back on the shelf to be looked over another time.

However, there are two things I CAN throw away. These are old toothbrushes and old medicine. And I know at least one person who believes that throwing away medicine means that the one it was prescribed for will get sick again. I'm more afraid they'll get sick again if I keep it.

Every year I make up my mind to do drastic things about getting rid of all junk and I'm going through the same routine this year. The end will probably be that I'll just stir up all the stuff and shove it back in where it was before. I'm really discouraged about myself.

That Might Have Been Worse

One day recently two-year-old Warren Green, youngest son of the Lester Greens, found the family Chevrolet standing in the yard. Climbing in he managed to start the car which had been left in reverse. His mother was horrified to see him and the car rush backward into and over the chicken house in which were some sitting hens and one hundred eggs for hatching. Crashing and crushing, the car next mounted the woodpile where it was stopped and Warren was removed from it. He was not hurt, but it will cost between twenty-five and fifty dollars to make needed repairs to the automobile.

On last Sunday as Mrs. R. E. Barnes and Miss Elsie Chamblee were on the road between Wendell and Zebulon in Mrs. Barnes' car which she was driving, they swerved too far to one side of the highway. In trying to regain the pavement the car was overturned and came to a stop headed back toward Wendell. Fortunately neither Mrs. Barnes nor Miss Chamblee was much hurt, though the car was somewhat damaged.

Murray Chairs

On returning home after a brief absence last Saturday the wife of the Record's editor found on her front porch a rocking-chair, brand-new, fiber-bottomed and so comfortable that she has made formal announcement of possession and given notice that this special chair is HERS.

It was made by Sonny Murray of the Murray family that has for generations specialized in these hand-made chairs of various types and sizes. Located at Murraytown they send their chairs far and near to customers whose satisfaction makes others want to buy.

It is worth a trip to their plant to see the work done by the Murray's. They emphasize stability, durability and comfort in their designs. Though made at home the finish of Murray chairs compares favorably with those from factories.
