

SOCIAL & PERSONAL NEWS

FOR MARY

Mary, slender little Mary,
Gently singing Him to rest,
Knew you peace that did not vary
With His head upon your breast?

Kept you tranquil, even dimly Facing then your certain loss,
With His baby beauty grimly Shadowed by a distant cross?

Blessed Mary, tender, waitful,
I who rock a little son Press him closely, prayerful grateful,
Mine is not the Holy One!

Mary, were you never sinning, Grieving that Jehovah's hand Chose your Babe from the beginning?

If you were, I understand.
Dorothy Calloway,
in Good Housekeeping.

Mr. and Mrs. Kermit Corbett went to Raleigh Sunday to see their brother, Otis Corbett, who has been very ill from ruptured appendix. He is now much improved, but is still in Rex Hospital.

H. A. Strickland of Louisburg, R. 1, was a pleasant caller in the Record Office Monday. Through a mistake his name had been listed as a subscriber on R. 2 and his coming to have the correction made was appreciated.

Mrs. Joe Trippet and infant daughter have returned from a visit to relatives in Rowan County.

Miss Cabell Campen was on the program at the alumnae luncheon at Greensboro College last week, taking greetings from the Eastern North Carolina alumnae.

We often speak of educating our children. Do we realize that our children also educate us?—Mrs.
Sigourney.

Remember that if your baby is not sweet it is most probably your fault. Every infant has a right to enough baths, clean clothes and proper foods to insure the fragrance of body and breath that belongs only to babies.
