SOIL-CONSERVING CROPS INCREASE VALUE OF CORN

Prices of Corn and Stover as for Spring of 1936

More corn can be produced per acre if the crop is raised on fields where soil-conserving crops have been grown the season before the corn is planted, according to specialists of the State College extension service. The picture above shows the increased value of corn yields when the corn crop followed rye and when it followed clover. These were the average results of a 12-year test.

The above facts were not given for publication and Mrs. Lewis will probably be surprised to see them in print, but such a record deserves publicity and praise.

GOOD RECORD

Mrs. Roy Lewis, who lives in Zebulon, stated to the associate editor of the Record that raising vegetables for the market pays well. In proof of her statement Mrs. Lewis said that last year she sold vegetables that brought in $147.00 besides what the family ate during the summer and canned for winter. All were sold on the Zebulon market. Mrs. Lewis furnished several grocers with what they wanted from her garden and had an arrangement with Hocutt Grocery Co. to take the rest on commission, paying only for those that were sold and returning to her the ones left on hand. "But I never took back anything except four small squash," she remarked. By selling only on the local market the expense of transportation to Raleigh was saved.

Great care was taken to have all vegetables fresh and cool when taken to the grocers. They were gathered very early in the morning before the sun had a chance to shine on them and were kept in the shade until sold.

This enthusiastic and energetic gardener already has about one-fourth of an acre planted in early peas and has sowed tomato and pepper seed. She feels that a cannery in Zebulon would be a fine thing for the community. In addition to other help it would prevent a glut on the market and keep prices nearer at a level.

Ford Almanac

Brimful of useful facts and information and other material of human interest, the Ford Home Almanac for 1937 goes to the homes of the United States this week, distributed free by dealers of the Ford Motor Company.

Readers of the booklet will find that, in addition to the time of sunrise and set, adjusted to each latitude; moon phases, eclipses and the usual other information given in Almanacs, the Ford Home Almanac is replete with interesting reading materials.

There are also short articles dealing with the views of Henry Ford on various subjects, as well as an article showing in detail what he has done with the $13,000,000,000 which the public has paid for Ford cars and trucks since the Ford Motor Company began business in 1903.

While such information about one of the modern world's greatest industries will be found interesting by students, teachers and economists, the housewife and mother will also find the little book handy because of the reliable information it brings for first aid treatments in many different kinds of emergencies, hints for the kitchen and care of the garden and a well planned garden chart. The motorist planning a trip to any part of the United States will find in the Almanac a chart giving accurate mile ages between important cities.
