serious international difficulty.

A similar instance led to the "war" between the U. S. and Mexico in 1914. A bunch of Mexican hoodlums tore down an American flag from a small ship. Josephus Daniels, then secretary of the Navy, demanded that the Mexican troops at Vera Cruz salute the U. S. flag. Upon their refusal to do so American ships fired upon the city. Out of lesser incidents have come bigger wars.

George McNeil Is After No. 2 Tag

George McNeill of Fayetteville has announced his candidacy for lieutenant governor, being third to announce. The others are Paul D. Grady of Johnston and W. P. Horton of Chatham. Mr. McNeil is a business man. He represented his district in the state senate in 1933.

The Hole In Your Pocket

Press dispatches from Washington state that in the last twelve months $7,375,000,000 has been spent, which, with $7,100,000,000 that was spent the preceding year, makes a total peacetime record spending of $14,475,000,000 for the past two years. Money has been spent twice as fast as it has been collected from the taxpayers. But all the spendings and all the borrowed money must eventually be extracted from the taxpayers' pockets.

At the end of the new fiscal year it is estimated the national debt will be approximately $35,000,000,000, or a per capita debt of $270 on every man, woman and child in the country.

These figures are so staggering in size that one cannot grasp them. But the individual tax bills of various kinds that will soon be coming due, can be readily understood by every taxpayer whose pockets will be emptied in order to pay them.

Colonel Robinson, of the Yakima (Wash.) Republic, in answering a "reactionary" citizen who asserted that taxpayers should have a voice in how their money is spent and that it should be spent as economically as possible, said:

"The idea that tax money should be spent economically is just as far out of date as the other. If tax money were spent economically, there wouldn't be more than half of it spent, and that fact alone is sufficient to condemn the idea. The prevailing thought is to spend public funds uneconomically, so that more funds can be raised and spent, thus putting more money into circulation and increasing the purchasing power of the people."

Sarcastic as this paragraph of the Colonel's, it states a distressingly flawless. Some day the peeringly plain truth. Its lucidity is possible will wake up to the fact that they pay the bill for all the "political presents" that are given to them.

Labor: Latest trouble has occurred in New England textile mills, where the union recently called a strike on one large operator, is threatening others. It is said to be inevitable that there will soon be a strike of cloak and suit workers in the east. Potential labor troubles have most big industries nervous.

MY EXPERIENCE

A few years back my wife and I Some modern things went out to buy,

And when we went into a store A salesman met us at the door. "An electric ice box," he says to me,

"That's the thing you ought to see. They're trouble-proof," he told my wife,

"And will last you all your life." "The iceman", he would then assert,

"Always tracks in a lot of dirt. For what you pay you don't get half.

The dirty iceman makes me laugh. The folks that live next door to you

They came in and bought one too." My wife then turns and says to me, "If they can buy one, so can we." Next day they came, and brought it in

And that is where our trials begin. Every time we cooled a drink

We took the ice tray to the sink, Warm water o'er the pan we'd pour,

The cubes would fall all over the floor.

And the food it tasted sorta flat; The man didn't say anything about that.

He said the air was always dry. I wonder if that's the reason why That every meal we try to eat There's the taste of bananas in the meat.

Said wife, "The food's so dry today I had to throw a lot away."

Upon my face there is a frown, Again that thing has broken down. The darn thing sprung a leak, they say, We couldn't get back in the house all day.

My wife wept then for hours and hours.

The gas had killed her birds and flowers.

I made my mind up there and then To call the iceman back again. He told of ice; we were surprized

To see the old box so modernized. "The men and the service," he says to me,

"They're neat and clean, now, wait and see."

No more breakdowns, no more repairs, And now my wife to me declares

That all the food is kept so nice Since we went back to using ice.
